Library Service OK: Residents

Elk Grove Village residents are satisfied with services provided by the Elk Grove Village Public Library according to early tabulations of a survey.

Responses are still being received by the library.

Almost 5,000 survey cards were mailed by the library, Oct. 1, to seek evaluation of its services and resources. More than 24 per cent of the cards have been returned, with more coming in every day, according to Mrs. Virginia James, business manager.

Results of the surveys returned through last Thursday show, 902 families use the library and 80 do not. However, 838 said the library usually had what they wanted and 54 said it seldom had what they wanted.

Staff courtesy was rated as: good, 824; fair, 63; and poor, 10.

THIS IS THE first survey conducted by the library since it was organized in 1959, according to Mrs. Evelyn Schmidt, head librarian.

A majority of those responding made suggestions for new services, mostly asking for more books and materials.

Mrs. Schmidt said she agreed that most of the recommended books and materials were needed. "New books are always needed," she said.

She said that some of the requests have already been considered and may be organized in the near future. A paperback book collection was requested and may be established soon at the library, Mrs. Schmidt said.

She added that some people requested material that was already available at the library. Telephone books from other cities were requested for example but have been available.

A newsletter providing information in response to the questions and requests will be distributed once the survey has been completed, the librarian said.

LIBRARIES FROM Barrington and Des Plaines have requested all the information available about the survey and are awaiting the results, according to Mrs. Schmidt.

She announced that the library received a $100 donation recently from the Masque and Staff drama group of Elk Grove Village.

Village civic groups will soon receive a letter announcing the reopening of the meeting room in the library basement, she also said. The room was temporarily closed because of construction work on the library addition.

The room now has a range, refrigerator and sink and a separate entrance from the library. Adult groups who wish to use the meeting room may request the key from the librarian.

New chairs and tables are on order for the room, according to Mrs. Schmidt.

Quotables

"The animal of the $18,000 home does not exist in the Chicago area," said Robert Winkle, Centex Corp. sales manager, speaking before the Housing Commission on Tuesday.

Plan Work Force Survey

Preliminary work for a survey of the working force in Elk Grove Village was begun Tuesday by the housing commission.

The commission met with Ronald Stewart, an associate professor of sociology at Harper College near Palatine, who may be retained to make the survey.

The purpose of the survey is to determine the need for housing of people who work in the village but do not or cannot afford to live here.

Specifically included would be persons who worked in the large industrial area of the village.

Questions the survey would answer include a family's income, residence, family size, employment, and whether they want to live in Elk Grove Village.

Stewart will meet Oct. 27 with the housing survey committee and chairman Joseph Wellman to draw up the questions. A special meeting of the commission to review the questionnaire was tentatively set for Nov. 4.

IN OTHER ACTION, representatives of Centex Corp. said the firm is planning to build homes for persons in the $8,000 to $12,000 income bracket.

The homes to be built west of state Rt. 53 would cost from $26,000 to $30,000, they told members of the Housing Commission. The smallest would have two bedrooms and 1,000 square feet.

Robert Calkins, real estate manager and Robert Winkle, sales manager, said the mass market is in "great need" of these types of homes.

"In today's market this is low cost," asserted Winkle.

The commission invited the Centex representatives to speak because it is interested in low and moderate cost housing for the area. The commission is to recommend a program for housing to the village board in February.

REFLECTING ON the increased costs of construction and changes in the economy, Winkle said that homes the firm built in 1957 and sold for $17,000 would now cost better than $30,000.

Developers are now looking for ways to reduce costs he said, explaining that one of the ways they can do this is through changes in zoning codes and density requirements.

Calkins said Centex may ask the village to lower its minimum lot size requirement from 7,500 square feet to 7,000 square feet in order to keep the costs of homes down.

The firm also is studying cluster-type housing for an area west of Rt. 53, Calkins said.

In discussion afterward, Mrs. Cathy Duaba, commissioner, said that though lowering the cost of housing by Centex was to be commended, there were still many workers in the industrial park making less than $8,000 a year. They would not be able to afford to live here, she said.

Construction Of Complex Begins

Construction began recently on the fourth and final phase of the Elk Grove Terrace apartments in Elk Grove Village.

Phoenix Construction Co., Chicago, will build eight one and two-bedroom apartment buildings containing a total of 448 units.

The construction site is bounded by Kennedy and Elk Grove Boulevards, Ridge Avenue and Cypress lane.

There are 300 units presently at the 20-acre site. With completion of the additional apartments there will be a total of 748 apartments.

Al Capp To Lead GOP Rally

Cartoonist Al Capp, creator of Li'l Abner and Daisy Mae will lead an Elk Grove Township rally today of almost the entire slate of Republican candidates running for State and County offices in the Nov. 3 election.

Heading the list of candidates is U.S. Sen. Ralph Smith. He will be joined by Ray Page, who is seeking reelection as superintendent of public instruction and Edmund Kucharski, candidate for state treasurer.

THE RALLY WILL begin at 8 p.m. at Lincoln Junior High School, Mount Prospect, and candidates will answer questions during the refreshment hour after the program.

Almost all the important candidates for county offices and the candidates for county commissioner from the suburbs will also attend.

Rounding out the list will be Illinois Sen. John Graham and State Representatives David Regner and Eugene Schlickman.

Republican Committeeman Carl Hansen said he was pleased, "so many of the candidates have been able to fit the Elk Grove Township rally into their busy schedules. It's a tribute to our township's ability to deliver a large Republican plurality for them, which they need to offset the Democratic vote in the city."

Randhurst Named In Cullerton Tax Probe

by GERRY DeZONNA

The tax records of the Randhurst Corp., owner of Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect, will be investigated by a state senate subcommittee in connection with alleged tax assessment reductions granted by County Assessor P.J. Cullerton.

State Sen. Arthur R. Swanson, R-Chicago, chairman of the state senate subcommittee for assessment practices, said yesterday Randhurst Shopping Center is one of several shopping centers in the area which will be included in the committee's investigation of tax assessment reductions.

"We're currently investigating parcels of property in which there have been glaring discrepancies in the tax assessments. At the moment, we're zeroing in on twelve buildings in the city, and once we've finished these investigations, we'll proceed with our review of shopping centers in the county," Swanson said.

ROBERT HANRAHAN, Cook County superintendent of schools, has also charged that Randhurst Shopping Center as well as six other shopping centers in the county are "grossly underassessed."

Hanrahan said Tuesday the assessed valuation of Randhurst "should be almost quadrupled." The 1969 assessed valuation of a shopping center is $6,091,105," he said.

In addition to Randhurst, the subcommittee will also investigate alleged tax-assessment reductions for Old Orchard, Skokie; Hillside Shopping Center, Wolf Road at the Eisenhower Expressway; Evergreen Plaza, 95th and Western streets; Lawrencewood Shopping Center, Oakton and Waukegan roads; and Dixie Square Shopping Plaza, 151st Street and Dixie Highway.

Richard McCarthy, public relations director of the Randhurst Corp., said yesterday the corporation has not been notified of an investigation by Swanson's committee.

"WE'VE HEARD NOTHING about the investigation other than what we've read in the newspaper or we've seen on television. To the best of my knowledge, Randhurst has not received any cuts in its assessed valuation," McCarthy explained.

Randhurst Corp. is equally owned by Carson Pirie Scott and Co., Montgomery Ward and Wieboldt's, McCarthy said.

Swanson's committee is currently reviewing the files on 12 buildings in Chicago, including the Brunswick Building, Merchandise Mart and Prudential Building.

"It's taken us 10 days to review 10 files, and at this point, it's evident that favoritism plays a very big part in the granting of tax-assessment cuts for the owners of downtown properties. There is an obvious need for regulatory legislation, and this committee intends to prove this need as well as the passage of regulatory legislation," Swanson said.

Swanson said the investigation of tax-assessment reductions is the result of "information secured by the news media following a review of the county tax rolls."

"IT HAS BEEN brought to our attention that property owners who are friends of the Mayor (Richard Daley) or the assessor (Cullerton) have been granted substantial cuts in the assessed valuation of their properties," Swanson said.

"My subcommittee will investigate the tax cuts granted to shopping centers, but at this time, I can't tell you when those investigations will be scheduled. This will all depend on when our investigations of the major buildings in the city have been concluded," he said.

Tax-assessment reductions reportedly were granted to these businesses on the grounds that they needed tax relief to show a fair profit.

Swanson said a search of the assessor's records has provided "no such economic hardships as grounds for tax cuts" on the 12 Chicago buildings now under investigation.

'Choral Capers' Is Friday

The third annual "Choral Capers" concert by the four choral groups, at Elk Grove High School will be held tomorrow and Saturday in the school's Little Theatre.

Choral Capers is a production by the Concert Choir, Girls Glee Club, Boys Chorus and Girls Chorus, singing and dancing to a variety of musical arrangements, under the direction of instructors Lendell King and Harry Swenson.

Pop and rock music, show tunes, oldies but goodies, and standard choral songs will be included in the show.

"The staging is unique. Students dance to some music, act to others. The costuming fits the mood or the music. Drums, string bass, and piano furnish appropriate accompaniment," said George Ergang, school public relations chairman.

Each chorus has selected a theme for its portion of the program and student choreographers have been planning the dancing and acting for the choral groups.

THE GIRLS CHORUS has chosen selections from "Sweet Charity"; the Boys Chorus, selections from "Paint Your Wagon"; the Girls Glee Club, selections from "Babes in Toyland"; and the Concert Choir, selections from "Bye, Bye, Birdie."

A highlight of the program will be the first appearance of the Concert Choir in its new red, white, and blue outfits, which were purchased in part from the proceeds of last year's show.

Presidents of the four choruses are Mary Campbell, Tina Stefanos, Cindy Cashman and John Mullins.

The show was performed at the two Elk Grove junior high schools and several elementary schools in the village yesterday.

Tickets, $1 for adults and 50 cents for children 12 years old and under, will be on sale from any choral student or at the door.

Proceeds will be used for uniforms, field trip expenses, and other school activities not ordinarily paid for by school board funds.

Ah, It's The Home Of Your Nightmares

by SANDRA BROWNING

The mystery of the dark unknown is being built into two older homes in Arlington Heights.

The Campus Life organization, a non-denominational Christian group for high school and college students in the Northwest and North Shore suburbs, is renovating the older homes, preparing them to be "haunted" during Halloween week.

Last year, Campus Life renovated a home which was about to be torn down just south of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library, 500 N. Dunton St., and about 2,000 young adults toured through the house of horrors.

During the past few weeks, volunteer adults and members of the Campus Life staff have been working on the homes near downtown Arlington Heights in preparation for a four-day "Haunted House" event. The walls have been painted black and doors have been put in so that visitors may walk through rooms easily.

People may tour the houses beginning next week. They will be open from 7 to 9:45 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday and from 7 to 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday. The exact location of the houses will be announced later. Campus Life workers are afraid they might have some premature visits if the location was announced this week.

The heating and electrical systems of the homes were completely revamped and approved by the village's building department before workers started adding their own horrible touches.

Lattoff Motor Sales of Arlington Heights owns the buildings which are scheduled for demolition soon. The company offered to let Campus Life use the buildings for haunted houses and the organization went to work cleaning them out and remodeling them.

Because of problems with junior high schools students last year, none of these students will be allowed to go through the house unescorted. Last year, some of the younger kids "went bananas" because they were so frightened, according to Campus Life representatives.

Guards at the doors will also be checking older adults closely because the houses promise to be so scary that "adults may get heart attacks. And we're not kidding," according to Clayton Baumann from Campus Life.

The organization will be using about six professional makeup artists to help with the decorating of staff members' faces, faces, turning them into werewolves and other delightful creatures.

The haunted houses are aimed at the high school and college aged crowd, although others may tour the houses. By aiming at a specific age group, Campus Life staff members can do more "horrible" planning than if they tried to appeal to a general audience, Baumann said.

The main building has nearly twice as many rooms this year as the Haunted house run by the organization last year. The entire program is more than double the size of last year's, runs twice as long and promises to be "twice as scary," according to the Campus Life representatives.

The entire operation and construction of the haunted houses will take about 100 people. Construction involved bringing the old houses up to meet building code standards and then remodeling the rooms.

Baumann said a lot of the work is being done by college students who went through the haunted house last year and thought it was so good that they wanted to work on the project for this year.

Campus Life representatives said that people will be stationed in each room to help with crowd control and to keep people moving.

The organization is also trying to line up a musical group to play and has scheduled movies for people who are waiting to go through the house, Baumann said. Last year, some visitors waited up to three hours to tour the haunted house.

Campus Life will be using three floors of the buildings and workers have built an outside staircase to help with traffic control. The admission charge will be a $1 per person and about 5,000 people are expected to tour the homes.

Ogilvie To Attend School Dedication

Illinois Governor Richard B. Ogilvie will arrive at Schaumburg Airport at 10 a.m. Saturday and proceed to the dedication ceremonies of Schaumburg High School.

Schaumburg High School which opened this fall, is the first secondary school to be built with Illinois School Building Commission funds.

The governor is scheduled to arrive at the school at 10:30 a.m. and will begin a brief tour of the facility. A formal dedication of the building will start at 11 a.m.

The ISBC is the agency of the state that provides guidelines and funds for school districts which are unable to construct facilities because of financial limitations. The commission has built many elementary schools in the state.

The newest Dist. 211 school was built at a cost of $18.42 per square foot, considerably below the $20 to $25 per square foot for similarly constructed schools.

Statistically the school is a 2,500 student capacity, with over 100 class, seminar and large group instruction rooms.

The air conditioned facility cost $5,040,424. Two football fields could be laid out on the end within the walls, which contain 7.06 acres under roof for a total of 307,057 square feet of space.

All residents of Palatine-Schaumburg High School Dist. 211 are encouraged to attend the dedication and take advantage of special tours that Schaumburg High School student will conduct.

Dist. 211 is setting aside a special section of seats for residents from both townships who worked on the recently successful Dist. 211 referendum. Funds from the referendum will construct a third high school in Schaumburg Township and another one in Palatine Township.

ERIE JONES, of Fitch, Larocca, Carington and Jones, architects, designers of the school, will greet Ogilvie at the airport, along with John Moore of ISEC. Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher will accompany Ogilvie, along with Dist. 211 board members and Jones on the special tour of the facility.

The school's band and chorus will perform in the gymnasium at 10:30 a.m. Tours for the public will start at 11:30 a.m.

William Fremd, oldest school board member, will be a special guest at the dedication.

Elected officials from surrounding communities have been invited and Dist. 211 expects some 500 residents to attend the ceremonies.

Electric Co. Plans Addition

A 132,000 square foot addition to the existing Western Electric office building in Rolling Meadows will be constructed by early 1972 on land immediately north of the present site.

When completed, the addition will accommodate some 1,000 employees and will include a cafeteria and parking facilities. Groundbreaking will take place in the spring.

The addition will consist of two stories and will be similar in design to the present structure. It will be attached to the existing building by a glass-enclosed walkway.

According to L. V. Jagnow, public information director for the firm, the addition will not house any new departments, but will expand on office space necessary for operations.

Because the firm has been running short of space, an 18-month lease was recently signed for office space in a recently constructed office building on Wilke Road one block south of Campbell, Jagnow said.

"BY THE TIME this lease is up, we'll be able to move into the new addition," he said.

The existing Western Electric building, at 3800 Golf Rd., consists of 267,000 square feet and serves as the firm's headquarters for the four-state area of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin. The 2,100 employees now working in the building are primarily engineers who design central office telephone equipment.

The Western Electric property in Rolling Meadows totals approximately 40 acres. According to Jagnow, the firm probably will be unable to purchase more land for further expansion because there is no land available near the building.

Other Western Electric offices within the Chicago area are in Aurora and in Cicero, where manufacturing is done. Another branch is being constructed in Lisle.

Pool May Reopen In 2 Or 3 Weeks

Kopp Pool "will probably reopen in two to three weeks," according to Paul Caldwell, assistant director of parks and recreation for the Mount Prospect Park District.

Caldwell said that is the time it will take to install safety devices at the pool to guard against a recurrence of escaping carbon monoxide fumes at the pool which forced its evacuation Saturday morning.

The pool is located next to Dempster Junior High School, 420 W. Dempster St. in Mount Prospect.

Caldwell said a cost estimate on the installation of the safety devices is forthcoming from the architectural firm, Kessler, Mercer and Lochner. That firm designed the pool, which was built last spring. Caldwell said he had no idea what the cost might be.

THE SAFETY MEASURES are those specified in a written report that came after a weekend investigation of the pool. Involved in the probe were Caldwell and architects Howard Kessler and Bill Mercer. Others involved were Chief Larry Pairitz of the Mount Prospect Fire Department and Gene Gaul, a representative of the Merchants Heating and Air Conditioning Co.

The recommendations listed included the installation of a "spill thermostat" which would automatically shut off the boiler in the event of a down draft of fumes. Another recommendation was in the boiler stacks to assist in exhausting fumes.

Caldwell said the recommendations were submitted to Pairitz who will inspect the indoor pool after the recommendations are carried out. The inspection will be at the request of the park district.

The village fire department has no jurisdiction over Dempster Junior High, which is attached to the pool, Pairitz said. "We have no jurisdiction under our own code. We are involved in that we work in cooperation with the superintendent of schools," Pairitz said.

"ANYTIME YOU WORK with a governmental agent like the parks or the schools there is a question of how much authority you have over them, and it isn't much," Pairitz added.

"We (fire department) were asked to participate in the investigation and we were most willing to do so. All parties — the schools, the parks and the fire department — worked well together on it. There was no problem of jurisdiction at all and everybody had the same goal in mind which was the safety of the pool," said Pairitz.

CAMPUS LIFE VOLUNTEERS have been working for several weeks on renovating two older homes in Arlington Heights, remodeling the houses for Halloween week. Dan Coffey from Trinity Seminary works on one of the rooms of the houses. The houses will be

"haunted" next week and will be open for brave residents who want to tour through them. Campus Life is a non-denominational Christian organization for high school and college students. It draws members from all the Northwest and North Shore Suburbs.

Low-Cost Housing Backed By AAUW

As the controversy over low and moderate income-housing continues, the local branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) recently jumped into the fray.

The Arlington Heights branch of AAUW, which includes members from throughout the Northwest suburban area, passed a resolution recently to encourage the development of low and moderate-income housing in the area.

The AAUW last week sent copies of the resolution to village boards throughout the area.

A letter was sent by a member of the group to state that the resolution "contains an element that can do more harm than good" soon after the resolutions were mailed.

THE TWO LETTERS were brought up during the meeting of the Wheeling Village Board Monday night. Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon said that the local board and plan commission were working through annexations and zoning changes to "do everything possible to consider moderate income housing" for the village.

The resolution was passed Oct. 8 and states:

"Whereas, the Arlington Heights Branch, American Association of University Women, has a deep concern for the provision of adequate housing and is aware of the need, both local and national, for well-planned housing for people of all income levels; and

"WHEREAS, the Illinois State Division, American Association of University Women, adopted the following in April, 1970: 'We support measures to alleviate hunger, cultural, social and economic deprivation and to eliminate substandard dwellings'; therefore be it

"Resolved: That the Arlington Heights Branch, AAUW calls upon the village governments of the Northwest Suburban areas within which members reside to encourage the development of low and moderate income housing while including provision for open space within all village limits so that people at all income levels will be able to live comfortably within our communities."

The copy of the resolution was sent Oct. 12 and the letter from Mrs. Joseph Braun, a member of AAUW, was dated three days later.

Mrs. Braun wrote, "As relatively harmless as this resolution appears, it contains an element that can do more harm than good. It carries with it the stigma of having been forced upon a group of supposedly intelligent women."

"TO THIS DAY, a great number of AAUW members are not aware that such a resolution exists since it did not appear in the organization newsletter or on the agenda of the meeting (general meeting at which the resolution was passed)."

Mrs. Braun, 1216 E. Campbell St., Arlington Heights, is a member of the legislative committee which originally approved the resolution.

During a meeting of the legislative committee in September, the matter of a resolution on low and moderate income housing was discussed, according to Mrs. Thomas Haack, chairman of the committee who lives at 903 Burning Tree Lane, Arlington Heights.

The discussion was published in the AAUW's newsletter so that other than committee members could attend. Mrs. Haack said that the state and national AAUW groups have endorsed the idea of local communities providing housing for low and moderate income families.

THE COMMITTEE discussed forming a study group but the consensus was that AAUW members had already been encouraged to attend meetings within the past year on the subject and the League of Women Voters was already working on a fact sheet on the subject, Mrs. Haack said.

The committee voted to have the chairman present a resolution at the October meeting of the committee. The presentation of the resolution to the committee was published in the organization's newsletter, Mrs. Haack said.

Shortly after the committee approved the resolution in October, it was presented to the general meeting and approved by a voice vote.

Mrs. Braun said in her letter that a "few members" arranged for the presentation of the resolution at the general meeting and that no advance notice of the topic coming up was given.

MRS. HAACK SAID that AAUW will be having no regular meeting next month and thus the approval of the resolution would have had to wait until December if it had not been presented at the October meeting.

The committee chairman said that unfortunately "there are a few people who are very unhappy."

In order for any association to state a position, "there are going to be some dissenting members" who do not agree with the position, Mrs. Haack said.

She pointed out that the committee had been discussing the issue of low and moderate income housing for about a year.

Board Backs Transit Study

The Wheeling Village Board agreed Monday to participate in a major transportation study being conducted by the Northwest Municipal Conference (NMC).

The board authorized village expenditure of 10 cents per person in the village, (a total of $1,477), to join other NMC municipalities in sponsoring a study to analyze the transportation needs of the Northwest suburban area.

Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon, who brought the proposal before the board, said he needed a decision on the study funds this week.

The proposed study will be conducted by Harper College in cooperation with the Center for Urban Studies at the Chicago campus of the University of Illinois.

The village's participation in the study will include only the providing of funds at this point.

THE STUDY will take approximately one year to complete.

Goals of the project include providing a coordinated transportation system throughout the Northwest suburban area including streets, highways, mass transit terminals, and parking facilities.

The report will include compiling reports from communities in the NMC and interviewing local governmental officials and major area employers.

Surveys to determine future transportation needs of residents will also be included.

The proposal will include suggestions for financing a coordinated transportation system.

Wheeling Trustee Ira Bird commented before the unanimous approval of funds for the study Monday that he would be in favor of an independent study to solve Wheeling's transportation problems.

Bird was critical, however, of a proposed plan to subsidize the financially ailing United Motor Coach Co. with motor fuel tax funds.

That proposal, another area wide discussion of transportation problem solutions, has not been ruled on by the Wheeling Board.

SCANLON, WHO HAS represented the village at meetings on both of the transportation proposals, has come out in favor of the bus subsidy plan.

Cost of the subsidy for Wheeling would be about $4,152 a year, Scanlon estimated. A transportation district would be formed to distribute the funds to the bus company.

"I am not opposed to anything that will improve the transportation in Wheeling," Scanlon has said.

Currently Wheeling is served only by one bus route on Milwaukee Avenue which goes to Chicago. The village has no bus service to shopping centers.

At a committee meeting Monday to discuss increased taxi cab fares, Bob Birks of the Wheeling Village Cab Co. told trustees that Wheeling is "a good cab town." Trustees had commented earlier that taxis are the only mode of public transportation available to residents of most areas of the village.

Dist. 54 Plans No Busing Change

District 54 has no immediate plans to change its existing policy of busing students living closer than 1.5 miles from neighborhood schools as a result of policy committee discussions held Monday night.

The Dist. 54 policy committee, headed by school board member Mrs. Dianne Hart has been studying the matter as a result of recent parent requests but has decided to delay any change pending results of a transportation study now being completed by the Northwest Educational Cooperative.

At present, Dist. 54 buses students living 1.5 miles from their attendance center and students who must travel along busy roads to class. The latter situation currently applies only at Schaumburg

The district receives state aid for busing students living one and one-half miles from neighborhood schools.

When results of the area-wide transportation study are received by Dist. 54, policy committee members will then reopen their investigation of local busing.

In other policy matters, Supt. Wayne E. Schaible said this week that the district will implement its revised lunch policy permitting all children in grades one through six to remain at school during the noon hour during cold months entirely without outside assistance.

Schaible said that the program is now being set up and letters will go out to parents shortly to investigate their individual willingness to participate.

Mothers will be scheduled to supervise selected groups but the project will be handled and coordinated by the individual school principals and their secretaries, he said.

Lions' 'Boo' Bash For Kids Next Week

The Elk Grove Village Lions Club will hold its annual children's Halloween Party next Friday at 7:30 p.m. at Rupley, Salt Creek, Clearmont, Adm. Byrd, and Grove Junior High schools.

A $25 U. S. savings bond, the grand prize, will be awarded to the youngster with the best costume. Other prizes will be awarded in two age groups, tots through kindergarteners and grades one through five.

Dist. 59 Group To Meet Tonight

The School Dist. 59 Site and Selection Committee for a new junior high school will meet at 8 p.m. today in the administration board room, 2123 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

The committee is studying recommendations made by Supt. James Ervitt to alleviate overcrowding in the junior high schools.

Meetings are open to the public and suggestions are welcome, according to committee vice-chairman, Joseph Stecker.

Des Plaines Boundary OK

Des Plaines parents who have children attending High School Dist 214 don't have to worry about the district's proposed boundary changes.

A survey of four boundary maps under consideration by the district shows students from Des Plaines attending Forest View High School in Arlington Heights, as scheduled, next fall.

A majority of students from Des Plaines now attend Elk Grove High School. These students will be allowed to complete their high school careers at Elk Grove; new students from Des Plaines will enter Forest View High School.

The district's attendance boundaries are being redrawn to accommodate Rolling Meadows High School, which will open next September.

Section 1 THE HERALD
Thursday, October 22, 1970

Evan Shull, a district instructional coordinator, has submitted two possible remap plans to the board, and citizens from southwestern Arlington Heights, an area which could enter the Rolling Meadows area, have submitted two maps.

The district also is surveying students to determine interest in an open attendance plan.

In February, the board approved the plan to start new students at Forest View to ease crowded conditions at Elk Grove High School. Des Plaines citizens requested and gained the right to allow students to remain at Elk Grove.

Are you resourceful?

Do you know what to do in a difficult situation? Or do you freeze up?

You can learn to find the right answer when you need it by turning confidently to God, as the unlimited source of ideas.

Roy J. Linnig of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship says if we ever struggle for a solution without finding it, we simply aren't listening for God's constant direction. The key, he says, is to acknowledge this source of ideas, and let go of the belief that we must always devise solutions ourselves.

Come and hear Roy J. Linnig talk about how you can become more resourceful through prayer.

Judge To Decide Teacher's Rights

Harper College officials will have until Friday, Oct. 30 to notify two former faculty members why they were not offered new teaching contracts two years ago.

U.S. District Court Judge Abraham L. Marovitz last Friday gave the college officials two weeks to notify Mrs. Betty Enbysk and Edward Kalish in writing the reasons for their non-retention.

Mrs. Enbysk and Kalish will then have two weeks to reply to the college's letter. Marovitz will need the notification to rule on the three-count, $350,000 suit filed in May, 1969, by the two teachers.

IN OTHER DEVELOPMENTS, the judge's call for an explanation was praised by Morris Andrews, associate director of field services and negotiations for the Illinois Education Association (IEA).

The IEA, through its legal arm, the DuShane Fund, is financing the teacher's case.

The opinion "marks the first time that probationary teachers in Illinois have been accorded their procedural, constitutional rights," he asserted.

Andrews outlined the non-retention of the two teachers, adding that each sought and was denied a hearing from the Harper administration and the board of trustees for the reasons for their dismissal.

"During their employment at William Rainey Harper College, each was complimented for his work," Andrews stated. Judge Marovitz called for the letters on Friday, Oct. 9. He stated at that time that he must determine whether the two teachers' civil rights were violated before he can rule on the case.

Campaign Comments

by ED MURNANE

Various national organizations and special interests groups have issued their "report cards" on U.S. senators and congressmen during the past few weeks and Sen. Ralph T. Smith stands out in at least two as one of the senators with the worst attendance records.

The reports generally list a handful of key votes which the organization considers important and lists whether the office holders voted favorably or unfavorably in the eyes of the organization.

The National Associated Businessmen, for example, rates senators and congressmen on their anti-inflationary and economy votes and awards "watchdog of the treasury" trophies to those public officials who have high marks.

Twelve different votes were used to determine the record of the various elected officials.

Smith, who was appointed to the Senate a year ago, was in office for 10 of the 12 votes but he only voted on five of them.

His five absences gave him the third worst attendance record in the Senate. Only Sen. Thomas Dodd, D-Conn., and Sen. Karl Mundt, R-S.D., missed more than five votes and the two of them were in office for all 12 votes.

Four other senators, including Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois, also missed five votes but all four were in office for the full term, so they were present for seven of the 12 while Smith was present for only five of 10.

The combined records of Smith and Percy on votes listed by the National Associated Businessmen is the worst by any state's senators.

The two senators' records are in sharp contrast with the attendance records of the four congressmen who serve this area.

Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th, and Rep. Robert McClory, R-12th, were present for all the votes, although Crane missed four which were taken before he was elected last year.

Rep. John N. Erlenborn, R-14th, missed three votes and Rep. Harold R. Collier, R-10th, missed two.

Smith's attendance record is even worse on the report card put out this week by the National Education Association.

Six issues were listed by the NEA as crucial to education, four of them coming after Smith took office. He was present for only one of the four, giving him a 25 per cent attendance record, worst in the Senate.

Percy, on the other hand, was present for all six votes, giving him a 100 per cent record.

Crane, who apparently is doing what the people of the 13th District elected him to do — representing them in Congress and attending the sessions — had another perfect attendance record.

So did Erlenborn, while Collier and McClory each missed only one of the six votes.

Smith has defended his poor attendance by saying it takes campaigning to get elected and he has been campaigning.

However, there are 35 senators up for reelection this year and none have the poor record which Smith has achieved during the past 13 months.

And it makes you wonder how Vice President Agnew recognized Smith when he came to Chicago this week. Agnew serves as presiding officer of the Senate but Smith's attendance record indicates that the vice president hasn't seen the Illinois junior senator very often in the Senate chambers.

The contrast between Smith and Crane, both freshmen members of their respective legislative bodies and both up for reelection this year, is interesting.

Crane was elected to represent the people and he has wasted no time in doing his homework in Washington, attending the sessions of the Congress and learning the ropes in Washington.

But Smith, who was appointed to represent the people, has found it more important to campaign, rather than learn what his job entails.

I wonder if Smith has been collecting his paycheck?

An impressive group of independent Democrats, including Palatine Township Committeeman Richard Mugalian and 13th District state central Committeeman Lynn Williams, has endorsed George W. Dunne for president of the Cook County board "because he is the only candidate of either party who has pledged to eliminate political patronage."

The group announced the endorsement at a press conference in Chicago yesterday. They said Dunne "is superior in every quality" to his opponent, Republican Joseph I. Woods. Woods is running a campaign based on "irrational fear," the statement said.

Among the others in the group are Victor deGrazia, chairman of the Committee on Illinois Government; Martin Gleason, chairman of the Independent Democratic Coalition; U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva, D-2nd; State Rep. Anthony Sciarano, D-9th; Chicago Ald. William Singer; and Con-Con Delegate Peter Tomei.

Illinois voters aren't the only ones who will have extra ballots facing them at polling places on Nov. 3. Forty-five other states have special referendum provisions and in some states, the voters might be advised to bring a lunch with them when they go to the polls.

In Georgia, for example, there are 64 separate ballots — most of them deal with amendments to the state constitution. Louisiana voters will have a long session in the booth too as 50 constitutional amendments will be submitted to the voters.

Gerry Marks, former Metropolitan Sanitary District trustee and one of the Republican candidates in last year's special 13th Congressional District race, has endorsed the Nov. 3 anti-pollution referendum. Marks testified recently before the MSD and pledged his support.

Michael Bakalis, Democratic candidate for state superintendent of public instruction, has issued a financial statement of his campaign costs. Bakalis said he has received $110,126.67 in contributions as of Sept. 30 and has spent slightly over that so far.

Women's committees for George Dunne have been formed in Wheeling and Elk Grove Townships. Heading the Wheeling group is Mrs. Lee Koeneman of

Lynn Williams

George Dunne

Arlington Heights and heading the Elk Grove group is Mrs. Audrey Philips, also of Arlington Heights.

Response to U.S. Rep. Philip Crane's survey has been overwhelmingly in favor of the congressman's position on 10 major issues. Crane's administrative assistant, Jerry Harkins, said 16,000 replies have been received and most of the issues showed better than 90 per cent agreement. Crane will print the results in a Paddock Publication advertisement soon.

Sen. Charles Percy will hold a "GOP VoteFest" in Springfield Saturday and more than 5,000 Illinois Republicans are expected to attend. Site is the state fairgrounds.

A "startling" announcement will be made at a press conference this morning by Ben Adamowski, Republican candidate for county assessor, his office reported yesterday.

Nov. 6 Deadline

Although there is still plenty of time for Christmas shopping, anyone planning to send gifts to servicemen stationed overseas has little time to waste.

The Arlington Heights branch of the U.S. Postal Service said yesterday the preliminary deadline for overseas parcels is Nov. 6. This applies to surface mail only. The deadline for cards and letters, sent by surface mail, is Nov. 12.

A postal service spokesman noted there are three other classifications of mail service that apply to parcels for overseas mailings to servicemen.

These classifications, with their respective deadlines and size and weight limitations, are:

—S.A.M. (space available mail), maximum 70 pounds, no more than 100 inches. Deadline Nov. 20.

—P.A.L. (parcel air lift), maximum five pounds, no more than 60 inches. Deadline Nov. 27.

—Regular air mail, maximum 70 pounds, no more than 100 inches. Deadline Dec. 11.

The size restrictions refer to the sum, in inches, of the girth of the package added to the length.

The same Dec. 11 deadline applies to cards and letters mailed at normal air mail rates.

The postal service also offered several suggestions to ensure safe arrival for packages bound overseas.

IF THE PACKAGE is heavy it should be tied with heavy cord in addition to being taped. A filament-type tape can be used in the place of cord or rope. Gifts should be packaged in a heavy corrugated box, with perishable items stored in plastic containers.

Two inches of packing material is suggested for fragile items. If there is more than one fragile item in a box, the should be separated by at least one inch of packing material, or boxed separately within the larger box.

Anti-Pollution Bond Issue Drive Continues

Blue and white buttons and bumper stickers urging voters to "give dirty water the works Nov. 3" are being displayed in support of a drive to pass a $750 million anti-pollution bond issue in Illinois for the improvement of sewage treatment and solid waste disposal facilities.

Under the proposal, the state would be authorized to pay up to 25 per cent of the construction costs of local sewage treatment facilities. The state's contribution qualifies the local municipalities for more federal aid.

Federal grants to local projects now stand at 33 per cent, leaving two thirds of the cost to the localities. If the state contributes 25 per cent, the federal government will provide 50 to 55 per cent of the funds, the higher amount if the project fits in with regional plans made by an agency like the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission.

THE ILLINOIS Environmental Protection Agency already has listed $799 million in improvements in the Metropolitan Sanitary District and elsewhere in Cook County.

Passage of the bond act would leave only 20 percent, about $160 million, to be paid locally.

The special white ballot requires the approval of a majority of those voting for members of the General Assembly. In 1968, a water resources issue was killed when 1.4 million voters failed to mark the special ballot, even though the issue received 1.6 million 'yes' votes and only 1.2 million 'no' votes.

"So if you don't vote on it, you in effect will be voting against it," according to Neil McKay, metropolitan chairman of the Illinois Citizens for Clean Water.

Governor Richard Ogilvie secured the volunteer services of Illinois' largest advertising agency, Leo Burnett Co., to arouse interest in the special ballot. He points out that as much as 90 per cent of the mileage of some Illinois rivers fails to meet federal water quality standards.

"WE ESTIMATE THAT sewage causes 70 per cent of the pollution problems in our streams and lakes — industrial pollution only 30 per cent," the governor said.

More than half the population of the state is concentrated in Cook County. "Of course, cleaner waters in this area of 5 1/2 million people will benefit not only Chicago and suburbs but all of Illinois that lies downstream," McKay said.

Half the proposed bond issue is earmarked for sewage treatment improvements in Cook County.

Ogilvie said Illinois needs $2.2 billion over the next 10 years to comply with standards established under the federal Water Quality Act of 1965. "Construction costs are rising 10 percent or more each year," he continued, "any delay — and it can only be delay, for these plants must be built — will add immensely to the costs."

HE DECLARED THAT "a bond issue is needed, despite the interest costs involved, because comprehensive long-range planning can't rely on annual appropriations from the legislature. The bond issue guarantees that each community will get help, on schedule."

However, the state aid would not be an automatic grant. The locality would have to prove to the Environmental Protection Agency that it needed the project and the funds and that it was able to proceed with the project.

The proposal provides for the sale of 25-year bonds at a 7 percent interest rate. A special property tax if necessary to repay the bonds is written in to the issue, but is merely a "legal technicality" according to Ogilvie. He said the bond issue will not raise taxes and can be repaid from general revenues.

If the bond vote fails, communities and sanitary districts will be forced to bear the burden of paying for sewage treatment facilities because courts will order them to comply with federal and state antipollution standards — at their own expense.

"Right now 90 percent of the mileage of the Calumet River fails to meet those standards. In the Illinois River is 80 percent, in the Rock River, 40 per cent," the governor said.

ILLINOIS IS ONE of the few industrial states not yet providing state aid to local governments for sewage treatment costs. The write ballot has the support of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, the AFL-CIO and both the Democratic and Republican parties. There is no organized opposition to the bond issue, but a serious stumbling block could be the voter's failure to mark the white ballot at all on Nov. 3.

Membership Drive Begun

The 1970-71 membership drive for the Illinois Junior Academy of Science has started, according to an announcement by academy president David Curtis.

Currently 560 high schools in Illinois belong to the academy. This year, members hope to increase this figure by 10 per cent, according to Curtis.

"Since its founding 43 years ago, the Illinois Junior Academy of Science has had a single goal, namely that of providing the opportunity for young people to further their scientific endeavors. We feel young people today should have the opportunity to prepare themselves for a rightful place in tomorrow's society," Curtis said.

Students in member schools submit science projects to the academy each year and compete for awards in regional and state contests. Last year one of the 11 regional contests was held at Wheeling High School.

The 1970-71 state contest will be held May 8 at the University of Illinois, Champaign-Urbana.

Information on membership in the academy may be obtained by contacting Curtis at North Chicago Community High School.

Reincarnation: It's World's Oldest Belief

by BRAD BREKKE

"I don't want to come back as a cow or a pig."

"You won't."

"I would like to live over again."

"You will."

Carol Broman, an Arlington Heights psychic, spoke on reincarnation Friday at the eighth annual convention of the Illinois Organization of Mothers of Twins Clubs, held at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel.

"There's been a lot of talk about reincarnation today on radio and TV. People are talking about it and there's also been many fallacies and misconceptions about it going around."

"Three-fourths of the world today believes in reincarnation. It is the oldest belief in the world," said Mrs. Broman. More than 50 mothers of twins gathered to hear her speak at the opening of the convention Friday, which lasted through Saturday.

SHE SAID five Popes of Rome have believed in reincarnation and so have several notable Americans, such as Ralph Waldo Emerson, Henry Ford and Ben Franklin.

When asked why none can remember their past lives, she said most persons can't remember when they were 2 years old either.

"When you die, your subconscious or mind does not die. It is immortal. It never dies. Reincarnation answers many questions religion leaves unanswered."

"What you did in one life may reflect itself in another. The young who die will get a chance to finish their lives at a later time," she said.

Mrs. Broman said psychic reincarnation meetings are very popular today, but warned mothers to be careful when selecting a psychic to explore their past with them.

"A lot of people have been hoodwinked after spending a good deal of money and they end up with a bad reading. Select a psychic who has proved himself."

She said the only difference between the living and the dead is the body. There are evil souls on both sides, living and dead. Murderers come back as murderers and that's why capital punishment is no good. The soul doesn't change. It's also why abortions are no good. It cuts off a soul from coming into the world.

SHE SAID every soul comes back as a child.

When asked if new souls were being created and if this would explain the world's over-population today, Mrs. Broman said:

"No. All souls have been here before. No new ones are being created. But all the souls in the world are coming back at the same time now because it's getting near the second coming of Christ and they want to be here for it. That's why we have so many people in the world today."

She said people have a tendency to reincarnate in groups. "There is no set number of times we reincarnate and we can do it from two weeks to 100 years or more after death. People who are killed in war tend to come back very quickly."

"A soul can enter the body from five minutes after conception to five minutes before birth."

"Souls wait in line for parents. They choose their parents and get into a body on a first come, first served basis. One body might have 1,500 souls waiting in line to get into it. That's why abortion is so bad," said Mrs. Broman.

She went on to explain that the soul and the spirit are not one in the same. The soul carries memories in bits and pieces of all our past lives and the spirit is a part of God in us.

"SOME PERSONS are born defective. Like one person may be born blind. They did something in a past life and must come back in the next life without eyesight to correct it, to learn a lesson of some kind."

"For instance, if you die a white bigot, you might come back as a Negro... the thing you hated most... so you learn a lesson."

"But don't blow this life because you feel you're going to get another chance in a later life. You must do the best you can with what you have now."

She said reincarnation teaches us how to live with each other and what happens if we don't.

"The soul is sexless, so you may have been a man or a woman in your past lives. If you have ever had the feeling you have been to a certain place before, but know you haven't, the answer could be reincarnation."

"You were probably at that place in a past life and your soul remembers. There have been many cases such as this which have been documented."

"Souls have electrical currents and have a slight weight to them. There is a very slight difference in weight between the time a body is alive and immediately after death. We have been able to trace electrical charges leaving the brain. This could be the soul leaving the body."

"THE SOUL then assumes an ethereal or astro body instead of a physical one. It is like your physical body, only it isn't physical. Also, there has been a misconception about the spirit and the soul. The two do not combine after death."

"Heredity has no argument with reincarnation. You choose your parents and will have their characteristics. But the soul is yours," she said.

Mrs. Broman said that palm readers today claim they can determine your pattern of reincarnation by the lines in your left hand.

"The left is what you come into the world with, the right is what you're doing now," she said.

She added that whatever mistakes a person has made in past lives, he must come back to clear up.

"Your fate after death will depend on what you believe. If you think you'll go to Heaven, you will. If you think you'll go to Hell, you will. When you want to leave Hell, you can come back and clear up your errors and when you attain a high enough place in Heaven, you won't be reincarnated again. But not many people have attained this."

"There also will come a day when the cycle of reincarnation will stop."

"THIS DAY is near. That's what the souls are all waiting for now. The second coming of Christ," she said.

After her talk on reincarnation, Mrs. Broman selected certain mothers out of the audience and by feeling a piece of jewelry they each gave her, she gave them a psychic reading.

She promised, however, that she wouldn't tell the women anything unpleasant or embarrassing.

The first gal's reading was: "There's a surprise waiting for you when you go home. You've been waiting for this a long time. It happened while you were away and it has to do with money. Also, a personal problem you have will be solved this year."

The second gal: "You're a nice lady. You're very kind. You do a lot of things for other people. Something good is going to happen to your daughter. She has trouble with her leg and it's going to get worse and scare you, but it will pass and isn't as serious as you think."

The third gal: "Lord you have a good time! I envy you. You enjoy yourself very much. You have great control. Your husband is going to get a great new job at the end of November and make lots more money. Call and tell me whether I'm nuts or not."

And the fourth gal: "You have great emotion tied up with this ring. A person giving you trouble now is going to walk out of your life and the trouble will pass."

Illiteracy: National Shame

by MARCELO LINS

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—A huge billboard poster showing a giant thumb print says: "This is the signature of millions of Brazilians. Teach reading and writing, you also are responsible."

The poster is one part of a massive government literacy campaign to eradicate what President Emílio Garrastazu Médici calls a "national shame"—the fact that 30 per cent of Brazil's 90 million inhabitants cannot read or write.

The campaign, Brazilian Movement of Alphabetization (Movimento Brasileiro de Alfabetização, or MOBRAL), was launched on the International Day of Alphabetization, Sept. 8, an event described by President Médici as "the happiest moment of my government."

About $70,250 has been allotted to MOBRAL for 1971-73. Funds are provided from government financing, and private contributions. Businesses may deduct contributions from income taxes.

"WITH THIS MONEY we'll teach 237,161 illiterates," MOBRAL's executive secretary, the Rev. Felipe Spotorno, told United Press International.

MOBRAL will function largely through voluntary participation of the people. To win support the government is utilizing radio, television, newspapers and street posters to get the message across, and appeals are being made to all who know their "three R's" to teach.

Spotorno, 42, said that MOBRAL in the first month signed agreements with 218 municipalities. Every municipality chooses a literacy "commission" formed by a president, secretary, coordinator, inspectors, and teachers.

The commissions carry on their own fund raising campaigns to pay teachers and buy school material. Churches, clubs, residences, and public buildings are being requested to function as posts to teach illiterates. MOBRAL's funds only partly pay teachers, finance publicity, and help initial steps in each community.

"FOR THE FIRST time the communities have their own role in the solution of the national problems, and they have autonomy in their actions," Spotorno said.

The first effort of MOBRAL is being directed at urban centers, with expansion to the rural areas planned after three years.

Mario Henrique Simonsen, a 39-year old economist, author and banker, who heads MOBRAL is president, said, "there are more material and human resources in the cities, where social pressures force the man to attend school, than in the rural areas."

The rural areas, where about 68 per cent of Brazil's illiterates are concentrated, "where left for the second phase of the movement, when its initial failures will be overcome," Simonsen said.

President Médici said, "MOBRAL will last while there are illiterates and lack of professionalization in the country."

Brazil's illiteracy had decreased proportionate to population since 1940, although statistically more people are illiterate today than 30 years ago.

In 1940 about 24 million of Brazil's 41 million inhabitants were illiterates, which represented 58 per cent of the population. In 1970, Brazil had approximately 90 million inhabitants and 30 per cent, or 27 million persons, were illiterate, according to national statistics.

'Trick-Or-Treat' For UNICEF

This Halloween Saturday, Oct. 31, youngsters throughout the Northwest suburbs will be Trick or Treating for UNICEF, the United Nations Children's Fund.

Since 1950, when a small group of Philadelphia children began it all with a $17 collection, UNICEF's Trick or Treat campaigns have expanded into rural villages, towns and metropolitan areas in all of the 50 states as well as on military bases both here and in Europe and Asia.

Since 1967, Oct. 31 has been designated National UNICEF Day. Last year the coins and dollar bills dropped into those black and orange UNICEF cartons total led $3,250,000.

UNICEF's programs in health, nutrition and education are helping to win the long-range wars against hunger, disease and poverty that afflict the children in 112 developing countries in Africa, Asia, Latin America and the Middle East.

Nurses May Earn Loan Credits

Any nurse who obtained a government student loan while in nursing school may earn credit toward cancellation of that loan by working in a Veterans Administration hospital.

Dr. John Chase, VA assistant chief medical director for medical services, said 120 VA hospitals meet the requirements relating to cancellation of student loans and that hospitals will be added to the eligible list when a survey they are now taking is completed.

Employment must have been for 12 consecutive months beginning on or after Sept. 1, 1968.

Information on the loan cancellations and the necessary forms may be obtained from the school of nursing through which each loan was obtained, said Dr. Chase.

More than 15,000 nurses are employed in VA's nationwide system of hospitals. Because of new specialized medical programs at larger VA hospitals, employment for both professional and practical nurses exist in VA hospitals located in the Chicago area.

What! Neurotic Autos?

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI)—So you don't think an automobile can be neurotic?

It can, according to Samuel S. Lestz of the mechanical engineering department at the Pennsylvania State University. Lestz and his associates have developed a kind of mechanical version of a Sigmund Freud treatment for automobiles.

The sweetest-sounding, best-tuned automobile is neurotic because of its highly temperamental operation including the combustion process which varies from cycle to cycle. But now a relationship has been established between this variability and automobile exhaust pollution.

Like a skillful neurotic, a purring automobile engine masks its irregularities from drivers. The motor sounds fine. If it is in good repair it delivers power.

In an average six-cylinder car going 50 miles an hour, each cylinder goes through a complete cycle 1,275 times a minute. This is a total of 7,650 cycles a minute, or 10,200 cycles in an eight-cylinder car.

But no two cycles are precisely the same. All differ in cylinder pressures developed. Lestz and his associates have proved they differ in the amount of exhaust emissions they send on into the atmosphere. Some cycles burn clean, some burn dirty.

"If we could stabilize combustion around the cleanest burning cycle, we could reduce objectionable emissions," Lestz said.

The Penn State team has found the cause of the "neurosis"—it lies in the quality of the air-fuel mixture that is near the spark gap at the time of ignition.

The combustion chamber in an internal combustion engine is filled with a mixture of air and vaporized fuel. This is then compressed by the piston into a volume no bigger than a couple of packs of cigarettes, and potentially almost as hazardous to your health.

When ignition occurs, a flame front spreads out from the ignition point until the vapor in the entire chamber is burned. The resulting release of energy forces the piston back and power develops.

Engineers have learned that the flame-front spread depends on the turbulence of the compressed vapor, in fact, combustion chambers have been designed to accentuate this turbulence.

The Penn State research proved it is the turbulence condition in the vicinity of the spark that determines how the whole operation proceeds. Until now this had not been verified.

WHS Teachers Attend Symposium

Win at Bridge

by OSWALD AND JAMES JACOBY

Old man Z, who used to play all the dummies in auction bridge columns, has started playing duplicate every Thursday. His one requirement is that he sit South, since he always played in that position in the old days.

North wanted to play JACOBY MODERN. Z complained that in his day conventions were something for political parties and large organizations, but he had looked over JACOBY MODERN and it seemed to be the simplest system currently available, so he would try it.

His two-heart response showed 4-6 high-card points. His partner bid three trumps until he realized that he was going to play the heart contract. He was delighted to hear his partner's six bid but wasn't at all pleased with the opening lead.

Without a trump lead, it would have been a simple matter to ruff three of dummy's spades with his three trumps. Now he had a choice of ways to go after his contract.

The simple way would be to let the lead come around to his 10 and take a spade finesse.

Z never tried simple plays. His experience as the star of the auction bridge columns had taught him that simple plays didn't work for him.

Therefore, Z won the trick in dummy and led dummy's singleton club. East ducked without a quiver and Z, who never misguessed in his youth, wasn't going to start misguessing in his old age. He went up with the king of clubs, tried the spade finesse in an effort to make seven and settled for ruffing out the 10 and six of spades.

He made his contract after the finesse lost.

From Forest Hospital

Psychiatry Under Socialized Medicine

This is a weekly column presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines, a fully-accredited 135-bed psychiatric hospital, known for its intensive programs in psychiatric treatment, research, education, and community service.

How does psychiatric care work under socialized medicine?

Part-time psychiatric hospitalization and other forms of psychiatric care under National Health Insurance in Great Britain are described by Dr. John Buckman of Virginia, assistant professor of psychiatry at the University of Virginia Medical School. Buckman was trained in London, graduated from London University, and served in several British hospitals prior to coming to the United States.

While at Marlboro Hospital in London, Buckman found that the vast majority of patients did not need full-time in-patient care, and discovered that a number of them, no matter how sick they were, could survive in the community if they could receive treatment either during the day, so they could return home at night, or if they received some supportive treatment in the evening which allowed them to stay for the night. They could, in fact, continue work. A different group of patients, who could not under any circumstances take any time off from work, were brought in just for weekend treatment specifically. This would include people who were in full-time employment, or self-employed, and people who lived some distance from town and could only come in for weekends.

BUCKMAN NOTES that because their treatment was entirely part of British National Medical Care, these people were not paying for their hospitalization and their own psychiatric care.

Although treatment in so-called "national" hospitals is excellent, Buckman states that in psychiatry and in all specialties in England more and more patients every year do insist on private treatment, even though they are already paying for the treatment through income tax. In private treatment they feel that they are getting something separate, or different and most of them believe that patients should have to pay for their psychotherapy. "They want some way to contribute, not just have the experience of being fed."

Describing the "shift hospital" as a hospital which provides day-care, night-care, and weekend care, on the same premises, Buckman tells of Marlboro Hospital where on very small premises the staff was able to treat an enormous number of out-patients and a very small number of in-patients, with many beds used three times in every 24 hours. There were patients who came in for treatment in the morning, some came in the evening and would stay for group therapy and then just sleep there.

SOME PATIENTS would come and have physical treatment or they might come for electro-shock and afterwards they would spend a day in bed or the night in bed and then go to work the following morning. This, they found, was the most economical way of using the premises and the facilities.

In total, Marlboro had 45 patients for 15 beds, plus many more people who were treated as out-patients.

This small hospital which had a medical staff of 13 part-time psychiatrists, had a yearly new intake of about 600 patients per year and about 40,000 patient attendances per year.

Joint Tenancy Not Always Best

Joint tenancy is a popular, although not always desirable, way for married couples to own property, according to the Illinois State Bar Association (ISBA), which has published a free pamphlet on the subject.

As defined in the pamphlet, which is available on request to the ISBA Springfield, Illinois (62701), joint tenancy "creates joint ownership in real or personal property so that upon the death of one joint tenant the decedent's interest in the property terminates and this interest passes to the surviving joint tenant or joint tenants."

This means that if husband and wife hold ownership of a house, automobile, bank account, or other assets in joint tenancy with full right of survivorship, the property will pass automatically to the survivor upon the death of one spouse, and is not subject to probate as part of the deceased's estate. Because of its common usage by husband and wife, the ISBA observes, the legal effects of joint tenancy should be fully understood.

The pamphlet lists these advantages of joint tenancy:

A surviving joint tenant takes over ownership of the property without the necessity of legal proceedings or estate administration. If a bank account is held in joint tenancy, a widow does not have to worry about being short of cash since ordinarily she can continue to draw on the account after only a short delay.

JOINT TENANCY, in the case of real estate, is easily created, involving only the small cost of having an attorney draw up the necessary deeds. Also, real estate held in joint tenancy does not become subject to liens or claims by a deceased joint tenant's creditors.

Finally, if husband and wife own property in joint tenancy, this tends to cement the marital bond and gives the wife a sense of security and a feeling that she is a partner in financial as well as domestic matters.

At the same time, the ISBA pamphlet cites the following disadvantages:

There is no provision in a joint tenancy for other beneficiaries after both husband and wife are dead. For this reason, joint tenants also should have wills which take into account all property, including that held in joint tenancy.

NEITHER JOINT TENANT is sole owner of the property while both are alive. While dual ownership of a home and car is not likely to create discord, husbands and wives may disagree over how to use bank accounts, stocks, bonds and similar assets.

The survivor may not be able to manage the estate properly. A widow left with stocks she has held jointly with her husband may be headed for financial disaster if she knows nothing about the stock market.

Also, in the case of larger estates, a joint tenancy can cause tax problems and in the final analysis prove to be more expensive than other methods for distributing property upon death.

However, the ISBA adds, the disadvantages do not mean that joint tenancy should not be used, but only that it should be employed cautiously and with full awareness of the "pros" and "cons."

Ross To Talk To Accountants

Norman Ross, a radio and television personality, will address the membership of the Chicago chapter of the National Association of Accountants.

He will make his address tomorrow night during the chapter's dinner meeting at the Furniture Club in Chicago. Dinner will be served at 6:15 p.m., followed by a meeting at 7:15 p.m.

The title of Ross' talk is "Youth Around the World." In his address he will discuss his experiences with young people both in the United States and around the world.

Ross is a graduate of Stanford University. He was working toward his doctorate in Sino-Soviet relations at Trinity College in England when his father's death forced him to return to the United States. It was then that he began his work in radio, television and newspapers.

His awards include the Medal for Distinguished Service of the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences and the George Foster Peabody Broadcasting Award.

Harper College Board To Meet

The Harper College board, meeting at 8 p.m. today at the college, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine, will hear two curricular reports.

The reports will cover developments in the Communications and Math and Physical Science Divisions.

In the only other agenda business, the board will discuss awarding a bid for a study of the college's five township district.

The Lighter Side

Burning 'Blazed Smut'

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON UPI — Before you can write intelligently about any given issue, you must understand the people involved. The best way to do that is to put yourself in their place and look at the matter from their side.

Which is why I decided the other day to burn a book.

A book-burning controversy has arisen, symbolically at least, in connection with various proposals to suppress pornography. These moves have been denounced in some quarters as a form of book burning.

Feeling that the experience of actually burning a book might help me see this issue in better perspective, I began searching my bookshelves for a volume suitable for incineration. Right away I encountered problems.

IDEALLY, I FIGURED, the book should be of the type that appeals to prurient interests. But my library proved devoid of racy literature, give or take "Origin of Species" by Charles Darwin, who was the Jacqueline Susann of his day.

For sentimental reasons I couldn't bear to part with "The Five Little Peppers and How they Grew." And I certainly wouldn't burn my all-time favorite novel, "Girl of the Limberlost."

After long deliberation I finally concluded that the most appropriate book to burn would be a cookbook.

One cookbook in particular seemed to recommend itself — "How to Gorge George without Fattening Fanny." The anatomical double-entendre in the title made it sound rather wicked.

Furthermore, the author of the work, Nancy Gould, is a beautiful former model. And we all know about them!

ONCE THE DECISION was made, however, another problem arose. I discovered that burning a book is not as easy as it might sound. You can't simply put a match to the fly leaf and then stand back and watch the whole thing go up in smoke.

Miss Gould's book, which I assume is typical, would burn briefly and then go out. There seemed to be an excessive amount of smoke, particularly, in the chapter on souffles. Even with the help of charcoal lighter I used up nearly an entire pack of matches.

At that rate, I concluded, it would take longer to burn a dirty book than it takes to read it. Or maybe write it.

Based on my experience, then, I would say that the anti-pornography campaign is unlikely to lead to widespread book-burning. Unless someone publishes a cookbook that includes a recipe for blazed smut.

Classes Set For Parents-To-Be

Expectant parents are invited to enroll in a four-week series of free classes at Holy Family hospital, Des Plaines. The first class will be held Thursday, Oct. 29, at 7 p.m. The course will continue for three consecutive weeks on Thursday nights, Nov. 5, 12 and 19.

Classes will be conducted by nursing service members of the obstetrical department.

Both mothers and fathers-to-be are invited to attend the 2-hour sessions. The couples will take a tour through the hospital obstetrical department to become pre-acquainted with hospital procedure. They will also hear lectures and see films on prenatal care for the mother, hospital stay, diet for the pregnant and nursing mother, clothing needs for the newborn and care of the baby.

Parents who are anticipating adoption are invited to the Nov. 19 class to learn to care for their adopted infant.

Pre-registration is encouraged. Please call 289-2281, Ext. 824. Interested parents may come to the reception desk where they will be directed to the classroom.

Walkin' the Sidelines

by PAUL LOGAN

A Little About A Lot Of Things . . .

SMASHING A RECORD — an exciting occasion for both fans and participants alike.

Two of the more prestigious offensive marks that should fall by the sidelines are the career receiving total and the single season rushing mark.

Casey Rush, Prospect's all-state contender at left end, is only six catches away from breaking Chris Andriano's three-year mark of 66 set last year. Rushing, who had 38 last season to go with 23 so far this year, could bump the former Palatine star Friday against Forest View.

Should he accomplish this, he still would have a couple of other records to aim at — most receptions in a season (41), most touchdown passes in a season (6) and most yards in receiving (518). The latter mark is presently held by Rush.

The other potential record breaker is Arlington's roadrunner, Scott Douglas. Aided by his shattering show last Friday night when he ran for 280 yards, this senior scabbard moved closer to the single season mark held by Jim "Quick Draw" McGraw. This former standout from Conant rolled up 783 yards last year.

Douglas already has 610 yards in five games with three more MSL contests to go. So all the 5-6, 155-pounder needs is 65 yards a game to earn his place on the star-studded list.

HARPER COLLEGE'S campus is beginning to take on the athletic look on its southwest corner.

The baseball diamond will be ready for play next spring with the recent addition of a backstop, sodding and general field work completed.

Next on the agenda, weather permitting, will be the work on a future rubberized asphalt track and a 10-court tennis layout.

The track will be similar to Forest View's, according to John Gelch, Harper's athletic director.

"From our standpoint, we would hope to get a lot of this ground work out of the way this fall," Gelch said. "But we can't do anything until the weather clears up."

Of the new additions, Gelch added this: "We're pretty happy with this. It's going to add a lot to our physical education and athletic program. It also gives a nice appearance and look to the campus."

JACK BASTABLE, former Wheeling High School football star, experienced a disappointing day on national television Saturday.

Bastable — the top punter, kickoff specialist and field goal kicker for the University of Missouri — was off in one department (three-pointers) and it helped ruin his national debut.

Twice the Tigers' usually steady place kicker was wide of the mark from 37 yards out in the first half while Notre Dame managed a 22-yarder to lead 3-0. Missouri went on to take the lead only to see the powerful, predictable Irish offense grind out another victory.

Bastable is proud to have earned a place on this major college team, but added this about the Notre Dame confrontation:

"I'm disappointed the way things turned out the way they did. Notre Dame is by far the best team we've faced. All week long we were confident we could beat them... we weren't afraid."

Jack's foot may have failed him in this pressure-packed game, but he is only a sophomore and will probably have several more shots before the national TV eye.

And as soon as Coach Dan Devine realizes Bastable's potential as a ball carrier, receiver and option passer, maybe Missouri will start playing better than .500 football (3-3).

Television fans: Jack will be back.

HERSEY'S JUNIOR varsity defensive team should be nicknamed the "Zippers"

Scott Douglas

after recording an impressive five straight shutouts so far this season.

The Jayvee Huskies have outscored their opponents 111-0 and this is how they did it:

Hersey 19, Elgin "Zip," Hersey 14, Elk Grove "Zip," Hersey 21, Forest View "Zip," Hersey 30, Palatine "Zip," and Hersey 27, Arlington "Zip."

Two coaches — Bruce Glover and Dan Thyeen — are the guiding hands behind this stellar record which is hardly a fluke. Last year the Huskies outscored the opposition 180-20, went 9-0 and posted two whitewashes to finish out the season. So Glover-Thyeen coached teams have recorded 28 straight shutout quarters.

Over the past year and a half only three of the 13 teams they've played have scored!

ning 18-45 and the Pirates winning 20-39.

Forest View also won the meet with Palatine's freshmen, 18-44. But both teams whipped Niles by scores of 16-47 and 21-36, respectively.

Palatine Tops Falcons For 5-4 League Mark

Palatine's cross country team landed a tie for fifth place with Conant in the Mid-Suburban League as a result of its 21-34 victory at Forest View Tuesday.

The Pirates and Falcons, presently sharpening up for the conference meet on Saturday at Conant's Pure Oil course, finished with league records of 5-4 and 3-6, respectively.

Leading the Palatine charge to the chute was Brian Barnett with a record shattering time of 14:17. The old Falcon course record was set earlier this season by Scott Teuber of Arlington.

The other Pirates that figured in the scoring were Fred Miller with second (14:26), Steve Peterson in third (14:47), John Geary in sixth (15:04) and Scott Williams in ninth (15:18).

Forest View was led by Ted Francis' fourth place finish (14:53). Then came Scott McGovney in fifth (14:59), Bill Bates in seventh (15:04), Steve Tyk in eighth (14:13) and Rick Sales in 10th (15:29).

Also running against these two MSL teams was Niles East of the Suburban League. Both crushed the Trojans by 15-58 scores.

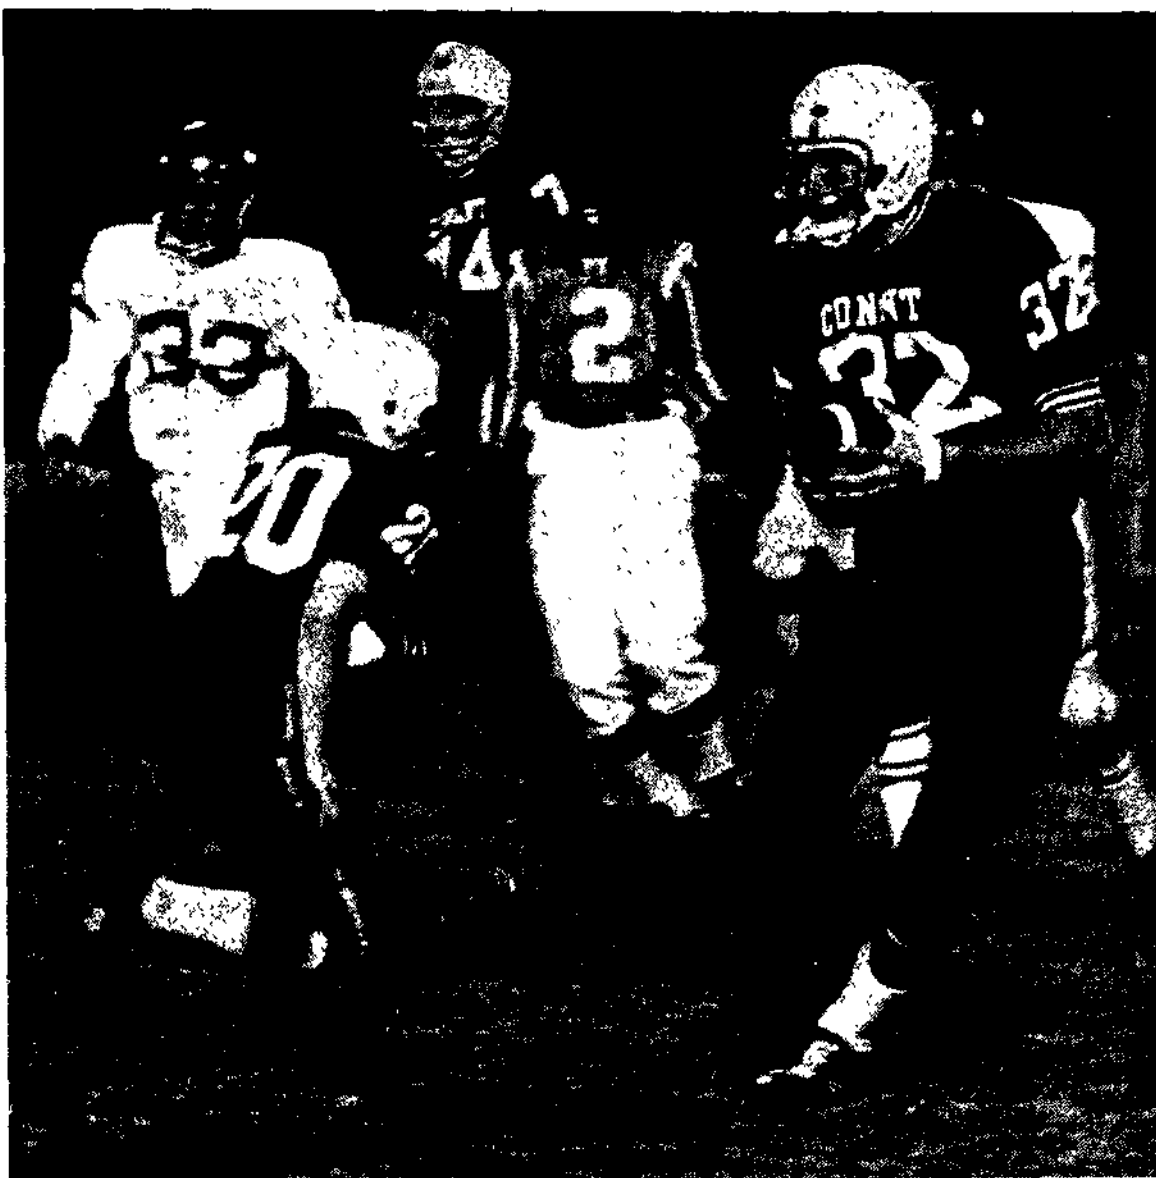

Forest View managed to stay alive in the fight for the sophomore league title with a 22-33 victory over Palatine. The Falcons now take a 7-2 record into the conference meet with Arlington being the team to beat with a 7-1 mark. Rick Jensen led the winners with a 10:01.

Both teams also defeated Niles on the sophomore level with the Falcons win-

POWERFUL FREMD, defending state cross country champion, will vie for official Mid-Suburban League honors Saturday and then launch its state bid Tuesday in the district run. Two key performers on the Viking squad are Bill and Jim Jarocki, shown here in the Libertyville Invitational last Saturday morning.

OFF AND RUNNING on one of his best gains of the night is Conant fullback Jerry O'Malley with teammates Rich Gallas (20) and Chester Pudlosky (74) nearby and Palatine's Andy Knotek (33) pursuing. O'Malley did a fine job of filling in for John Whiteford, gaining 39 yards in eight carries. Conant edged Palatine in the Cougars' first night home game, 16-14.

Fremd Finishes With 9-0 Record

Fremd's cross country squad rounded out a perfect slate Tuesday by making Hersey their ninth victim in as many conference meets.

The final verdict was 15-48. It was the sixth time among those nine duals that the Vikings had come through the chute 1-2-3-4-5.

Dan Pittenger, Bill Jarocki and Wally Spiniolas all flashed home within a second's time to pace the assault, which was conducted on Fremd's home course. Pittenger recorded the victory at 14:29.9 with Jarocki taking second and Spiniolas third, although the latter two both were clocked at 14:30.

Mike Pitchell and Jim Jarocki were next across the finish line, followed by Frank Walsworth of the Huskies at 14:44. Fremd then slipped in a few more, led by Bill Gross.

Rounding out scoring for Wheeling were Rich Ohle in tenth, Mike Albanese 11th, Brian Zimmer 13th, and Tom Black 15th. The defeat left the Huskies with a 1-8 final loop log.

In the soph phase of the meet, things were somewhat brighter for the guests. John Jones picked up his seventh blue ribbon and help his Hersey teammates to a 26-31 decision that allowed them to finish in a tie with the Vikings at 5-4 on the circuit ladder.

Fremd completed another perfect record in the frosh runoff. Behind Mike Rohrer's individual win, the hosts posted a 15-47 romp to end up with an 8-0 mark.

Elk Grove Nips Prospect, 28-29

Elk Grove's varsity cross country team should have thrown in the towel two weeks ago when soph sensation Damian Archbold broke his toe.

The Grenadiers survived two meets without Archbold and when he assured coach Gerry Woollard that he was ready after only a week's layoff, the Grove capped a very successful season by edging highly touted Prospect, 28-29.

Archbold was a surprising fifth place finisher in the meet that boiled down to each team's fifth man. The Knights ruled the early going with steady Ron Hankel (14:11) and Mark Tamsen (14:30) breaking the tape ahead of the Grenadier harriers.

Brian Powell, another of Woollard's super-sophs, put the first points on the board for the Grove with a third in 14:35. Senior teammate Pat Dunning followed in 14:46 before Archbold entered in 14:42.

The pendulum swung back and forth when Knight Dan Young came through in sixth in 14:56 with Grove's Mike Bachus shadowing in 15:02. Prospect's Tony Brocato became their fourth man in at 15:05, but it was all Green after that.

Grenadier Larry Cyrier produced the winning points in 15:09 for a 10th place finish, but teammates Jim Ottinger (15:11), Tom Ziffra (15:12), and Greg Dziem (15:20) added frosting to the cake.

George Busse, the Knights' fifth man into the chute, was 14th overall in 15:28. The victory pushed Elk Grove's conference season dual meet mark to a respectable 6-2-1 for third place in the final MSL standings. It was quite a reversal from the squad that finished 4-5 last season.

The Knights were shoved down to fourth place with a record of 6-3 behind the Grove, Arlington and Fremd.

Prospect dominated the lower level races with a 22-33 win behind the pace-setting standard of 10:42 by Mike Tyre. Knight Richard Redfiald led the freshmen across in 11:43 in Prospect's 12-36 triumph.

Arlington Routs Glenbard To Keep Title Hopes Alive

Arlington's cross country team maintained its slim hope of a share of the Mid-Suburban League title by racing past Glenbard North, 14-43, at Pioneer Park Tuesday.

The win boosted the Cardinals' conference record to 7-1-1 while the Panthers remained winless, 0-9-0.

Placing first for the eighth time in nine league starts was Scott Teuber with a 14:31 timing. His effort left him just two tenths of a second behind league leading Dan Pittenger of Fremd.

Taking the next four places in the sweep were these Cards of Coach Bruce Samore:

Tom Jarm with 14:47, Tim McGrath with 14:57, Mike Split with 15:01 and Scott Barnett with 15:02.

Tuley (15:21) and Schutte (16:32) were the two top men for Glenbard North.

The Arlington sophomore team, coached by Joe Vitton, finished first in dual meets with a 16-47 victory over the visitors. Leading the Cards to their 7-1 record was Bill Schmid with a winning time of 10:59.

Cougars Whip 'Cats 17-42 In League Harrier Finale

Conant grabbed off fifth place in the final Mid-Suburban League cross country standings and Wheeling finished eighth after their duel Tuesday at Conant's Union 76 headquarters course, which ended in a 17-42 Cougar victory.

In non-league action, Conant toppled Schaumburg 18-41 and Wheeling also defeated Schaumburg, 20-43.

Conant placed the top three runners in the race against Wheeling and all but one of the top eight. Steve Feutz, who has become a consistent winner this season and has the fourth best individual record in the league, was the winner with a 15:06 time.

Dave Guarino was second with 15:15 and Todd Miller third with 15:23 for the Cougars before the first Wheeling runner, John Johnson, with 15:33.

Other Conant runners were Gary Redker, fifth; Dave Jungwirth, sixth; and Rich Tolman, seventh. Others for Wheeling, in order from eighth through 13th, were Ron Shea, Glenn Larsen, Bryce Deiter, Bruce Frystak, Bill Schumann and Mike Schuster.

Schaumburg's top runner was Rick Staback, who was third overall.

Conant finished with a 5-4 record in league running while Wheeling was 2-7.

In sophomore action Conant edged

Wheeling 26-29. Schaumburg nipped Conant 29-29 and Schaumburg shaded Wheeling 26-30. Freshman Arnold Jackson of Schaumburg set a new course record with a winning time of 11:10, the best time ever for a freshman or sophomore.

Schaumburg's Mike Carey was second and John Schewikhoven fourth overall. Winner in the conference duel was Tod Waldron of Conant, who was third overall.

In frosh action, Conant whipped Wheeling 16-47 with John Bond of Conant the winner with 12:18.

Next action on the Union 76 course is the conference meet Saturday. That is the next event scheduled for MSL teams.

Flipping Phipps

Mike Phipps of Purdue last year attempted more passes than any other player in Big Ten history, 238. He also set records for most completions, 118; most passing yards, 1,599 and most touchdown passes, 13.

Mercury Levels Low

by JACK WOLISTON

NEW YORK (UPI) —Good news for sport fishermen—most angling waters in the United States are mercury-safe.

This statement comes from the Sport Fishing Institute which reported in a recent bulletin:

"Probably well over 90 per cent of America's inland waters would fail, on detailed sampling of their aquatic life, to yield fish that are contaminated with dangerous quantities of mercury.

"Evidently, the vast majority of fish from most waters will generally be found to contain considerably less than the amount of mercury currently stated by the Food and Drug Administration to represent critically dangerous concentration levels."

This dangerous level set by the FDA is more than 0.5 milligrams per kilogram (2.2 pounds) of fish flesh.

The SFI points out that Swedish authorities, who have studied the problem extensively, indicate that both humans and fishes are capable of excreting mercury from their systems at the rate of about 0.05 milligrams per 24-hour day.

The World Health Organization has recognized this fact, the SFI says, by recommending that the intake of mercury be kept below 0.05 milligrams in total daily food consumption, whatever the source.

"It is clear from such qualified authoritative admonishments that few anglers need fear the occasional eating of small portions of their catches... even if they come from waters that are moderately contaminated with mercury wastes," the SFI states.

"For example, in order to exceed an average safe intake level in total food of 0.05 milligrams of mercury per day, it would be necessary to eat a quantity of fish flesh amounting to 80 pounds per year—all of it containing the allowable maximum of 0.5 milligrams. Since no more than 60 per cent of each fish consists of edible flesh, this would represent more than 133 pounds of undressed whole fish."

THE SFI SAYS that, on the average, about 90 per cent of each angler's catch is consumed by himself and family, friends and neighbors.

"On this basis, therefore," the SFI continues, "his yearly catch would probably have to be about 150 pounds—provided its consumption were spread more or less uniformly over the 12-month period—before he would face any real danger from mercury intake. Furthermore, virtually all of this catch would evidently have to come from inland waters.

"By comparison, however, freshwater anglers are estimated to catch on the average only about 23 pounds of fish annually. This average yearly catch is less than one-sixth the amount required (assuming all of it contained the FDA's maximum allowable mercury level) to reach the evident danger point."

The SFI report concludes that "it is evident that most fish occurring in the vast majority of fishing waters throughout America—well over 90 per cent nationwide—are quite safe by comparison to the FDA standard of acceptability.

"It is also clear that this would be equally true even if the current standards were revised downward by as much as 50 per cent, a possibility we understand is under some consideration."

PHEASANT IN THE field is almost as good as it is on the table, but the combination of hunt and feast is irresistible. Season opens in Wisconsin on Saturday, and in Illinois on Nov. 14. All you need is endurance, a good eye, trusty shotgun and possibly a good bird dog like a Brittany Spaniel — and a desire for a pheasant dinner.

Drawback

The Way We See It

Prefer Woods Over Dunne

Cook County voters face one of their most difficult election day decisions when they cast a ballot for president of the Cook County board of commissioners.

They can choose between Republican Joseph I. Woods, the outspoken sheriff of Cook County, or Democrat George W. Dunne, the incumbent who was named by the board to the presidency when Richard B. Ogilvie resigned to become governor of Illinois.

We are not fully pleased by the choice.

Woods' term as sheriff has been characterized by controversy and examples of bad judgment.

An example occurred several years ago when he dispatched sheriff's police to Gary, Ind., to help put down a disturbance. The sheriff's police have jurisdiction only in Cook County, and Woods' decision could have had far reaching legal consequences had any of his men been injured or had they injured someone.

An example of unprofessional behavior came this year when he spoke to the Elk Grove Township Republican Organization, displayed pictures of the Conspiracy Seven defendants and ridiculed them because their long hair had been shorn in Cook County Jail.

Woods also has attempted to create a volunteer posse to combat rioters and has distributed badges and guns to part-time deputies.

Dunne's candidacy also raises serious questions, although of a different nature.

He has been president of the board for two years after serving as chairman of the finance committee, most important committee on the board, and has gained valuable administrative experience.

However, Dunne is a very close political ally of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley and is an important man in the Cook County Democratic Organization. Dunne has shown party line tendencies, including a preoccupation with Chicago and a lack of understanding of the major impact of the suburbs on Cook County government.

The choice, then, is a difficult one.

Illinois' Constitution specifies the county board shall consist of 10 Chicago commissioners and five suburban commissioners. The political complexion of Cook County translates that into 10 city-oriented Democrats and five suburban Republicans.

The president's position is the only check against total one-party, Chicago domination. The president is administratively responsible for many county services. He also has a veto power on the board.

It takes a vote of 12 commissioners to override a veto. That means a suburban president would be able to exercise some influence over the direction of county government even with 10 city commissioners.

After a rough campaign start, Woods has shown some awareness of suburban problems and needs. He has indicated his highest priority on the board would be development and implementation of a county master plan. The county board created a plan commission last year, but no action has been taken since then and Dunne, who has been president since that time, must take the blame for that.

We have argued for years the need for a master plan that would serve as a guideline for development of Cook County. Nowhere is that development coming faster than in the Northwest suburbs.

For these reasons, and because we feel it essential to have effective suburban representation on the county board, we recommend Joseph I. Woods as the better choice on Nov. 3.

Respect Elderly

I have just read the article from Deborah Klingbeil, of Arlington Heights and I would like to say that I very much agree with her views.

I, too, am working as a nurse's aide. I

Thanks . . . I Think

I was reading your editorial endorsing Regner, Schlickman, and Chapman when suddenly I came upon the sentence "Perhaps more tactful than the other two, Regner is nonetheless an effective legislator. . . ." I stopped and asked myself — what did they say? An effective legislator, yes, but tactful? Well, maybe I don't know what the word means, or maybe there's more than one meaning.

So, I got out my old trusty dictionary and low and behold it said what I thought the word meant — "in the habit of saying little; not fond of talking; inclined to silence."

WHOEVER WROTE this editorial must have some sense of humor, or they just moved here from the other side of the moon, or they don't know Dave Regner.

Great guy, good legislator, effective leader. . . I could go on and on praising Dave Regner but the one word that can never describe him is "tactful."

Thanks anyway for the endorsement. It was fun.

(Editor's Note: The editor's dictionary also includes "reserved" and "he said nothing until others had their say.") am working at the Des Plaines Convalescent Home located on Lee Street, Des Plaines.

Des Plaines Home has only women occupants and when talking to my friends I have come to refer to the ladies, as "my old ladies" because that's what they are. I love each and every one of them very much.

I WONDER JUST how many people really understand what it's like to be old. Have they ever heard an elderly person cry, "I want to go home. My mother will be worried." or "Nobody loves me." Or have they ever seen ladies sit and cry waiting for their husbands to come and get them, when their husbands are dead? No, I imagine not many people have, or else they wouldn't laugh at some comedy featuring old, senile people.

One thing that really distresses me is the fact that some of the ladies never receive visitors. It hurts me to see them cry. One of the women there has three daughters, and when they come every day, they say hello to everyone, not just their own mother. If only more people could see how their faces light up.

Many of the nurses there always buy things for the ladies. A birthday is never missed. The nurses there all treat each lady with kindness and understanding. The elderly people need this understanding, sometimes even more than others.

So, I wish that more people would begin to see the tastelessness of laughing at the comedies of the old, the senile and even the ill.

Excellent Newsmen

On behalf of the unit members of the Schaumburg Area Council of PTA's, I would like to express our deepest sympathy regarding the recent death of Don Braman. Being the prime reporter for The Herald concerning coverage of School Dist. 54, many of us came to know him quite well. He proved time and again not only the ability of an excellent newsmen, but also the interest and warmth of being a friend. Don was a true asset to your newspaper. He will be sorely missed at future school board meetings and PTA functions.

Palatine Today

Blocked Apartments Lost Chance

by MARTHA KOPER

It must be that time of year again. A part of Palatine is concerned about the Pebble Creek Golf Course property for at least the 47th time.

There's a new threat. Until now they didn't want towering skyscrapers (12-story buildings) and a lot of apartments and a few stores on the land.

Now, they don't want a sewage treatment plant brought to their neighborhood. That's understandable. Not many people like to live next door to that kind of thing.

Those who have opposed any kind of development of the land since apartment buildings first were mentioned deserve it.

THE VILLAGE board, which also is trying frantically to block the treatment plant, deserves it too. Village officials had their chance almost three years ago. It would have been beautifully simple to annex the 66-acre tract when Elmer Gleich, a local developer, wanted to build less than 600 apartments. Not only that, he was content to keep the size of the buildings to six stories.

Instead they listened with as little foresight as the objectors. It's almost impossible to believe they all really thought all threats would end when the Gleich annexation was denied.

It's an old story that's been told over and over again. But with each new incident involving the land I expect someone to listen and learn. No one has accomplished anything yet.

The surrounding homeowners who continue to object to everything must realize the end is in sight. It can't be denied they've managed to block any ground-breaking on the land for the past three or four years, but that can't go on forever. They should know that just by seeing how far proposals for the land have come.

GLEICH SOLD the property to Sellergren Brothers, Inc., developers from Park Ridge. Right there, the local touch was lost.

It was so far gone anyone could predict the number of apartments would double. It did and more than that, the height of the buildings doubled.

But that didn't scare anyone. They still continued to loudly object and quietly tell village officials they better not annex the land.

Without annexation they must have been naive enough to believe the project wouldn't be built because of the lack of water and sewer facilities.

Without annexation, Palatine's tax base won't increase either and that won't do anyone any good.

To no one's surprise except the objectors, word came of the sewage treatment plant. If Palatine didn't want to annex the land, Sellergren would show he has alternatives. Once again, the homeowners went up in smoke.

They say they're opposed to the treatment plant for ecological reasons. That's a timely excuse but I don't buy it.

If ecology was uppermost in their minds, that would mean they're thinking of the entire community. I don't think they are.

School Bus Plan 'Nothin' But Bad'

by ALAN AKERSON

Let's hope the proposal to bus high school students from Buffalo Grove and a small portion of Arlington Heights several miles to the new Rolling Meadows High School next year will die a quiet, quick death.

The plan is nothing but bad. The busing proposal was unveiled at a High School Dist. 214 meeting Oct. 12 by Evan Shull, a district instructional coordinator.

Specifically, it calls for the busing of high school students living in the Cooper Junior High School attendance area to the new Rolling Meadows High School when that facility opens next fall. Included in the Cooper area (Cooper is located in Buffalo Grove) is most of the Cook County portion of Buffalo Grove and a small part of northern Arlington Heights. The students in that area now attend overcrowded Wheeling High School.

THE BUSING, according to the plan, would end when an eighth high school is built. That high school, supposedly, will be erected on a 40-acre site now owned by Dist. 214 in Buffalo Grove.

For the most part, the plan was the idea of a group of residents from western Arlington Heights. Not coincidentally, the proposal would keep the present Arlington High School boundaries for the most part intact.

Probably the plan is great if you happen to live in the Arlington High School attendance area. But, if you're one of the several hundred Buffalo Grove area high school students, the plan leaves a lot to be desired.

The plan does nothing more than keep the Arlington High School boundaries intact at the unfair expense of Buffalo Grove residents.

The proposal could have another effect. The eighth high school cannot be built until a referendum for the sale of bonds is passed.

HAVING THEIR children bused to Rolling Meadows could certainly be an influence on Buffalo Grove parents to vote in favor of the referendum.

Thus far the proposal is just that — a proposal. In Buffalo Grove, village officials and residents alike are discussing the plan, and most of the discussion is in the negative.

Already the village board has gone on record opposing the idea. And Supt. Ken

Between the Lines

To Survey Lunch Preferences

by STEVE NOVICK

The school board in Dist. 54 finally woke up to the idea that, whether it is 10 degrees above zero or 10 degrees below, an elementary school student should not have to walk a mile, or more, round trip to eat a sandwich lunch and return to school.

The expanded cold weather lunch program adopted in Dist. 54 allows any students, regardless of weather conditions, to eat at school during December, January, February and March. One of his parents must be willing to supervise in the lunch program once each 30 school days to make the child eligible. The program, however, is an experiment.

School administrators are expected to the community. They will hopefully find out what is really wanted by residents concerning year round lunch hour facilities for all students.

IF A SURVEY of Schaumburg Township parents shows that lunch rooms and hot meals are wanted at local schools and that community members are willing to pay for the construction and administration of such facilities, the residents' desires should be realized.

The community, however, should be warned that a potential $22,000 price is fixed to carrying out the expanded four month eat-in-the-classroom program.

Realizing "proper" lunch facilities may be a real pocket drainer.

Severe weather is a good reason for mothers to want their children to remain at school. Mothers who work also have good reason to desire their child eat at school.

PARENTS, WHO are looking, however, to have the school system expand its facilities for feedings so Mom may have one less daily chore to perform, had better think twice.

Hearing a mother cry that she has a 10 month old at home who requires constant attention is not offering a good reason for having her school-ager eat lunch at school.

Working mothers in Dist. 54 have a program, operating privately for 11 cents per child per day, with the school board's blessing. Any group of parents wishing to start such a group is allowed to do so provided proper size, legal and insurance requirements are met.

It would be good to see students eating hot lunches in properly designed lunch room facilities. Minimizing the wear and tear on classrooms, and instituting a safe lunch hour playground program are other issues of concern.

It will be interesting to see how the school administrators gather their information and recommendations that will result.

IT WILL ALSO be nice to see the information available so that next year's hassle concerning a cold weather lunch program is satisfactorily initiated before the cold weather comes.

If the survey is completed early enough for proper consideration, perhaps the following year there may be no hassle at all.

Announcing the savings certificate that looks like a passbook, for people who like to watch their savings grow.

And doesn't everybody?

It's fun to watch things grow—particularly when it's your own money.
That's why the Bell savings certificate looks just like a passbook. At many savings places, you don't see how much your savings have grown until the end of the year. At Bell, you can watch your savings grow, every quarter and at the highest rate of interest.

We think it's more fun that way. And if you get your money to us by the 10th of the month, we'll pay you interest from the 1st.

FOUR OF Baird & Warner's top real estate sales personnel in the Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect area have achieved the million dollar sales mark. This was announced by Robert Walters, vice president and district sales manager in charge of the two offices, also one of the four sales personnel who achieved this goal. The three others are Margaret Christian, Harlan Jones and Howard Kagan.

THE FIRM OF Putta and Kelsey, Certified Public Accountants (CPA) in Arlington, recently merged with the company of McGladrey, Hansen, Dunn & Co., which has 23 offices in four states. General partners of the Putta and Kelsey firm include Lionel F. Lenz, CPA, Arlington Heights; John G. Putta, CPA, Barrington; Roland J. Kelsey, CPA, Barrington; Jack L. Wagar, CPA, Barrington; and Edward L. Streit, CPA, Crystal Lake.

JAMES BLACKBURN, president of the Assurance Agency in Arlington Heights, has been selected as one of 25 agents in the United States, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands to attend an agents advanced seminar this week at the Contimental Insurance Companies' New York City home office. Discussions and workshops are slated to encompass all phases of property and casualty insurance and suretyship.

NORTHWEST SUBURBAN Manufacturers Association has announced the addition of three new companies as members. Installed at the September meeting are Weldotron Corp., Rosemont; Camcraft, Inc., Franklin Park; and Merkle-Korff Gear Co., Franklin Park. The next regular meeting of the association will be Oct. 22 at the River Forest Country Club.

MRS. PETER DUNDERDALE of Buffalo Grove has been chosen by American Airlines to augment its women's sales program in the northern suburbs. Formerly a stewardess for the airline, she will be available to clubs and civic organizations for speeches. She has slides and motion picture to accompany her talks on travel and other subjects. Mrs. Dunderdale is a member of the Chicago Chapter of Kiwis, a group of former American Airlines stewardesses.

THE Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry has announced its support of the $750 million Clean Water bond issue, to be voted on in the Nov. 3 general election. The bond issue will provide for the state financing of municipalities and sanitary districts for the construction and upgrading of sewage treatment facilities.

Nuclear Data Tells First Half Income

Nuclear Data, Inc., Palatine, reported a 19 per cent increase in net income and 13.6 per cent increase in sales for six months ended Aug. 31, the first half of the current fiscal year.

Net income totaled $371,487, equal to 53 cents a common share, compared with $312,086, or 45 cents a share, in the corresponding period last year. Sales in this year's six-month period totaled $4,762,199 against $4,190,571 last year.

For the quarter ended Aug. 31, income was up 23.5 per cent to $197,772, or 28 cents a share, from $160,010, or 23 cents a share. The sales increase for the quarter was 16.3 per cent, this year's total being $2,485,275 against $2,137,051 the preceding fiscal year.

Richard J. Sandberg, president, reported that the company's overseas manufacturing company, Nuclear Data (Ireland), Ltd., shipped its first completed system in early September. Domestically, a highlight of the second quarter was the introduction of a general purpose mini-computer, the ND812, which has been incorporated into several systems aimed at new markets. Previously, the company's special purpose computers have been primarily for use in the physical science field.

Local Realtors Joined Previews

Buying real estate across the continent is now almost as simple as buying across the street, according to Donald D. Florence, president of F.B.K. Realtors, Inc., with offices in Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

The company recently joined Previews, Inc., of New York City. H. Bob Fawcett, president of Previews, Inc., which has specialized since 1933 in the marketing of diversified real estate, announced the participation of F.B.K., Inc. in the company's Broad Horizons program.

Florence cited four properties now available for investors in this area through Broad Horizons: The Chateau de Mercure, one of the Chateaux Hotels of France, on 50 acres, where an international executive training center is held twice annually;

A large beachfront tract on Antigua, favorite Caribbean island of thousands of Americans;

Also, 4,500 acres of farmland adjoining a Wisconsin state game preserve, for today's large-scale farmer, cattle feeder, or developer of recreational second homes;

The last big ranch in Santa Barbara, Calif., now in income avocado groves and grazing land, with residential zoning, within 1½ miles of a huge new shopping plaza.

Brochures with facts and illustrations of the four properties are available without charge from Florence.

The Broad Horizons program is a step taken by Previews Inc. to promote more widespread buying and selling of real estate through brokers, according to Fawcett and John C. Tysen, chairman of the Board of Previews Inc. Tysen has been elected to a second term as president of FIABCI, an international professional society of Realtors, which he helped to organize 21 years ago.

Society Darlings Need Managing

The importance of management in maintaining decent housing was stressed by Philip M. Klutznick in his talk last week in Chicago before the Apartment Council of Metropolitan Chicago.

Klutznick told the group of 250 members of the apartment industry that good neighborhoods, good buildings and good management are all necessary to solve America's housing problems. The trend and towards apartments, townhouses and away from the "free-standing house" and towards apartments, townhouses and condominiums, "the new darlings of society," makes the management issue even more pressing. The responsibility doesn't end with the sale, said Klutznick.

Klutznick, chairman of the board, Urban Investment and Development Co., which recently announced a quarter-billion dollar new town development in Lake County as well as a $60 million urban center on North Michigan Avenue, recalled his days as public housing administrator, stating that the management problem is not new. Public housing failed, he said, not because buildings were bad but because they were badly managed.

The easiest part is to build the housing, said Klutznick, while the maintenance of the environment and the building is hard to achieve, but necessary if the entire housing industry is to house all of the American people.

The Way To Better Service...

Sales Activity On The Upswing

A gradual but definite increase in the number of transferee home buyers has been noted by MAP Multiple Listing Real Estate Service, serving the Northwest Suburban area.

"Sales reports at a recent MAP board of directors meeting indicated this trend. In 1968 and early 1969, sales source figures showed a transient market of 28.9 per cent, or almost 30 families in every 100 listing their homes for sale.

Of this amount approximately 75 per cent of the families gave their reason for selling as a job position transfer.

In mid-1969, the report said, the initial tight mortgage money situation occurred. Reflected in a slowdown of personnel transfers, this caused a slight drop in sales activity. The percentage of transferee sales remained at approximately 80 per cent.

MAP reported that in the last three months, an upturn in sales activity including transferee sales, has been noted. One local real estate office reported a sales volume including 96 per cent transferee sales.

Also in the report, it was indicated that the average sales price by MAP Multiple Listing service brokers is $35,125, a record high for the area.

MAP Multiple Listing Real Estate Service is also in the process of conducting research in the home buying preferences of out-of-town buyers. Its findings indicate a 40.3 per cent preference for four-bedroom homes, and a large demand for family room or recreation room facilities, as well as a desire for homes located near schools and recreation areas.

The type of home preferred is colonial, followed by split levels and the ranch style home, according to the survey.

Paddock Publications, Inc.

Arlington Heights, Illinois

Gentlemen:

I want to take this opportunity to inform you of the excellent response we received from the two advertisements we placed in your publications on August 15 and 20.

As you know, we opened our Dawn Gate Community about a year ago during a rather depressed housing market. We used various media and other methods to promote the sale of these homes and lots with little success.

With four completed models and other vacant lots available, we decided to try your publications.

We immediately sold all four homes and several vacant homesites... more than a quarter million dollars in real estate.

Traffic was good on both weekends, and most were potential buyers. We are now convinced that if potential buyers are offered the right product through the right medium, that the home market is as good as ever.

After our success in the Sherrington, we immediately built another model, the Sherrington, which is open daily from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. The homes in Dawn Gate range from $54,000 to $100,000, and are situated in wooded, secluded home-sites in the Plum Grove area of Rolling Meadows.

Be assured we will use your newspapers in further promoting this development.

Sincerely,
Bill Kennedy

Training Program Launched

The Builders' Association of Chicago and United Builders Association today announced co-sponsorship of a program for the training and development of black, Spanish-speaking and other minority contractors.

According to the joint announcement, the priority of the 12-week construction management seminar program will be given to acquainting minority contractors with the operational and administrative techniques employed by successful building contractors.

The Builders' association of Chicago is a trade association of 180 general contractors from Cook, Lake and DuPage counties. The United Builders Association is an organization of black contractors and subcontractors.

The seminar program was formulated under the direction of a Black Sub-contractors liaison committee of the Builders' Association, under the chairmanship of Arthur F. O'Neil, chairman of the W. E. O'Neil Construction Co., in cooperation with Paul King, project director of the United Builders Association.

THE PROGRAM is expected to increase contacts between minority contractors and the Builders' Association and to increase the number of sub-contracts coming to minority sub-contractors.

According to O'Neil, the seminar program, which will be taught by BAC members and representatives of other business organizations, is designed to: Stimulate the Chicago area construction industry to furnish greater opportunity for minority group contractors through a program of technical assistance and education.

Encourage minority group contractors to increase their involvement in all areas of the industry, and to support this encouragement with administrative and technical training for functional application.

Help minority group contractors obtain greater opportunities in new construction.

The following facets of contractor operations will be studied: company finance; estimating and job cost; contracts; engineering application; purchasing and expediting; job planning; cost control; accounting; and field supervision and quality control.

Sessions will be held from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesday nights, Nov. 3 through Feb. 2. They will be held at the University of Illinois Circle Campus, 601 S. Morgan.

All contractors who wish to participate in the program may register with the United Builders Association at 3000 S.

Wentworth or by telephone (225-0600) from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Registration deadline is Tuesday, Oct. 27.

Twenty-five property sales in Mount Prospect took top volume honors in the latest monthly Elk Grove township real estate transfer report from County Recorder Sidney R. Olsen.

The report contained nine sales in Des Plaines, eight in Arlington Heights, and 19 in Elk Grove Village and the rest of the township.

Olsen recorded the following property transfers for the township. The list shows the purchase price of equity and does not include the amount of a mortgage which the purchaser may have assumed. Builders Seek New Codes

by LEA TONKIN

There'll be some changes made in the building industry, if plans shaped up last week at a statewide home builders meeting become a reality.

The strategy session was held in Olympia Fields to start lining up the support necessary for the adoption of a uniform building code in Illinois. Representatives of the Home Builders Association of Illinois (HBAI) and other builder groups attended the meeting.

Industry spokesmen agree the building industry is ready for a change in building codes. Originally written to insure a safe place to live for everyone, building codes have often been revised to exclude lower income groups or certain types of housing. As a result, the builder has to cope with several hundred variations of codes within the state.

"The biggest problem is the lack of uniformity," said Lynn Krause, legislative director for HBAI and secretary of the Home Builders Association of Chicago (HBAC). "Nobody knows from town to town what is required in building materials, and the consumer has been paying the price of using different materials in different areas to do the same job," he said.

Attacking the secondary problem of specification-type codes, builders seek a definition of what is to be achieved rather than how it is achieved, known as a performance code. According to the position paper of HBAC, "To keep pace with the rapid technological advances the citizens of Illinois must be free of hampering and restrictive requirements caused by rigid code specifications. Materials and construction standards, written in performance terminology... is the solution to this most serious problem."

Hoping to introduce uniform building code legislation in the next session early next year, HBAI has worked over a year on the proposed code. They, along with other groups in the construction industry, support the concept of the statewide code, although the final proposal is subject to modification.

If the measure is passed it will probably provide for a state council to review new materials on the basis of their performance as they are introduced. This is a contrast to the specifications codes requiring certain materials to be used.

According to Robert K. Widdicombe Jr., executive vice president of HBAC, "this would reduce the cost of housing. Some communities now use the codes to enforce higher costs and attract only a higher class of people," he said. "We need the materials to build houses safely without keeping out low income groups."

The consumer will benefit from a statewide performance code, builders contend. The use of this code would upgrade some community standards, according to Krause. In other communities, Krause said, there may be no effect on quality and safety, but the use of alternate materials could save the consumer over $2,000 on a $30,000 house.

The upgrading of building inspectors is another benefit of the proposed state code, according to Krause. Uniformity would enable inspectors to apply their knowledge in more than one municipality.

"THE MOST BENEFICIAL effect wouldn't show up for two or three years," said Krause. "Suppliers have been unwilling to do the research for new materials since they must gain acceptance from every municipality to use them. With a uniform code, suppliers could come up with beautiful new ideas the consumer could use."

Performance codes are tried and true, according to the Building Officials Conference of America, (BOCA) a not-for-profit organization which publishes a widely used performance-type code. Local municipalities using the BOCA code include Buffalo Grove, Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Schaumburg, Streamwood and Wheeling.

"A performance code, kept up to date, provides for the acceptance of new ideas," said Richard Sanderson, BOCA's executive director. "Local communities making the codes more stringent have been holding up industrialized housing." He noted that the uniform performance type building code would apply to conventional construction as well as modular construction and other new concepts.

BOCA and the Illinois Council of the American Institute of Architects are among the groups which have endorsed the concept of a uniform building code. Builders are also gaining the support of engineers and other groups related to the industry.

Opposition to the measure could come from local municipalities wishing to retain strict codes; labor union locals; and suppliers of certain construction materials.

Starting Medill Industry Center

Gladstone Realty is developing a four-acre tract in Franklin Park, to be known as the Medill Industrial Center.

The project, a multi-tenancy industrial development, will accommodate new moderate size users. It is the first such development since the enactment last year of the new industrial ordinance designed to encourage industrial growth. John L. Markay of Gladstone Realty said the firm has worked closely with the Franklin Park board of trustees and consulting engineer in the planning of the center.

Gladstone Realty retained Frank J. Muriello, real estate appraiser, as the consultant for the Medill Industrial Center.

Leasing of the project will be the responsibility of Jerry E. Sigman, manager of the industrial division of Gladstone Realty.

Completion of over 43,000 square feet is slated for November of this year.

Financing was arranged through Broadview Savings & Loan Association, represented by Livio A. Valli, executive vice president.

Gladstone Realty has offices in Franklin Park, Des Plaines and Elk Grove Village.

Serves On Company Civic Committee

Richard C. Curtis of 2014 Cardinal Drive, Rolling Meadows, is serving as a member of the Civic Campaign Committee of Commonwealth Edison Co.

He has been made a member of a subcommittee which is soliciting contributions from the employees at Edison's northern division office, 1000 Skokie Blvd., Northbrook, during the annual Crusade of Mercy campaign.

The drive, which began in mid-September is being conducted in all the company's divisions.

Save Money as You Sleep

You can play a part in controlling your fuel bills this winter.

It only takes a few minutes and a few preparations to winterize your home and to keep your home heating system operating efficiently all winter long.

Northern Illinois Gas Co. has offered these hints to help you conserve fuel and keep a check on your fuel bills this winter.

Use nature to its best advantage. Sunshine is free, and it's warm — so, when the sun is shining, open up window blinds, shades and curtains and let the sun shine in. When the sun goes down or doesn't shine, keep window coverings closed, and let them form an insulation against the cold air outside.

If you have a fireplace, be sure the damper is closed when it isn't in use.

Try to keep the opening and closing of doors to the outside at a minimum. Each time an outside door opens, heat escapes, and the furnace has to work overtime to replace the lost heat.

Keep heaters free from obstructions. If you cover a radiator or block off a heat duct, the heat from that source is cut off and the room temperature will drop.

A great way to waste money is to get into the habit of constantly adjusting the thermostat. Contrary to popular belief, turning up the thermostat doesn't make the furnace produce any more heat — what it does is keep the furnace operating longer, using up more fuel.

Set the thermostat at the temperature you want, and leave it there. If it is operating properly, the thermostat will automatically turn itself on and off.

You can economize while you sleep by turning the thermostat down 5 to 10 degrees. If you do this regularly, you'll save on fuel costs.

Experiment for the first few cold days to find the coolest indoor temperature at which your home is comfortable. Heating costs increase about three per cent for every degree above 70 degrees that you set your thermostat. So, if you keep your thermostat set at 70 degrees for a month, your heating bill will be around 30 per cent lower than if you kept it set at 80 degrees.

Change your furnace filter several times during the winter. If the filter is dirty, the furnace may operate all day long, especially during very cold weather, and still not be able to work efficiently.

If there are some rooms in your home that are not used in winter, turn off the registers and radiators in those rooms and keep the door closed. There's no need to heat an unused room. And, if your basement, attic or garage isn't heated, keep the door closed so that the heat from the heated part of the house won't escape.

For safety reasons, never use your gas range or oven to heat your kitchen. This is not only costly but, since you are using your appliance to do something it was not designed to do, it may be unsafe.

Code Revisions Boost Industry

Modernization of Chicago's building code in keeping with new developments in technology should greatly aid the construction industry, Chicago building commissioner Joseph F. Fitzgerald told the quarterly membership meeting of the Builders' Association of Chicago.

Some 200 general contractors meeting at the Continental Plaza hotel heard the commissioner outline the code changes that have already been made and those that are being considered.

Recent changes relate to exhibition halls, structural steel, caissons, glass area in schools, and day care centers. Now being considered are changes in engineered masonry construction, sound control, wrecking, plastics, and fire alarm systems in high rises.

He also asked that contractors feel free to contact his department with suggestions for code changes whenever they see possibilities for improvement.

Code changes are the responsibility of Mayor Daley's 30-man code committee, consisting of architects, builders, lawyers, engineers, union officials, and city representatives. Those approved are recommended to the City Council for adoption.

Fitzgerald also reported that his department had stepped up its efficiency in internal operations, administration, and code enforcement. Computerization and microfilming of records have led to improved operations.

As a result, the department has achieved a 400 per cent increase in violation notices, a 1,000 per cent increase in compliance board notices, and a 500 per cent increase in building violations sent to court.

Fitzgerald said the construction of new buildings must be matched by elimination of substandard conditions in older structures, and that he would welcome the cooperation of the public in this campaign.

Sola Reports On First Half

Sola Basic Industries, which has a facility in Elk Grove Village, reported net earnings per share for the first half of its fiscal year were up 18 per cent over the corresponding period last year on a slightly lower sales volume.

For the six-month period ended Sept. 30, net earnings were $1,636,345 or 53 cents a share in contrast with $1,411,668 or 45 cents per share a year earlier. Sales for the period were $47,900,243 down about 1 per cent from the year earlier figure of $48,217,852.

Second quarter performance also represented an improvement. Net earnings of $865,339 or 28 cents per share were up 15 per cent from $755,454 or 24 cents per share were up 15 per cent from $755,454 or 24 cents a share. Sales of $23,795,729 for the period were down 3 per cent from $24,420,291 the previous year.

Commenting on the results, Frank H. Roby, president, said: "We are pleased to see a continuing improvement in the company's profit margins, particularly in view of the slightly reduced volume. Lower second quarter shipments were a reflection of an erratic incoming order pattern that developed late in the first quarter."

Sola Basic Industries, headquartered in Milwaukee, Wis., has 16 domestic and 12 international plants. All are engaged in the production of electrical and electronic equipment for the distribution, control and use of electrical power.

Market Settles For New Houses

There are indications of an upswing in the number of new homes being built in the area.

The information comes from a survey of home builders belonging to the Northern Illinois Home Builders Association, headquartered in Wheaton.

The survey showed September was a good month for the builders, better than any all summer and the best of the year thus far for many.

This report comes from a telephone survey of builder members, conducted by Robert E. Langguth, executive vice president of the NHBPA.

The best part of the year for builders is the summer season, but in 1970 it was slow, Langguth said. In September, however, nearly two-thirds of the members called reporting the month as their best since summer started. Half of these builders went on to say September proved to be their best month of 1970 on the basis of the number of new homes begun.

Builders gave several reasons for this, Langguth said. The most common is that builders believe there has been a "settling of the market." Until recently, there was a wait-and-see attitude on the part of many prospective home owners, NHBPA members reported.

"Now people are becoming impatient with waiting and they have talked to enough people to have a pretty solid picture of the home building situation," Langguth said. "People are accepting the fact of higher interest rates and learning that with just a little shopping around they can find a home loan under reasonably good terms."

Fashionwise Bunch At Clearbrook Brunch

JIM MASON of Arlington Heights, founder of the "Clearbrook Symphony," plays a special tune for Dr. and Mrs. Richard Cameron of Palatine. Mrs. Cameron was co-chairman of the seventh annual Clearbrook Brunch held Sunday at Arlington Towers. From a handful of musicians, the band now numbers 17 players who donate their talents to Clearbrook.

Shades of the '30s and early '40s jumped right out of the past and into the '70s Sunday when Friends of Clearbrook Center held their seventh annual brunch, one of the most popular of area fund-raisers.

Fashionwise, there were the midis, the accepted hemline of the '30s — and the pant outfits, an accepted costume of the '70s — blended with the new "longer lengths." Only a handful of minis were to be seen.

Entertainmentwise, a genuine big band took guests back to the "good old days" when everyone danced to solid brass instead of amplified strings. Dubbed the "Clearbrook Symphony," the band members are area musicians, many of whom once played with such name bands as Tommy Dorsey and Glen Miller. They now play "just for fun" and their talents for the Clearbrook brunch are donated.

Like the brunch itself, the band has grown from a very small group. For the first brunch back in 1963 when a few hundred guests gathered in a basement room of the Arlington Carousel, a two-piece combo was the entertainment. The next year saw several additions to the band. Today the players number 17 and the guests number more than 600 who fill to capacity the spacious and elegant Jimmy Durante Room of Arlington Towers.

GROWTH OF THE Center has been dynamic. The idea for a community center for the retarded was conceived in 1956 by a small group of parents in Rolling Meadows. The first center was housed in a converted barn on the property of the Community Church of Rolling Meadows with mothers of the children as teachers.

As the school grew, it was housed in the new Community Church and then in First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights. In 1956 the school's very own building was opened in Rolling Meadows with a full complement of professional teachers.

It has evolved into a private, non-profit agency licensed by the state to provide day care services for mentally retarded children in Palatine, Wheeling, Schaumburg, Elk Grove and Maine townships.

From 26 pupils just four years ago, the enrollment has more than quadrupled and the staff numbers more than 40 full and part-time teachers and other specialists. Based on population growth, it is estimated that the school will be serving 600 families by 1974.

Portable classrooms are now being added with a satellite program to be initiated in Maine Township.

PROCEEDS FROM Sunday's benefit, expected to top last year's net of $9,000, have been earmarked to equip a multipurpose and home economics room in the Center's new vocational rehabilitation building in Elk Grove.

that the Friends is a large organization. The success of the brunch would imply. However, its membership is only 27 active women who each year, sell hundreds of tickets to their benefit. Husbands of the women also help by selling tickets and serving as hosts for the benefit brunch.

Besides the hard work and enthusiasm of the Friends and their husbands, "angels" must also be given plaudits for the success of the brunch. Underwriting this year's brunch were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Malcom of Arlington Heights.

Pre-Natal Classes For Parents-to-Be

Expectant parents may enroll now for the six-week series of pre natal classes offered by St. Alexius Hospital, Elk Grove Village, Mondays, Nov. 9 through Dec. 14, or Wednesdays, Nov. 11 through Dec. 16. Fathers-to-be are invited to join their wives at the two-hour evening sessions held at 7:30 in the hospital's Stritch Hall.

Conception through the first several months of life are covered in the course which is based on the Red Cross program for pre-natal instruction. A tour of the St. Alexius Maternity floor and a movie of the birth process are included, and discussion sessions are stressed.

Classes are conducted by Mrs. Elsie Taylor, Mrs. Nina Salisbury and Mrs. Phyllis McIlraith, all RNs in the Obstetrical Division. To register, expectant parents may call 437-5500, extension 494 from 9 a.m. through 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Still Tickets For 'Splendor'

Tickets and reservations are still available for "Autumn Splendor," Saturday's fashion-luncheon sponsored by St. Edna's Woman's Club of Arlington Heights. The affair will be held at Nordic Hills Country Club, Itasca, beginning with cocktails at 11:30 a.m.

Tickets at $5 may be obtained from Mrs. Richard Hoehne, 235-2823, ticket chairman, or Mrs. Gerald Theis, 537-2894, general chairman.

Fashions for the show will be from Seymore's Ltd., Buffalo Grove.

FUN AND GOURMET foods were the order of the day Sunday when Friends of Clearbrook held their annual fund-raiser at Arlington Towers. Brunch chairman was Mrs. Walter Kinka of Palatine; Mrs. William J. McAllister of Arlington Heights is president of the "Friends."

Applaud New Lens Ruling

The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness has called recent Food & Drug Administration action to require impact-resistant lenses in all eyeglasses the most dramatic move in many years to protect the eyesight of the American public.

"This is unquestionably the most far reaching development in the area of blindness prevention in this country in a long time," said Dr. Wilfred D. David, the Society's executive executive director. "It directly affects an estimated 100 million Americans — those who wear prescription glasses. In addition, the new regulation will protect the eyesight of hundreds of thousands more — those who wear non-prescription sunglasses."

"According to the FDA's own estimates, about 75 per cent of Americans who wear glasses are wearing ordinary crown-glass lenses," said Dr. David. "These lenses are thin and break easily, shattering into potentially blinding slivers upon impact. Documentation of such tragedies runs into thousands of cases."

"THE SOCIETY HAS been actively campaigning for impact resistant lenses for the general public for some 15 years," added Dr. David, "so the FDA action is very gratifying to us, especially since the National Society's recommendations were used almost verbatim. Our only objection is that the proposal doesn't go far enough."

The Society would prefer that the proposed regulation, in addition to making the use of laminated glass, heat tempered glass or plastic lenses mandatory in all eyeglasses and sunglasses, also include a requirement governing eyeglass frames, specifically, that they be constructed of flame resistant materials.

"A distinct hazard exists from eyeglass frames which burn easily," Dr. David said. "The simplest activities — leaning over a gas stove burner or barbecue, or lighting a cigarette — present opportunities for eyeglass frames to explode into flames, with severe injury as a probable result."

THIS YEAR THE Society, in cooperation with representatives of the ophthalmic professions and the optical industry, produced a model law text for the proposal of mandatory protective lenses and flame resistant frames. The states of Alaska, Connecticut and, most recently, Massachusetts have passed laws containing these provisions

The Society seriously questions the FDA's omission of the frame provision in the new regulation, Dr. David said. Though American manufacturers have abandoned such unsafe frame materials as cellulose nitrate, foreign made frames made of these flammable materials continue to be imported, he said.

Another area of considerable concern to the Society, not apparently covered by the proposed FDA regulation, regards protective eyeglasses for the military. The organization has actively supported Congressional bills calling for impact resistant lenses in eyeglasses issued to Armed Forces personnel. The Armed Services still issue ordinary "street-wear" glasses to military personnel, including those in combat, said Dr. David (Approximately one-third of all military personnel wear glasses.)

TO DATE, a bill filed by Rep. Henry Helstoski (D-N J.) has been introduced in three sessions of Congress, only to be locked in committee each time.

The new FDA regulation is scheduled to go into effect on or about Nov. 4, but the FDA commissioner indicated that the agency would allow the industry a "reasonable time" transitional period to comply. After that "ordinary lenses" would be subject to seizure by the FDA, to court injunctions or other regulatory action. The FDA regulation stems from the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act, which gives the agency power to regulate or ban products that pose hazards to health and safety.

Dr. David called the FDA regulation "rivaled" in significance perhaps only by the silver nitrate laws won by the Society in the early 1900's Blindness from "babes' sore eyes," once the leading cause of blindness among children, was erased by laws requiring instillation of silver nitrate solution into the eyes of newborns.

The Doctor Says

Cholesterol Intake Should Be Limited

by LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Sooner or later a discussion of diet gets around to cholesterol. Because fatty deposits that cause artery disease, heart attacks, strokes and senility contain large amounts of cholesterol, cholesterol is often branded a villain.

Cholesterol is not a fat; it is an alcohol. It is such a large molecule that it is a waxy substance. It is essential to the body. The brain needs it. The endocrine glands use it to build essential hormones and it is normally manufactured by the liver from a variety of food substances, even if there is no significant amount of cholesterol in the diet. We are faced with the question of "optional values." If you have too much cholesterol in the body you have a much greater risk of developing significant artery disease and its complications.

THE MEDICAL profession has changed its mind several times about the advisability of limiting cholesterol in the diet. At first, it was believed that avoiding cholesterol foods was the important key to preventing artery disease. Then, when it became obvious that the body could manufacture cholesterol from almost any food source, the idea was temporarily discarded.

A review of research studies and information has caused still another turnabout. Once more we think avoiding excess cholesterol in the diet is important. The American Heart Association has recommended a low cholesterol intake.

To limit it, avoid organ meats, such as liver, brain or sweetbreads. You should limit all dairy products that contain butter fat and especially egg yolks. You should eat no more than three egg yolks a week, including those used in all forms of cooking. Don't forget that many bakery products contain egg yolks, as well as large amounts of saturated fats. Some heart specialists think you should avoid all egg yolks. The white of the egg is essentially fat-free and cholesterol-free.

Shellfish contain a moderate amount of cholesterol and should be eaten sparingly — only about once a week. This includes oysters, shrimp and lobster.

Recently I received a letter from the president of a dairy company protesting my statement that dairy products should be limited. Of course, you can use nonfat and lowfat products. But butter fat and egg yolks are definitely on the rationed or avoid completely list. The gentleman maintains that "if you exercise strenuously, regularly, cholesterol count will remain normal. I have been exercising for four years," he asserts, "and my cholesterol count is 250. I have been eating my share of bacon and eggs and drinking milk (with cream left in)."

True, exercise helps but it takes more than most people can do in our society. Incidentally, individuals with a cholesterol count of 250 have three times the likelihood of having a heart attack as people with more optimal levels.

Dear doctor — Is aspirin bad for you? Dear reader — Aspirin is probably the safest medicine available. Even so, it can be dangerous in some people. Some asthmatics are particularly prone to having an allergic reaction to aspirin. Some small children who accidentally take a large amount of aspirin will have a serious disturbance in their body chemistry, which can even cause death. So keep the aspirin bottle out of the reach of small hands.

ments to Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D., Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 230, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. While Dr. Lamb cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

NORTHWESTERN ALUMNI dubbed their brunch drink "The Wildcat" and combined it with grape juice to match a school color in their bid to win Smirnoff's Alumni Football Brunchfest. Their ideal football brunch consists of a liquor-flavored melon cup, chicken livers and mushrooms with rice, corn bread and apple-filled crepes.

Food and Entertaining

SUBURBAN LIVING

Football Brunch Scores Victory

Northwestern University scored an unusual victory several weeks ago with a combination of chicken livers and mushrooms, with rice, corn bread and apple-filled crepes.

The spirited encounter was defeat for Notre Dame in Smirnoff's College Alumni Football Brunchfest contest.

Facing each other with chef's hats instead of helmets, the alumni teams vied for an award for the best brunch menu. The two teams created recipes for the special brunch dishes and vodka-based drinks for the contest.

With Americans so avid about brunches, particularly on weekends, this seemed like a useful idea. Alumni groups were asked to think of an original brunch menu.

ORIGINALITY BEING a factor, the winning combination was far from the ordinary scrambled eggs and Bloody Mary. With $2,000 at stake, originality would pay.

The winning Northwestern menu began with fresh cantaloupe, honey dew, pineapple and raspberries marinated in Arrow kirsch and served in scalloped cantaloupe shells.

This was followed by sauteed chicken livers on boiled rice, accompanied by an excellent cornbread with butter and strawberry preserves. Northwestern finished with crepes or blintzes filled with tart apples.

THE WILDCAT

1½ ounces Smirnoff Vodka
¾ ounce Triple Sec
1 ounce grape juice ice soda
sprig of mint

In an old-fashioned glass mix vodka, Triple Sec and grape juice. Add ice, fill with soda and garnish with sprig of mint. Serves one.

ROCKY MELON

3 cantaloupes
1 pineapple (small)
1 honeydew melon (small)
1 pint raspberries
½ cup Arrow Kirsch

Cut cantaloupes in half and remove flesh in ball shapes. Scalloped the empty shells. Repeat for honeydew melon, discarding rinds. Peel, core and dice pineapple. Toss raspberries, pineapple cubes and melon balls, and add Kirsch. Serve in cantaloupe shells, well chilled. Serves six.

CHICKEN LIVERS à la STROTZ

1½ pounds chicken livers
¾ pound sliced mushrooms
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
2 tablespoons chopped onion
4 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon flour
½ cup Beaulieu Chablis (dry white wine)
½ cup chicken broth
½ cup sour cream salt pepper

Saute chicken livers, sliced mushrooms and parsley and onions in butter over low flame for about 4 minutes, stirring frequently. Sprinkle with flour. Gradually add wine and chicken broth, stirring constantly. Simmer gently for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add sour cream. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Serve in a ring of fluffy boiled rice. Serves six.

TIPPY'S BREAD and BUTTER

1½ cups all-purpose flour
3 tablespoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
¾ cup sugar
½ cup yellow corn meal
2 eggs
1 cup milk
¾ cup melted butter

Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Add corn and mix well. Beat eggs and combine with milk and melted butter. Add to dry ingredients. Stir only until well blended. Pour into well-greased 8 inch by 8 inch by 2 inch baking pan and bake in 325 degree oven for 30 to 40 minutes. Cut into squares. Serve with butter and strawberry preserves. Serves six.

CREPE AGASSE

1½ cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
3 eggs
1½ cups milk
butter
4 tart apples
3 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons melted butter powdered sugar

Sift flour and salt together. Add well-beaten eggs and milk. Stir until smooth. Melt butter to coat bottom of frying pan. Pour a generous tablespoon of batter into pan, tipping pan to spread batter thin and even. When crepe is brown on bottom, turn and brown other side. Make as many crepes as batter permits. Peel, core and dice tart apples. Mix in lemon juice. Saute in melted butter until soft. Spread apple mixture on cooked crepes. Roll crepes and lay side by side in baking dish. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and keep warm in oven. Serves six.

... After-The-Game Spread

No matter how exciting, every football game comes to its thrilling climax, and the score is history.

Time now for food. And after all that excitement, including the usual assortment of intercepted passes, fumbles and fingertip-caught forward passes, everyone needs something to eat and drink. Substantial fare, not tea room dainties. Hearty, restorative and cheering, that's the ticket.

These recipes are the sort men like, with a minimum of emphasis on fuss and feathers, frills and dillies. It's the sort of food a man needs and enjoys, as a pick-me-up, after an exciting session of football.

To start the party, why not "tackle" a cheese Football Spread?

The crowd will keep making passes at your edible football motif, a clever centerpiece and delicious cheese spread for party crackers and bread.

The recipe is simple... and it has a zesty flavor befitting "football weather."

YOU CAN PREPARE this supper ahead of time so that when you return from the game, there's nothing left to do but enjoy it.

Cheese football spread
Mixed Seafood Supreme
Vegetable Gelatin Mold
Banana Velvet
Hot Coffee

CHEESE FOOTBALL SPREAD

2 8-ounce packages of cream cheese softened

¾ cup American blue cheese (about 4 ounces, crumbled)
1 cup green olives, chopped
1/3 cup finely chopped celery
1 teaspoon cracked pepper
2 tablespoons chopped pimento

Bring American blue cheese and cream cheese to room temperature. Mix together all ingredients, blending well. Shape mixture into football with hands. Draw seam lines with a toothpick. Use strips of pimento and bell pepper to form stripes and laces. Wrap football in waxed paper. Chill several hours, until ready to serve.

MIXED SEAFOOD SUPREME

4 tablespoon margarine
4 tablespoons flour
1½ cups milk
1 teaspoon salt

KICK OFF A HEARTY after-the-game supper with Cheese Football Spread. The fans will keep cheering as they make passes at your edible football motif. Not only is it a clever centerpiece but a delicious spread for party crackers and bread.

½ teaspoon pepper

Dash Cayenne pepper
2 7-ounce cans tuna fish, drained
1 1-pound package frozen, peeled, deveined shrimp, cooked
½ cup sliced stuffed olives

Melt the margarine, blend in the flour. Gradually add milk, stirring constantly over low heat until the mixture almost boils. Add seasonings. Cook 5 minutes longer, stirring occasionally.

Flake tuna and combine with halved shrimp. Add fish and olives to the sauce. Heat and adjust seasoning. Serve on toast or in patty shells.
Makes 6 to 8 servings

VEGETABLE GELATIN MOLD

2 envelopes unflavored gelatin

3 cups "V-8" vegetable juice

1 package (10 ounces) frozen mixed vegetables, cooked and drained.

In saucepan, sprinkle gelatin on 1 cup "V-8" vegetable juice to soften. Place over low heat, stirring until gelatin is dissolved. Remove from heat; add remaining "V-8." Chill until slightly thickened. Fold in vegetables. Pour into 4-cup mold. Chill until firm. Unmold; garnish with parsley and greens. Serves 6

BANANA VELVET

½ cup heavy cream
4 ripe bananas
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 egg whites
¾ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon almond extract

Whip the cream, chill. Put 3 bananas and lemon juice in the bowl of an electric mixer and beat until smooth. Add the egg whites and ¼ cup sugar. Beat until mixture stands in peaks, about 10 minutes. Stir in the almond extract and fold in the chilled whipped cream. Pour into an 8-inch square pan or 2 ice cube trays; cover and freeze overnight.

When ready to serve, leave at room temperature for about 10 minutes, or just until it softens sufficiently to spoon easily. Slice the remaining banana, sprinkle with the rest of the sugar and add to the frozen mixture. Heap into dessert dishes or bowl and garnish with whipped cream and cherries.

Serves 8.

Tea And Tapioca Party For Tots

"A child should always say what's true

And speak when he is spoken to. And behave mannerly at table At least as far as he is able."

Prim Little Miss Buttercup, invited for tea and Apple Honey Tapioca, seems to be quoting literally from "A Child's Garden of Verses."

Tapioca pudding will never interfere with good manners, it's so easy to eat. Soft, it slides down smoothly. Children like its mild flavor, too, acquired from the fruits combined with it, in this case apples with honey and lemon juice.

The sprinkling of nutmeg and cinnamon is light to suit youngsters, but still enough to appeal to grown-ups if you decide to serve this dessert to the family.

Apricot Pudding is another fruited tapioca pudding that will be a favorite with the whole family. Made with milk, it has an extra nutrition bonus. Serve it warm on the first day you note a hint of fall in the air.

APPLE HONEY TAPIOCA

3 to 4 medium tart apples, peeled and cut into eighths (about 3 cups)
1/2 cup honey
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon

1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1/3 cup quick-cooking tapioca
2 1/2 cups water

Combine apples, honey, butter, lemon juice, lemon rind, salt, and spices in a large skillet. Cover and simmer over medium heat until apples are just tender. Baste apples occasionally with the honey mixture. Remove apples to serving dish.

Add tapioca and water to honey mixture in skillet. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture comes to a boil. Pour over apples. Stir after 20 minutes. Serve warm with cream or hard sauce, if desired. Makes about 5 cups or 6 to 8 servings.

APRICOT PUDDING

1/3 cup quick-cooking tapioca
2 cups milk

1/3 cup sugar
1/8 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter
1/2 cup sweetened chopped cooked apricots

Combine tapioca, milk, sugar, salt, and butter in a saucepan. Let stand 5 minutes. Bring to a full boil, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Cool 20 minutes. Gently stir in fruit. Serve warm. Top with cream, if desired. Makes about 2 2/3 cups or 5 servings.

What's Thawing For Dinner?

Homemade Bread: Mix Now, Bake Later

by CHARLOTTE ERICKSON
The first cool days in fall always get me to thinking about making bread and other yeast goodies.
Have you tried the new dry yeast that has appeared on the market recently? Fleischmann's has a new product called Rapidmix and it does not need to be dissolved in 110 degree water for five minutes. You mix this new yeast much as you would baking powder or baking soda, thus saving one more step in making yeast dough. Other time savers are batter breads which require no kneading and the Cool Rise breads which can be mixed now and baked later which arrived on the scene a few years ago.

Here are some new thoughts on making yeast dough:

YOUR DRY YEAST will keep indefinitely if stored in the refrigerator. Pasteurized milk does not need to be scalded.

Doughs that are made via the cool rise method need a refrigerator temperature of 38 degrees to 41 degrees. Be sure the wrappings are not tucked under the pans. Allow room for the dough to raise. Space between shelves should be 5 inches.

To convert any of your favorite yeast recipes to the Cool Rise method simply double the amount of yeast. I have done this with a number of bread recipes with excellent results.

I tried this rye bread recipe the other day and found it very tasty. It has a nice smooth texture and a lovely crispy crust, quite unlike anything available in the stores. The entire mixing for a double batch took 20 minutes. Single recipe yields 2 loaves.

RYE BREAD

2 1/2 cups unsifted rye flour
2 1/2 cups unsifted white flour
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon salt
1 package dry Rapidmix yeast
1 tablespoon caraway seeds
2/3 cup water
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons shortening
Corn meal
1 egg white
1 tablespoon water

Combine flours and mix thoroughly... or you can buy a rye flour already mixed with white flour. In your mixing bowl add 2 cups of the mixed flour, sugar, salt, caraway seeds and dry yeast. Meanwhile, combine margarine and milk in a small sauce pan and warm. Margarine need not be melted. Add to dry ingredients and beat at medium speed of electric mixer for two minutes, scraping sides of bowl occasionally. Continue adding flour one cup at a time until a thick batter is formed. If you have a conventional electric mixer with two beaters, remove the innermost beater as soon as the dough starts to crawl up. Continue beating until dough forms a nice elastic ball. Knead on a floured surface for a few minutes and place in a generously greased bowl, turning dough to grease on all sides. Cover and let rise in a warm, draft-free place until double in bulk, about one hour.

Punch dough down; turn out onto lightly floured board. Divide dough in half for a single recipe; into fourths for a double recipe. Form each part into a smooth ball and let rise for 10 minutes. Flatten each piece slightly and then roll on lightly floured surface to form tapered ends. Sprinkle greased baking sheets with corn meal and place bread on corn meal. Combine egg white and water and brush leaves generously. Sprinkle with additional caraway seed if desired. Let rise, uncovered, in warm draft-free place for 35 minutes.

Bake in hot 400-degree oven for 25 minutes or until done. Remove from baking sheets and cool on wire racks.

RAISIN CINNAMON BREAD is made using the cool rise method. It can be whipped up in a jiffy and baked later at your convenience. This way you're not tied to the kitchen for long periods of time waiting for the dough to raise and then to watch it while it's baking. This slightly sweet bread is especially marvelous with a bacon and egg type breakfast, great also for peanut butter and jelly sandwiches, among other things, delicious served with fruit salad, etc. Single recipe yields 2 loaves.

3 eggs
3 packages dry yeast
1/2 cup warm water
1 1/4 cups scalded milk
2/3 cup margarine
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
6 to 7 cups flour

2 cups raisins
1/3 cup melted butter
1/3 cup sugar
1 tablespoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
Melted butter

Remove eggs from refrigerator. Dissolve yeast in warm water. Scald milk.

Combine shortening and sugar in mixing bowl. Pour scalded milk over mixture and cool to lukewarm temperature. Now add eggs that have warmed to room temperature. Never add refrigerated eggs to yeast dough as it will cool the dough too much. Add salt. Now add the yeast mixture which has been dissolved. Add flour until mixture breaks away from sides of mixing bowl. Now add raisins. If your dough starts to climb up the beaters simply remove the innermost beater and continue. When mixture is still very soft and sufficient flour has been added, continue beating at fairly high speed with your electric mixer for 3 minutes. Dough should be smooth and shiny. Cover dough and set in a warm place to raise until double in bulk.

Turn dough out onto a floured pastry cloth or board. Knead lightly for one minute and divide in half. Roll each half into a rectangle approximately 9 by 18 inches. Brush with melted butter. Combine cinnamon, nutmeg and sugar and sprinkle over the top of buttered dough. Starting at the narrow end, roll dough in jelly roll fashion and place in greased and floured 9 by 5 by 3-inch loaf pans. Brush surface with melted butter or margarine. Cover with waxed paper and refrigerator for 2 to 24 hours.

TO BAKE: Remove from refrigerator and let stand uncovered for 10 to 15 minutes while preheating oven to 325 degrees. Using greased toothpick puncture any surface bubbles that may have formed on dough during refrigeration. Bake for 45 minutes or until done. For best results bake in center of oven. Remove from pans immediately and cool on racks. For softer crust you may wish to brush with melted butter or margarine after removing from the oven.

*For plumper raisins you may wish to add them to scalded milk mixture.

Volume decreases slightly as refrigeration time increases beyond 24 hours. However, the texture and quality remains acceptable up to 48 hours. So, in case of emergency you can wait an extra day to bake your bread.

If you wish to freeze some of your bread for future use, cool completely before wrapping. Wrap in plastic bags or heavy duty foil, label, date and freeze. Never wrap bread until it has cooled completely otherwise your crust will become soggy.

Household Hints

By United Press International

Rubbing a light coat of wax on your shelves makes cleaning easier, and prevents shelf paper from sticking to the shelf.

Wrap lettuce in aluminum. It will keep better and longer.

Seersucker material can be refreshed by using a heavy pile towel and warm iron.

Heavily starched items will not stick to your clothesline if you place a piece of wax paper on the line.

The dark film on aluminum pans can be removed by filling the pan with hot water and a couple of tablespoons of cream of tartar. Boil about 10 minutes, then wash and scour in hot soapy water. Rinse in clear water and dry.

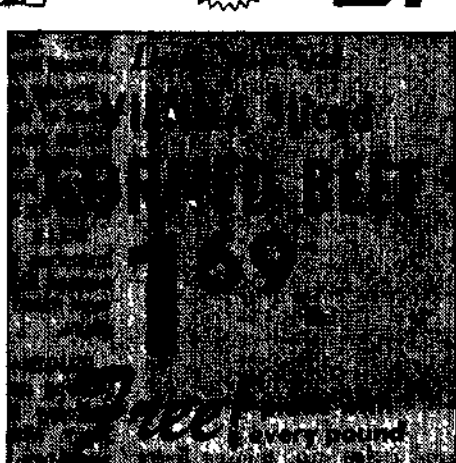

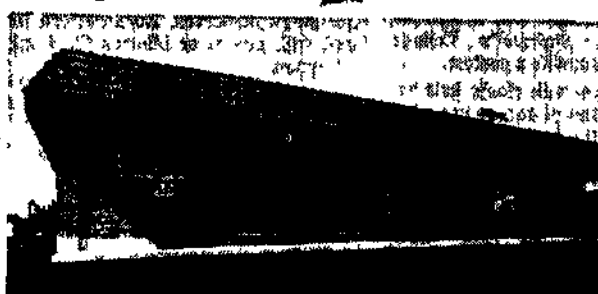

When buying mushrooms, look for young ones that are small to medium in size. Caps should be either closed around the stem or moderately open with pink or light-tan gills. The surface of the cap should be white or creamy—or light brown from some producing areas.

Greasy, grimy work clothes or grease spots on resin-treated cottons can be treated with hair shampoo or heavy duty liquid cleaner before washing. Rub the liquid into the fabric and let it stand for 15 minutes before loading in the washer.

From The Garden To The Stove

By LOIS SEILER

Fresh fruits and vegetables are served regularly in the Philip E. Bennett household in Palatine where meals are geared to good nutrition.

Mrs. Bennett de-emphasizes sweets, stressing instead, well-balanced meals. To insure serving their family the most nutritious food possible, Phil and Alva Bennett have an extensive garden using they grow their own vegetables using natural fertilizers.

"It's only minutes from the garden to the stove," Alva said, "so all the nutrients are preserved except for the small amount that is lost in cooking. Often the children pick fresh vegetables right from the garden and eat them raw," she added.

Originally from Chicago, the Bennetts have lived in Pittsburgh, Pa., and Cape May, N.J. They returned to this area a year ago when Phil accepted a position to teach and organize a college at Christian Liberty Academy.

BECAUSE THEY always wanted a vegetable garden, the Bennetts purposely purchased a house with enough land to have sufficient space for planting. The yield of their crops was bountiful enough to provide produce for their meals in addition to 125 pounds of green beans and 25 pounds of corn for the freezer. Alva also canned 25 quarts of dill pickles and an endless quantity of tomatoes from their 55 plants.

Flush with the success of this venture, the Bennetts plan to expand their garden even further next year. "I'm convinced that good, nourishing food is responsible for my family's good health," Alva said.

She likes to prepare tasty meats to accompany the fresh vegetables, and two of her favorites are Salmon Cakes and Swedish Meat Balls.

"The salmon cakes are unusual, yet inexpensive and easy to prepare," this efficient homemaker remarked. "I always have the ingredients on hand, and can mix them together in a hurry on a busy day," she added.

The recipe combines canned salmon with cracker crumbs, egg and seasonings. This mixture is formed into small cakes or patties that take only minutes to brown. They can be served with a sauce made from cream of celery or mushroom soup diluted with a little milk. As accompaniments Alva suggests rice, a green salad and fresh or canned fruit.

BEING OF SWEDISH descent, it is natural that Swedish Meat Balls should be another of her specialties. She mixes sauteed onion, bread crumbs, milk, egg and seasonings with ground beef and forms the mixture into small balls. "The secret to keeping them round is to shake the frying pan to brown them on all sides," Alva said.

She makes a tasty gravy from the pan drippings and serves the tender meat balls with boiled potatoes, green beans and a green salad or fruit.

About the only time this good cook serves a sweet is when the family has guests. "We have many meetings at our house," she explained, "and for the occasions I like to make Lemon Bars."

"They are so easy to prepare yet always a success and everyone who tastes them asks for the recipe," Alva explained.

The bars have a buttery bottom crust and a firm lemon filling topped by a lemon glaze. They cut nicely into squares and are more filling than a cookie yet easy to manage as a finger food. Although rich, they have a lemon tang that makes them appealing to men and women alike.

In addition to cooking, Alva enjoys sewing for herself and her two daughters, Jenny, 7, and Wendy, 5. The Bennetts also have three sons, Andy, 11; Kurt, 10; and Thad, 3. The whole family enjoys bike riding for recreation. They live at 1355 N. Quentin Road in Palatine.

SALMON CAKES

- 1 16-ounce can salmon
- 1/2 cup cracker crumbs
- 2 beaten eggs
- 4 teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon paprika

Flake the salmon and remove bone. Stir in remaining ingredients. Form into little cakes or patties and brown in butter in a heavy skillet.

Serve with a sauce made from cream of mushroom or celery soup diluted with a little milk.

SWEDISH MEAT BALLS

- 5 tablespoons chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 1/2 pounds ground beef
- 3/4 cup fine bread crumbs
- 1 1/2 cups milk
- 2 eggs
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper

Saute onions first in butter; then mix all ingredients together. Form into small balls, using about one tablespoon of the mixture per ball.

Brown in butter, shaking the skillet to brown balls on all sides yet keep them round. Remove from pan.

Make a gravy by stirring 2 tablespoons flour into the pan drippings. Gradually blend in 1 1/2 cups milk, season with salt, and cook, stirring constantly, until gravy is smooth. Serve 6 to 8.

LEMON BARS

- Crust
- 1 1/2 cups flour
- 1/3 cup powdered sugar
- 3/4 cup butter, softened
- Mix flour and sugar together. Work in softened butter. Pat into the bottom of an 8 by 12-inch pan and bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes or until lightly browned.
- Filling
- 1 1/2 cups granulated sugar

Here are a couple of change-of-pace menu ideas for cool fall evening meals. One is a Chinesey flavored meat loaf with the flavor provided by chow mein noodles and soy sauce - and the other is a fancy mixed vegetable salad. Together they provide a new touch for old favorites as well as a delicious and nutritious dinner.

Whether it's the back-to-school bunch, the after-work group or the party crowd, all need the support of extra-good food at the evening meal. This meat loaf fills the bill. It's great either hot or cold. Also, it is as easy to make as any just-plain-meat-loaf, and it has so much flavor, texture and glamour that it stands out as a wonderful main dish.

The Chinesey meat loaf makes two pounds of meat work like three by omitting the usual bread crumbs and adding coarsely crushed chow mein noodles. The flavor also is enhanced with the addition of soy sauce. So you get more servings and a lighter, nutlike flavor. You also can follow the same procedure with your favorite ham loaf recipe, but remember to omit the soy sauce. The fancy mixed salad will be a treat, too, with a special appeal for all the men in the house.

CHINESEY MEAT LOAF

- 2 lbs. ground beef chuck
- 1 can (3 oz.) chow mein noodles, crushed
- 1 cup buttermilk
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- 1 medium onion, finely chopped

UNUSUAL, YET EASY to prepare, salmon cakes are an excellent accompaniment for fresh vegetables from Mrs. Philip Bennett's garden. She and her husband, Phil, have an extensive garden where they grow their own vegetables.

- 3 tablespoons flour
- 3/4 teaspoon baking powder
- 3 beaten eggs
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- Mix sugar, flour and baking powder together. Add eggs and lemon juice. Pour over hot crust. Return to oven and bake an additional 25 minutes at 350 degrees. Remove from oven and while hot, drizzle over the top the following glaze made by mixing together: 1 1/2 cups powdered sugar 1/4 cup lemon juice. Cut in squares when cool.

Mostly for Men

by CHARLES E. FLYNN

It has been said that nothing exceeds the amount of corn which each day is cooked, written, spoken and drunk. I presume the author referred to chefs, writers, television comedians and bourbon imbibers.

Our concern here being primarily with foods, I think it fair to observe that in America, corn is a mighty frequent visitor to the table. Properly prepared and served it's always a welcome addition to menus and fits in admirably for serving hot at a buffet.

This casserole serves 6, but the recipe can easily be increased by almost any multiple to handle a large group.

Melt 1/2 cup margarine (or butter, if you prefer) in a saucepan. Stir in 1/4 cup sugar and 1 tablespoon flour until well blended. Remove from heat.

Gradually stir in 1/2 cup milk thickened with sour cream. Add 2 well beaten eggs and 1 teaspoon baking powder. Mix well. Fold in 2 packages (10-ounce) of frozen whole kernel corn which has been thoroughly thawed and drained. Add 2 pimentoes cut into strips. PUT MIXTURE into a well buttered casserole and bake in a pre-heated oven at 325 degrees for 45 minutes or until nicely browned and firm in the center.

Another casserole dish popular with guests at our house is this corn pudding. Again 6 servings but the recipe can be increased for more guests at a buffet.

Beat 3 eggs lightly. Combine 1 no. 2 can whole kernel yellow corn and the liquid with 1 teaspoon salt, several dashes of pepper, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1 tablespoon sugar, and 2 cups of milk, scalded. Add to the eggs and pour into a buttered casserole.

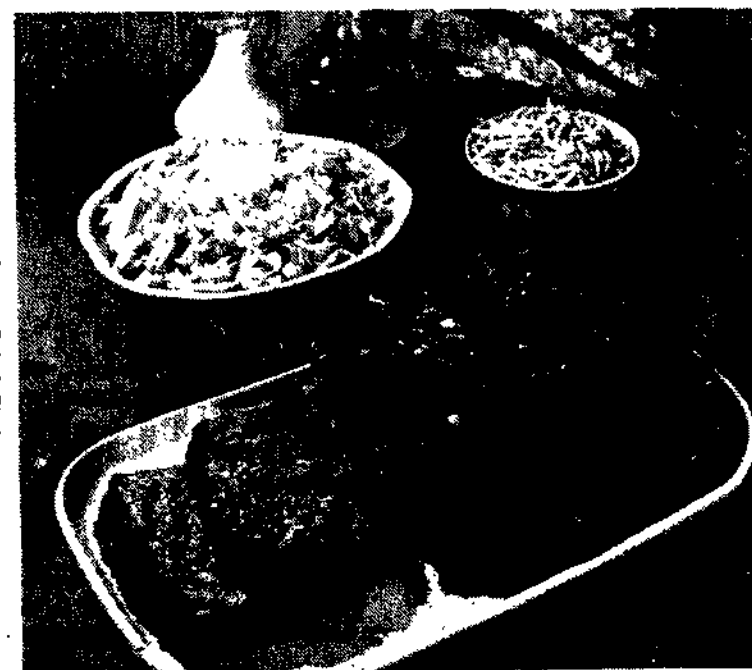

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Set the casserole in a pan of hot water in center of the oven and bake for 35 minutes or until firm. Serve from the casserole.

Do you have a favorite corn dish, or a question about food? Write Chuck Flynn, care of Box 280, Paddock Publications, Arlington Heights, Ill., 60005. For a personal reply, please enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Oriental Fare For Autumn

- 1 teaspoon salt
- 3/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon ground thyme
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- In a mixing bowl, combine noodles and buttermilk; let stand 15 minutes. Add remaining ingredients; mix thoroughly. Press into greased loaf pan, 9x5x3 inches. Bake at 350 degrees for one hour.

Serves 8 to 10. FANCY MIXED VEGETABLE SALAD Drain and rinse with cold water one can La Choy Fancy Mixed Vegetables. Chill thoroughly. Add shredded cabbage or lettuce broken in small pieces and chopped green onion. Toss with garlic dressing or Italian dressing.

Party Special: For Kiddies Only

It came in the mail, a pencil scrawled letter on lined paper. "I would like to know about how to make cookies. Can you send me a recipe? My mother will show me how to make them."

Little friend, we can think of no better first try for you than the Toll House Cookie, America's favorite kind. As you'll see in the photo, you can make cookie lollipops with them, with your mother helping. We're giving you a very good Brownie Cookie recipe too. You might also like to make animal cut out sandwiches and give a party for your friends and for your dolls, like the one shown in the photo.

We're very glad that you are planning to have Mother help you because children should never use a kitchen range or utensils without an adult in the room. Good luck with these recipes!

1 cup rolled oats
1 package (1 cup) Nestlé's semi sweet chocolate morsels
½ cup chopped nuts

Cream together butter and sugars. Beat in egg, vanilla and water. Sift in flour, baking soda and salt, mix well. Stir in rolled oats, semi sweet chocolate morsels and nuts. Color the handles of 5-inch wooden spoons by dipping in water that has been tinted with red, yellow, green or blue food coloring. Place spoons 4 inches apart on greased cookie sheets. Drop cookie mixture by tablespoons onto bowls of spoons. Bake in 375 degree oven 10 to 12 minutes. Carefully remove from cookie sheets while warm with wide spatula. Cool before serving.

Yield Approximately 18 lollipops

COOKIE LOLLIPOPS

½ cup butter or shortening
6 tablespoons granulated sugar
6 tablespoons packed brown sugar
1 egg
½ teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon water
¾ cup sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt

BROWNIE COOKIES

1 egg
½ cup sweetened condensed milk
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 package (1 cup) Nestlé's Semi-Sweet Chocolate Morsels
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup water
¾ cup sifted all-purpose flour

¾ cup coarsely chopped pecans

Beat egg in saucepan. Stir in sweetened condensed milk, sugar and salt. Cook over low heat 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Add chocolate morsels, butter, vanilla and water, stir until morsels are melted and mixture is smooth. Remove from heat. Mix in flour and nuts. Drop by teaspoonfuls on foil-lined cookie sheets. Bake in 350 degree oven 12 to 15 minutes. Let cool 10 minutes, then peel off foil.

Yield 7 dozen

BREAD AND BUTTER CUT-OUT SANDWICHES

Trim crusts from 6 slices white bread and 6 slices brown bread. Spread softened butter or margarine on 3 slices white and 3 slices brown bread. Cut out centers of remaining bread slices with small animal cookie cutters, reserve. Place slice of cut-out white bread on top of slice of buttered brown bread. Insert brown animal cut out in center of white bread slice. Repeat, alternating brown and white bread, until sandwiches are completed. Serve immediately or wrap in foil and place in refrigerator until ready to use.

Yield 6 sandwiches

THE KITCHEN, not the medicine cabinet, is the best place to keep a tube of antiseptic first aid cream handy. Most burns from scalding water, grease and hot oil occur in the kitchen and immediate application of the cream relieves pain and helps prevent skin blistering.

MANY SUPERMARKETS REMOVE THESE LEANER ENDS

A Chuck Roast, like every cut of meat, has its best parts... those areas with bone and waste at a minimum, and good eating at a maximum. But many supermarkets remove these leaner ends from their Chuck Roasts because they can re-name them, re-wrap them, and sell them at a higher price per pound!

'Cut Speed Limit' Drive In High Gear

Hanover Park residents concerned about high speed limits along Rte. 19 will be walking the streets this weekend in an effort to gather signatures on petitions requesting a speed reduction.

State Sen. John Graham, 3rd Dist. (R) Barrington, has promised to take the petitions directly to the director of the division of highways in Springfield.

Sen. Graham learned Monday of Chairman James Scicli and Melvin Rudolph's efforts to create community support to obtain the speed reduction.

"When he heard about the petitions, he volunteered to take them to the division of highways and 'cut red tape and delays,'" Graham said he too was saddened by the death of a young Hanover Park pedestrian Oct. 5. The death of 16-year-old Ingrid Baumgartner, a neighbor of Scicli's, brought a renewed interest in the community's efforts to obtain a reduction.

POLICE CHIEF Sam Polotto, after three years of surveys, requests and pleadings for a reduction of a 50 mph limit, was successful in his effort to reduce speeds to 45 mph two months before Ingrid's death.

"It's not enough," stated Richard Baker, village president.

Village officials complain that the old speed limit of 50 mph still exists for east-bound motorists from Cumberland Street.

The village public works department is measuring the distance between speed reductions from the 65 mph limit at the village's Schaumburg border at Wise Road.

From the 65 limit at Wise, Rte. 19 funnels heavy traffic to the Barrington Road intersection set at 45 mph.

A shopping center, and restaurants cause many pedestrians in the area.

There are no sidewalks along the route and the intersection has been under construction for some months.

A stoplight will be installed as soon as delivery is made, said Chief Polotto.

Baker, and the Baumgartner family have asked for village wide support to bring the dangerous situation to the immediate attention of the division of highways.

THE PETITIONS ask for an immediate reduction of the 45 mile limit and suggest it be lowered to 30 mph within the business district.

It also suggests that the speeds east of Wise Road be lowered comparably.

Mr. and Mrs. Baumgartner insist their daughter's death must change a situation they term as dangerous.

Will it take additional deaths to prove to authorities a safe walkway for our remaining children must be made?" they ask.

Utility poles along the highway seem to hold back heavy rolls of fog as cars travel a foggy road.

Ogilvie Here For School Dedication

Illinois Governor Richard B. Ogilvie will arrive at Schaumburg Airport at 10 a.m. Saturday and proceed to the dedication ceremonies of Schaumburg High School.

Schaumburg High School which opened this fall, is the first secondary school to be built with Illinois School Building Commission funds.

The governor is scheduled to arrive at the school at 10:30 a.m. and will begin a brief tour of the facility. A formal dedication of the building will start at 11 a.m.

The ISBC is the agency of the state that provides guidelines and funds for school districts which are unable to construct facilities because of financial limitations. The commission has built many elementary schools in the state.

The newest Dist. 211 school was built at a cost of $16.42 per square foot, considerably below the $20 to $25 per square foot for similarly constructed schools.

Statistically the school is a 2,500 student capacity, with over 100 class, seminar and large group instruction rooms. The air conditioned facility cost $5,040,424. Two football fields could be laid out to end within the walls, which contain 7.05 acres under roof for a total of 307,067 square feet of space.

All residents of Palatine-Schaumburg High School Dist. 211 are encouraged to attend the dedication and take advantage of special tours that Schaumburg High School student will conduct.

Dist. 211 is setting aside a special section of seats for residents from both townships who worked on the recently successful Dist. 211 referendum. Funds from the referendum will construct a third high school in Schaumburg Township and another one in Palatine Township.

ERIE JONES, of Fitch, Larocca, Carrington and Jones, architects, designers of the school, will greet Ogilvie at the airport, along with John Moore of ISBC.

Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher will accompany Ogilvie, along with Dist. 211 board members and Jones on the special tour of the facility.

The school's band and chorus will perform in the gymnasium at 10:30 a.m. Tours for the public will start at 11:30 a.m.

William Fremd, oldest school board member, will be a special guest at the dedication.

Elected officials from surrounding communities have been invited and Dist. 211 expects some 500 residents to attend the ceremonies.

At present, Dist. 54 buses students living 1.5 miles from their attendance center and students who must travel along busy roads to class. The latter situation currently applies only at Schaumburg School.

The district receives state aid for busing students living one and one-half miles from neighborhood schools.

When results of the area-wide transportation study are received by Dist. 54, policy committee members will then reopen their investigation of local busing.

In other policy matters, Supt. Wayne E. Schaible said this week that the district will implement its revised lunch policy permitting all children in grades one through six to remain at school during the noon hour during cold months entirely without outside assistance.

Schaible said that the program is now being set up and letters will go out to parents shortly to investigate their individual willingness to participate.

Mothers will be scheduled to supervise selected groups but the project will be handled and coordinated by the individual school principals and their secretaries, he said.

Eye Tentative Election Plans

Tentative plans for the Hoffman Estates Park District election, held the first Tuesday in April each second year as required by state law, were discussed by officials of the district this week.

Six year terms of two board members—Bernard M. "Bud" Bartosch and Lyle Button—will expire at that time.

Both Bartosch and Button were members of the original park board formed when the park district was established by referendum in 1963. They had also served on the park commission which was actually a steering committee for park district formation.

Although neither have revealed their plans, park observers believe that Bartosch will seek a second term while Button will not.

According to Mrs. Anne Schuerings, acting director of parks and recreation, certificates of candidacy will be available at park district offices on Dec. 1.

Petitions of candidacy may be filed at park offices beginning Dec. 28. Deadline for filing is Feb. 1, 1971.

Residents of the park district who have lived in Illinois for the past year, in Cook County for at least 90 days and in the park district for 30 days are eligible to run for park office.

Basically the same requirements hold true for voting in a park district election although voters must be registered.

Petitions of candidacy must contain signatures of a minimum of 50 registered voters residing in the park district.

Park Director Raps Facilities Planning

Park Director George F. Seaver this week criticized "haphazard planning" of park and recreational facilities and accused Hoffman Estates Park Board members of attempting back-door implementation of a $2 million expansion program vetoed by voters last March.

"Park planning does not reflect the feeling of the board at all times and major planning decisions appear to be made at the whim of whoever happens to be in the park district office on Saturday morning," Seaver feels.

His remarks came during Tuesday night's park board meeting and immediately before he voted to support the proposals which he had verbally opposed.

The facility involved is a football field to be created on presently vacant land at Vogeley Park and Community Recreation Center through assistance from Hoffman Estates Athletic Association (HEAA).

THE ASSOCIATION has recently offered to grade and sod the site and also install mercury vapor lights; if the park district will purchase lumber, HEAA will also erect bleachers at the new field.

Seaver contends that the location and size of the football field is predicated on plans prepared for "Aquarius," the multi-faceted swimming pool and recreation complex rejected by the voters earlier this year.

Informal discussions regarding the proposed field have been held with HEAA officials several recent Saturday mornings and plans were presented for board ratification this week by Mrs. Anne Schuerings, acting director of parks and recreation.

Seaver feels that the park district lacks an overall development plan in which to tailor future additions, as well as programs and facilities.

Along with HEAA officials, other park board members are agreeable to lifting the football field portion of the "Aquarius" site plan for immediate development of a football field and adjacent baseball diamonds which will also benefit from the mercury vapor lights to be installed.

SEAVER POINTED out that HEAA is also using land at MacArthur School in the High Point area and suggests that the lights might be better placed at this site.

Before calling the question, Board Member Robert L. Schuhr told Seaver that he took exception to his remarks and reminded him that all board members had put in many Saturday mornings working out the "Aquarius" plan.

"The athletic association wants to accept this site and do something with it. Shall we tell them that we don't want this?" Schuhr asked.

"Now wait a minute, fellows, I want to finish. Don't cut off my sentence. This is a serious matter," Seaver warned.

"Are you going to build 'Aquarius' this year, next year or the year after?" he asked, stressing that that proposal is "out the window."

"We have absolutely no plans to build 'Aquarius' or to bring it back to the voters, George," replied Weaver, stressing that the site plan was used "because we have it and it is something to work with immediately."

The board decision to approve the proposal was unanimous with Weaver, Schuhr, Seaver and Bernard M. Bartosch all casting affirmative votes.

At present, Dist. 54 buses students living 1.5 miles from their attendance center and students who must travel along busy roads to class. The latter situation currently applies only at Schaumburg School.

Theft Spree Investigated

Schaumburg police are investigating a spree of burglaries in the village that occurred at local businesses during the past week.

"We feel it's the same person and are working on clues we have," said Martin Corroy, Schaumburg Police Chief.

Most recent of the burglaries occurred at Hardi Garden, 26 W. Golf Rd., where $140 was stolen following a break-in on Oct. 19.

The Doctors Building at Golf and Roselle roads was entered through a skylight on the roof, Oct. 18. An inventory is being taken to determine possible theft.

Vermiglio's Marathon gas station was broken into sometime between Friday night and Saturday morning. Items stolen include $45 in pennies, a $20 portable bar, and $34 worth of cigarettes.

Two burglaries took place Oct. 13, and are believed by Schaumburg police to be connected to the more recent thefts.

The Golden Dolphin in the Town Square Shopping Center was broken into and $139 and a camera were stolen.

Ted's Heat and Cooling, 418 W. Higgins Rd., was also burglarized. Two small radios were the only items taken.

Group Seeks Bakers

"Operation Open Heart," a plan to bus servicemen from the Great Lakes Naval Station to Hanover Park to share the Christmas Holiday starts this year with a recruiting drive for "bakers."

According to Mrs. June Rasmussen, chairman of project "Operation Open Heart," committee members are looking for cookie, cupcake and cake bakers.

"We plan to bring home baked goods to Great Lakes Naval Hospital Dec. 15 and share them with servicemen in the wards," Mrs. Rasmussen said as she asked residents to donate baked goods.

She added that last year's "Operation Open Heart" was greeted by such enthusiasm by Hanover Park residents that this year the project has been expanded.

Last year on Christmas Day 100 servicemen were brought to the village in buses to spend the day with Hanover Park families. But over 100 families were disappointed said Mrs. Rasmussen because only 100 could leave the base and 200 families had asked that a serviceman join their family for the day.

MRS. RASMUSSEN is accepting names of families who want a serviceman to join them this year. She may be contacted at 837-2988.

"It was gratifying to know so many Hanover Park residents opened their hearts and homes to servicemen who were far away from their homes during the holiday," she said.

This year the Hanover Park officials approved a $250 expenditure to provide buses to transport the servicemen from the base to the village and back again.

Mrs. Rasmussen said requests for servicemen are coming in now but asks for help in the new project.

"BAKE FOR US" she requested.

Anyone who will donate baked goods is asked to contact Mrs. Rasmussen by phone and a committee member will pick up the donation.

"Cakes must be sliced and wrapped individually," said Mrs. Rasmussen.

Cookies and cupcakes do not have to be wrapped separately.

"Operation Open Heart" is receiving donations of stationery, playing cards and small personal items from local area merchants and these too will be taken to the hospital on the 15th.

Approximately 20 committee members and village officials plan to spend the afternoon at the hospital, "doing whatever the men want us to do, talk, play games or just be there to listen," Mrs. Rasmussen said.

Jack-In-Box Is Before Board

Representatives of Foodmakers Inc., operators of Jack-In-The-Box restaurants, were back before the Hoffman Estates Zoning Board of Appeals Tuesday, presenting final evidence for their Mark IV operation to be located on Roselle Road north of Shakey's Pizza.

Last winter, village officials rejected the traditional Jack-In-The-Box drive-thru operation common to the Chicago-land area.

Their opposition was based on anticipated traffic hazard the drive-thru would create and a belief that the area was saturated with drive-in type food services.

THE REJECTION CAME following two separate multi-session public hearings that began in June, 1969.

Last month Foodmaker representatives returned proposing the Jack-In-The-Box Mark IV which offers a cafeteria line and seating for 65 persons.

The Mark IV excludes any service from cars. It is designed with rustic brick and customers pick up standard Jack-In-The-Box food items from a cafeteria line.

The ZBA assigned Building Commissioner Dan Murphy to determine whether the Mark IV is to be considered a restaurant or a drive-in.

UNDER NEW RESTAURANT definitions, passed by the ZBA and revised by the village's judiciary committee a restaurant is a food service operation with 50 per cent of the floor space dedicated as an eating area.

Murphy, Tuesday, reported that only 40 per cent of the Mark IV proposal accounts for eating area.

The new definition, however, has not been officially acted on by the village board. Under the current ordinance the Mark IV would be a restaurant compared to the drive-thru originally proposed, but the final determination is in the hands of the village board based on the village attorney's recommendations, said Robert Valentino, ZBA chairman, yesterday.

The building can't be revamped because it is a standard design, said Robert Cable, regional real estate director for Foodmaker.

A traffic analysis was requested at the last public hearing.

Valentino reported that George March, Dist. 10 engineer from the state highway department, concurred with village officials that right turns only should be allowed both in and out of the Jack-In-The-Box.

LEO WILKE, the village's traffic consultant, reported also that right turns only should be allowed. He also recommended narrowing drive-ways leading in and out of the Jack-In-The-Box from Roselle Road.

A 52 foot high sign was also proposed. The sign, on a pole, is an 8 foot square box with a clown's head on spring protruding stationery from the box.

ZBA members encouraged a 30 foot sign be designed in line with the Shakey's Pizza sign and the Firestone sign that will neighbor Jack-In-The-Box on either side.

Atty. David Platt, representing Foodmaker, said all village ordinances dictating sign limitations, drive-way sizes and seating ratios in the building will be met.

REFUSAL BY THE village to allow the proposed Mark IV on grounds not supported by existing ordinances will be taken to the courts for settlement, Platt said.

The ZBA will decide on its recommendation to the village board at the Nov. 17 ZBA meeting. Final decision on the matter rests with the village board of trustees.

Robert Gayner, 13 W. Monterey, Schaumburg, is in Saint Alexius hospital following an auto accident at Roselle and Monterey roads Tuesday evening.

Gayner sustained a fractured breastbone.

Also involved in the accident was William H. Johnson, RR Box 130, Roselle who was treated for contusions and released.

Gayner was making a left turn onto Monterey from the northbound lane of Roselle Road and Johnson was headed southbound on Roselle Road when their cars collided.

No citations were issued by Schaumburg Police because statements could not be taken from the drivers. Both men were taken to St. Alexius Hospital by Schaumburg Fire Department.

CAMPUS LIFE VOLUNTEERS have been working for several weeks on renovating two older homes in Arlington Heights, remodeling the houses for Halloween week. Dan Coffey from Trinity Seminary works on one of the rooms of the houses. The houses will be

"haunted" next week and will be open for brave residents who want to tour through them. Campus Life is a non-denominational Christian organization for high school and college students. It draws members from all the Northwest and North Shore Suburbs.

Home Of Your Nightmares?

by SANDRA BROWNING

The mystery of the dark unknown is being built into two older homes in Arlington Heights.

The Campus Life organization, a non-denominational Christian group for high school and college students in the Northwest and North Shore suburbs, is renovating the older homes, preparing them to be "haunted" during Halloween week.

Last year, Campus Life renovated a home which was about to be torn down just south of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library, 500 N. Dunton St., and about 2,000 young adults toured through the house of horrors.

During the past few weeks, volunteer adults and members of the Campus Life staff have been working on the homes near downtown Arlington Heights in preparation for a four-day "Haunted House" event. The walls have been painted black and doors have been put in so that visitors may walk through rooms easily.

People may tour the houses beginning next week. They will be open from 7 to 9:45 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday and from 7 to 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday. The exact location of the houses will be announced later. Campus Life workers are afraid they might have some premature visits if the location was announced this week.

The heating and electrical systems of the homes were completely revamped and approved by the village's building department before workers started adding their own horrible touches.

Lattoff Motor Sales of Arlington Heights owns the buildings which are scheduled for demolition soon. The company offered to let Campus Life use the buildings for haunted houses and the organization went to work cleaning them out and remodeling them.

Because of problems with junior high schools students last year, none of these students will be allowed to go through the house unescorted. Last year, some of the younger kids "went bananas" because they were so frightened, according to Campus Life representatives.

Guards at the doors will also be checking older adults closely because the houses promise to be so scary that "adults may get heart attacks. And we're not kidding," according to Clayton Baumann from Campus Life.

The organization will be using about six professional makeup artists to help with the decorating of staff members' faces, faces, turning them into werewolves and other delightful creatures.

The haunted houses are aimed at the high school and college aged crowd, although others may tour the houses. By aiming at a specific age group, Campus Life staff members can do more "horrible" planning than if they tried to appeal to a general audience, Baumann said.

The main building has nearly twice as many rooms this year as the Haunted house run by the organization last year. The entire program is more than double the size of last year's, runs twice as long and promises to be "twice as scary," according to the Campus Life representatives.

The entire operation and construction of the haunted houses will take about 100 people. Construction involved bringing the old houses up to meet building code standards and then remodeling the rooms.

Baumann said a lot of the work is being done by college students who went through the haunted house last year and thought it was so good that they wanted to work on the project for this year.

Campus Life representatives said that people will be stationed in each room to help with crowd control and to keep people moving.

The organization is also trying to line up a musical group to play and has scheduled movies for people who are waiting to go through the house, Baumann said. Last year, some visitors waited up to three hours to tour the haunted house.

Campus Life will be using three floors of the buildings and workers have built an outside staircase to help with traffic control. The admission charge will be a $1 per person and about 3,000 people are expected to tour the homes.

Park Registration High

More than 200 persons have registered for recreational programs being offered by Hoffman Estates Park District this fall and winter, Mrs. Anne Schuerings, acting director of parks and recreation, reported this week.

Registration, which began last Saturday, will continue through Oct. 24 and interested residents are asked to complete forms and pay course fees at park offices, Vogel Park, 650 W. Higgins Road.

With the exception of a few activities which are already in progress, most programs will begin in mid-November and are detailed in brochures sent to each resident of the park district last week.

Laskonis Not Village President

A typographical error in the Oct. 12 Herald described James M. Laskonis of 7827 Ramsgate Circle South, of Hanover Park, as a president of the village.

Laskonis is a resident, and does not hold any elected office. He is a member of the street committee. Richard Baker is village president.

Reading Topic Of PTA Meeting

Mrs. Eileen Little, School Dist. 54 Open Court Reading Consultant, will speak at the 8 p.m. Oct. 27 Anne Fox Elementary School, PTA meeting in Hanover Park.

Mrs. Little's talk is entitled "Methods Used to Teach Reading," and the topic is in line with this year's PTA theme, "It's Time to Care."

Parents of fourth grade students may visit their children's classes after the business meeting. Open house for just the fourth grade classes will be held that night.

The first grade classes are donating refreshments that will be served after the meeting.

'Studs' Terkel To Speak At College

Elgin Community College will present Louis "Studs" Terkel, author of the best seller "Hard Times — An Oral History of the Great Depression," on Oct. 30 at the main campus building, 1700 Spartan Dr., Elgin beginning at 12 noon.

This is Terkel's second appearance at the college. Two years ago he joined a student panel to discuss today's youth in one of a series of programs sponsored by ECC and the Fox Valley Mental Health Association.

Born in 1912, Terkel grew up in Chicago. He was graduated from the University of Chicago in 1932 and from the Chicago Law School in 1934. He has acted in radio soap operas, been a disk jockey, a sports commentator, a TV master of ceremonies and has traveled all over the world doing on-the-spot interviews.

Currently he has a daily radio program on WFMT Chicago, which includes interviews, readings, documentaries and musical commentary. In addition to "Hard Times," he is the author of "Division Street: America" and "Giants of Jazz," an introduction to jazz for young people.

There is no charge for the noon program, and the public is invited to attend.

McDONALD'S GRAND OPENING in Schaumburg last week drew over 4,000 persons who saw Ronald McDonald, the clown and exhibitions on how McDonald hamburgers are made. The new location is at 522 W.

Golf Road. The McDonald's chain offers a limited menu centered on hamburgers and emphasizes fast and clean service.

Al Capp To Lead Republican Rally

Cartoonist Al Capp, creator of Li'l Abner and Daisy Mae will lead an Elk Grove Township rally today of almost the entire slate of Republican candidates running for State and County offices in the Nov. 3 election.

Headed the list of candidates is U.S. Sen. Ralph Smith. He will be joined by Ray Page, who is seeking reelection as superintendent of public instruction and Edmund Kucharski, candidate for state treasurer.

THE RALLY WILL begin at 8 p.m. at Lincoln Junior High School, Mount Prospect, and candidates will answer questions during the refreshment hour after the program.

Almost all the important candidates for county offices and the candidates for county commissioner from the suburbs will also attend.

Rounding out the list will be Illinois Sen. John Graham and State Representatives David Regner and Eugene Schlickman.

Republican Committeeman Carl Hansen said he was pleased, "so many of the candidates have been able to fit the Elk Grove Township rally into their busy schedules. It's a tribute to our township's ability to deliver a large Republican plurality for them, which they need to offset the Democratic vote in the city."

Cadets Will Meet Tuesday

Hollis Hatfield, civilian liaison officer for the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, will be guest speaker at the 7:30 p.m. Oct. 27 Tuesday meeting of the Civil Air Patrol Provost Township Composite Squadron 23.

The squadron of Cadet and senior CAP enthusiasts meets in the St. Columba Educational Building meeting rooms at Irving Park and Barrington Roads in Hanover Park every Tuesday.

The squadron is made up of boys between 13-18 years of age.

However membership is open to girls and boys.

The membership roster includes persons from Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Hanover Park, Streamwood, Roseville, and Chicago whose common interest, aviation, has brought them together.

New cadets are now being accepted.

The only requirement is an interest in CAP and boys and girls who are between 13-18 are eligible. Under a senior cadet program cadets over 18 who started the program before they were 18 can stay on in the squadron until they are 21.

Tuesday's meeting is open to cadets, their parents and anyone interested in the Academy.

Hatfield will talk about the school's program, and entrance requirements. He will explain how appointments to the academy are obtained and answer questions.

Tool Box Stolen From Work Area

An 800 pound tool box was stolen from the work area at the Dirksen School construction site in the Timbercrest subdivision, Schaumburg.

The incident was reported by workmen Monday when they returned to the site after the week end. The box contained varied tools and supplies used in construction.

Western Electric Addition Planned

A 132,000 square foot addition to the existing Western Electric office building in Rolling Meadows will be constructed by early 1972 on land immediately north of the present site.

When completed, the addition will accommodate some 1,000 employees and will include a cafeteria and parking facilities. Groundbreaking will take place in the spring.

The addition will consist of two stories and will be similar in design to the present structure. It will be attached to the existing building by a glass-enclosed walkway.

According to L. V. Jagnow, public information director for the firm, the addition will not house any new departments, but will expand on office space necessary for operations.

Because the firm has been running short of space, an 18-month lease was recently signed for office space in a recently constructed office building on Wilke Road one block south of Campbell, Jagnow said.

"BY THE TIME this lease is up, we'll be able to move into the new addition," he said.

The existing Western Electric building, at 3800 Golf Rd., consists of 287,000 square feet and serves as the firm's headquarters for the four-state area of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin.

The 2,100 employees now working in the building are primarily engineers who design central office telephone equipment.

The Western Electric property in Rolling Meadows totals approximately 40 acres. According to Jagnow, the firm probably will be unable to purchase more land for further expansion because there is no land available near the building.

Other Western Electric offices within the Chicago area are in Aurora and in Cicero, where manufacturing is done. Another branch is being constructed in Lisle.

Randhurst Named In Cullerton Tax Probe

by GERRY DeZONNA

The tax records of the Randhurst Corp., owner of Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect, will be investigated by a state senate subcommittee in connection with alleged tax assessment reductions granted by County Assessor P.J. Cullerton.

State Sen. Arthur R. Swanson, R-Chicago, chairman of the state senate subcommittee for assessment practices, said yesterday Randhurst Shopping Center is one of several shopping centers in the area which will be included in the committee's investigation of tax assessment reductions.

"We're currently investigating parcels of property in which there have been glaring discrepancies in the tax assessments. At the moment, we're zeroing in on twelve buildings in the city, and once we've finished these investigations, we'll proceed with our review of shopping centers in the county," Swanson said.

ROBERT HANRAHAN, Cook County superintendent of schools, has also charged that Randhurst Shopping Center as well as six other shopping centers in the county are "grossly underassessed."

Hanrahan said Tuesday the assessed valuation of Randhurst "should be almost quadrupled." The 1969 assessed valuation of a shopping center is $8,091,105," he said.

In addition to Randhurst, the subcommittee in the newspaper or we've seen on tele-mittee will also investigate alleged tax-assessment reductions for Old Orchard, Skokie; Hillside Shopping Center, Wolf Road at the Eisenhower Expressway; Evergreen Plaza, 95th and Western streets; Lawrencewood Shopping Center, Oakton and Waukegan roads; and Dixie Square Shopping Plaza, 151st Street and Dixie Highway.

Richard McCarthy, public relations director of the Randhurst Corp., said yesterday the corporation has not been notified of an investigation by Swanson's committee.

"WE'VE HEARD NOTHING about the investigation other than what we've read vision. To the best of my knowledge, Randhurst has not received any cuts in its assessed valuation," McCarthy explained.

Randhurst Corp. is equally owned by Carson Pine Scott and Co., Montgomery Ward and Wieboldt's, McCarthy said.

Swanson's committee is currently reviewing the files on 12 buildings in Chicago, including the Brunswick Building, Merchandise Mart and Prudential Building.

"It's taken us 10 days to review 10 files, and at this point, it's evident that favoritism plays a very big part in the granting of tax-assessment cuts for the owners of downtown properties. There is an obvious need for regulatory legislation, and this committee intends to prove this need as well as the passage of regulatory legislation," Swanson said.

Swanson said the investigation of tax-assessment reductions is the result of "information secured by the news media following a review of the county tax rolls."

"IT HAS BEEN brought to our attention that property owners who are friends of the Mayor (Richard Daley) or the assessor (Cullerton) have been granted substantial cuts in the assessed valation of their properties," Swanson said.

"My subcommittee will investigate the tax cuts granted to shopping centers, but at this time, I can't tell you when those investigations will be scheduled. This will all depend on when our investigations or the major buildings in the city have been concluded," he said.

Tax-assessment reductions reportedly were granted to these businesses on the grounds that they needed tax relief to show a fair profit.

Swanson said a search of the assessor's records has provided "no such economic hardships as grounds for tax cuts" on the 12 Chicago buildings now under investigation.

Plan Funarama On Nov 20

The Rev. Jim Berndt of Hoffman Estates, who heads the Musicrama Evangelistic Association which conducts Evangelistic Campaigns throughout America announced a Funarama Program for Nov. 20 at the Hillcrest School in Hoffman Estates.

This first program of the season, scheduled from 7 to 9 p.m., will be held in the school's all purpose room.

It is designed primarily for boys and girls from 6 to 13 years old and will include games and a musical program.

Singarama programs are geared to the Whole family.

The next Singarama, an all musical program will be held Jan. 17, 1971 at the Hillcrest School.

It will feature the Conettes, and Conaries, two groups of young people from James B. Conant High School in Hoffman Estates.

Reverend Berndt, returned home this week after conducting an Evangelistic campaign at Calvary Memorial Church, Hyattsville, Md. The Rev. Berndt also held services at the Kresson Community Church of Philadelphia.

Land Parcel Transfer OK'd

A resolution accepting transfer of six parcels of land from Dist. 54 was approved by members of Hoffman Estates Park Board Tuesday.

Park acceptance of the school playground areas, to be ratified by Dist. 54 later this month, completes nearly a year of negotiation with the school district which also included revisions and updating of park school lease agreements.

Under terms of the transfer, the park district must use school land for recreational purposes or the sites will revert to the school district.

IN OTHER park business this week, board members announced a committee-of-the-whole meeting to be held Thursday, Oct. 29 at 8:30 p.m. at park offices.

Purpose of the meeting will be discussion of anticipated expenditures for the remainder of the year and will be attended by Tom Teschner, director of recreation, and Bill Zack, maintenance superintendent.

Park Pres. Fred Weaver and Mrs. Anne Schuering, acting director of parks and recreation, plan to meet Saturday morning with Marvin J. Lapicola, Dist. 54 director of business services, to discuss problems at school facilities used by the park district.

This meeting stemmed from a recent letter sent to the park district by Lapicola and recommended by Curtis Casey, principal of Keller Junior High School.

A review of rules, which include no smoking on school property and proper clean-up methods to be employed by the park district are among several items planned for discussion.

Bomb Scare At Fremd H.S.

Teachers and police took precautionary measures early Tuesday morning when an unidentified caller reported that a bomb had been placed in Fremd High School.

Richard Sikorski, Fremd High police consultant, said the school's switchboard operator received a call at 10:30 a.m. in which a "young voice" said "There is a bomb in the English wing."

Sikorski said the first and second floors of the north wing of the school were searched thoroughly immediately after the call was reported but that no bomb was found.

Students in the building were not evacuated, he said. Teachers, who had each been preassigned to a specific task for such a procedure assisted Sikorski in searching the building. He said the search was completed in approximately two minutes.

Although this was the first time a bomb threat has occurred at Fremd

High, "it usually happens several times per year" in Dist. 211 schools, said Bruce Altergott, assistant superintendent of the high school district.

"EACH TIME IT happens we do not evacuate the building because this is exactly what the caller wants," Altergott said.

He explained that the calls are usually received just prior to or after a class and could come from a student who simply wants to disrupt classes to avoid taking a test.

"If we do evacuate, we do so on the basis of a fire drill, which calls for students to be out of the building in two minutes," he said.

Currently, all schools in High School Dist. 211 have a precautionary procedure worked out with local police and fire departments.

"We feel we have a procedure worked out from expert advice from community agencies and outside counsel," he said.

ALTERGOTT ADDED that Dist. 211 officials are now re-evaluating this procedure because "the times are past when we can simply brush these things off as pranks."

Sikorski also felt Tuesday's incident was meant to be nothing more than a prank. He said there are no suspects and that the phone call was not traced. Out side police and fire assistance was not summoned.

Earlier this year a school bus parked behind Fremd High was slightly damaged when someone tried to set the vehicle ablaze and last month two Palatine police vehicles were bombed while parked in the police parking lot, 110 W. Washington Street.

Asked if there could be any connection between the previous incidents and Tuesday's threat, Sikorski said "There could be, but I seriously doubt it, to be quite honest."

Board Endorses Transit Studies

The Wheeling Village Board agreed Monday to participate in a major transportation study being conducted by the Northwest Municipal Conference (NMC).

The board authorized village expenditure of 10 cents per person in the village, (a total of $1,477), to join other NMC municipalities in sponsoring a study to analyze the transportation needs of the Northwest suburban area.

Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon, who brought the proposal before the board, said he needed a decision on the study funds this week.

The proposed study will be conducted by Harper College in cooperation with the Center for Urban Studies at the Chicago campus of the University of Illinois. The village's participation in the study will include only the providing of funds at this point.

THE STUDY will take approximately one year to complete.

Goals of the project include providing a coordinated transportation system throughout the Northwest suburban area including streets, highways, mass transit terminals, and parking facilities.

The report will include compiling reports from communities in the NMC and interviewing local governmental officials and major area employers.

Surveys to determine future transportation needs of residents will also be included.

The proposal will include suggestions for financing a coordinated transportation system.

Wheeling Trustee Ira Bird commented before the unanimous approval of funds for the study Monday that he would be in favor of an independent study to solve Wheeling's transportation problems.

Bird was critical, however, of a proposed plan to subsidize the financially ailing United Motor Coach Co. with motor fuel tax funds.

That proposal, another area wide discussion of transportation problem solutions, has not been ruled on by the Wheeling Board.

SCANLON, WHO HAS represented the village at meetings on both of the transportation proposals, has come out in favor of the bus subsidy plan.

Cost of the subsidy for Wheeling would be about $4,152 a year, Scanlon estimated. A transportation district would be formed to distribute the funds to the bus company.

"I am not opposed to anything that will improve the transportation in Wheeling," Scanlon has said.

Currently Wheeling is served only by one bus route on Milwaukee Avenue which goes to Chicago. The village has no bus service to shopping centers.

At a committee meeting Monday to discuss increased taxi cab fares, Bob Birks of the Wheeling Village Cab Co. told trustees that Wheeling is "a good cab town." Trustees had commented earlier that taxis are the only mode of public transportation available to residents of most areas of the village.

Students To Meet Mayors

The new "public officials" in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove will meet today with the mayors of the two villages to discuss their duties.

The new "officials" are Dist. 21 junior high school students who will serve in various village offices Monday as part of the district's observance of American Education Week.

The students from Cooper Junior High in Buffalo Grove who are participating in the program will have lunch at noon today with Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Don Thompson. Then they will tour village offices in the municipal building.

Wheeling students from Holmes and London Junior High schools will meet with Wheeling Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon at 3:30 p.m. in the Wheeling Municipal Building.

Students in the various offices were chosen on the basis of essays they submitted telling why they wanted to participate in the program.

Assuming the post of Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Monday will be student Bill Carlson.

Freiberg and Laurel Faust, Wheeling trustees.

Mike Mucciante, will assume the post of Wheeling building and zoning director; Brian Buenzow, Wheeling plan commissioner; Gail Mills, Wheeling police chief; Sam Bieber, Wheeling director of public works; and Valerie Galow, Wheeling village clerk.

The students will be sworn into office at their respective village board meetings Monday.

Allowing students to become public officials is only one of many programs that will be conducted in Dist. 21 during American Education Week next week. Theme of the program will be "Justice Under the Law."

Randhurst Named In Cullerton Tax Probe

by GERRY DeZONNA

The tax records of the Randhurst Corp., owner of Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect, will be investigated by a state senate subcommittee in connection with alleged tax assessment reductions granted by County Assessor P.J. Cullerton.

State Sen. Arthur R. Swanson, R-Chicago, chairman of the state senate subcommittee for assessment practices, said yesterday Randhurst Shopping Center is one of several shopping centers in the area which will be included in the committee's investigation of tax assessment reductions.

"We're currently investigating parcels of property in which there have been glaring discrepancies in the tax assessments. At the moment, we're zeroing in on twelve buildings in the city, and once we've finished these investigations, we'll proceed with our review of shopping centers in the county," Swanson said.

ROBERT HANRAHAN, Cook County superintendent of schools, has also charged that Randhurst Shopping Center as well as six other shopping centers in the county are "grossly underassessed."

Hanrahan said Tuesday the assessed valuation of Randhurst "should be almost quadrupled." The 1969 assessed valuation of a shopping center is $6,091,105, he said.

In addition to Randhurst, the subcommittee will also investigate alleged tax-assessment reductions for Old Orchard, Skokie; Hillside Shopping Center, Wolf Road at the Eisenhower Expressway; Evergreen Plaza, 95th and Western streets; Lawrencewood Shopping Center, Oakton and Waukegan roads; and Dixie Square Shopping Plaza, 151st Street and Dixie Highway.

Richard McCarthy, public relations director of the Randhurst Corp., said yesterday the corporation has not been notified of an investigation by Swanson's committee.

"WE'VE HEARD NOTHING about the investigation other than what we've read in the newspaper or we've seen on television. To the best of my knowledge, Randhurst has not received any cuts in its assessed valuation," McCarthy explained.

Randhurst Corp. is equally owned by Carson Pirie Scott and Co., Montgomery Ward and Wieboldt's, McCarthy said.

Swanson's committee is currently reviewing the files on 12 buildings in Chicago, including the Brunswick Building, Merchandise Mart and Prudential Building.

"It's taken us 10 days to review 10 files, and at this point, it's evident that favoritism plays a very big part in the granting of tax-assessment cuts for the owners of downtown properties. There is an obvious need for regulatory legislation, and this committee intends to prove this need as well as the passage of regulatory legislation," Swanson said.

Swanson said the investigation of tax-assessment reductions is the result of "information secured by the news media following a review of the county tax rolls."

"IT HAS BEEN brought to our attention that property owners who are friends of the Mayor (Richard Daley) or the assessor (Cullerton) have been granted substantial cuts in the assessed valuation of their properties," Swanson said.

"My subcommittee will investigate the tax cuts granted to shopping centers, but at this time, I can't tell you when those investigations will be scheduled. This will all depend on when our investigations of the major buildings in the city have been concluded," he said.

Tax-assessment reductions reportedly were granted to these businesses on the grounds that they needed tax relief to show a fair profit.

Swanson said a search of the assessor's records has provided "no such economic hardships as grounds for tax cuts" on the 12 Chicago buildings now under investigation.

Feature Exhibit of Governors

Illinois' past governors are featured in an exhibit of the Illinois State Historical Society Historymobile, which will be in Wheeling today through Saturday.

The mobile will be parked outside the Wheeling Historical Society Building 84 S. Milwaukee Ave. from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day. The public is invited to view the exhibit.

The exhibit includes brief biographies of Illinois' 35 governors, plus photographs, antiques from the state capitol building, campaign buttons, original letters, posters from the Civil War and World Wars I and II and various other artifacts. The items cover a 150-year period, from 1818 to the present.

The items are arranged chronologically in display cases in the mobile, which was a gift to the people of Illinois from the Robert R. McCormick Charitable Trust of Chicago. All of the items in the display are from collections of the Illinois State Historical Library.

The visit of the mobile to Wheeling is sponsored by the Wheeling Historical Society.

Schubert Services Set

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. today in Des Plaines for Frederick O. Schubert, vice president of the Wheeling Public Library District, who died Monday.

Schubert, 69, was elected to a two-year term on the board in April of this year. He had served as an appointed library district trustee beginning in July of 1969.

Schubert was responsible for public relations for the district in the recent successful referendum, held for a new library building and increased tax revenues for the district.

THE BOARD is expected to discuss plans for filling the vacancy left by Schubert's death at its meeting in November.

Schubert, who lived at 200 Deborah Ln., Wheeling was known in Wheeling for his column "I Wonder Why" published in the Wheeling Reminder. He wrote the column under the pen name of Richard L. Hope.

He was retired managing editor of publications for the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

Schubert, who died in Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge, was preceded in death by his wives Ruth and Margaret. He is survived by one son Gregory of Bowling Green, Ohio, and one grandchild.

Funeral services will be at the Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets, Des Plaines. The Rev. Ernest C. Grant will officiate.

NOW CONCRETE AND steel beams, it will soon be a new swimming pool at Stevenson High School in Prairie View. The pool is part of an addition now under construction at the high school. The addition will include the pool, a gymnasium, library and classrooms. It will be finished, August, 1971.

Officials Back Referendum

by BETSY BROOKER
Most community leaders and residents contacted at random by the Herald indicated they supported the Dist. 23 referendum.

The referendum will be held this Saturday at Sullivan School, located at Palatine and Schoenbeck roads. Voters will be asked to approve a tax hike in the building fund and education fund and a special levy to build a new school in Arlington Heights. In addition, district officials are requesting authorization to go to the maximum limit in selling bonds, to finance additions and improvements to existing schools.

Several of the people called by the Herald for the poll did not know what the district is proposing in the referendum. And they weren't sure they were going to vote. Others said they believed the district needed money but they didn't think they could afford to vote "yes."

However, all of the community leaders and the majority of the residents called at random support the referendum.

"My youngest child is attending Harper Junior College, so I am not involved with the referendum except as an interested taxpayer," said Mrs. Erville Crain. "I believe the schools need the funds, and I hope they are making the best use of them. But some of my neighbors feel there are a few too many frills in the schools."

ACCORDING TO Richard Schulz, president of the Prospect Heights Old Town Sanitary District, "The school district is in dire need of the money. Any person in the community who would just intelligently sit down and realize that when you have more children attending school in today's economy on a budget that was established years ago, you are going to have a problem. I think we have a moral obligation to vote yes on the referendum."

"I don't like to see the trailers outside of MacArthur Junior High School," said Mrs. E. G. Doyle. "I support the referendum 100 per cent, and I don't believe they are asking for too much. The referendum has been defeated so many times they have to ask for all five proposals now."

"These are our future American leaders and they need a good education," added Mrs. Doyle. "We just have to pay a little more to get it."

According to Bill Williams, president of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association, "We should vote for some of the items on the referendum in order to maintain a quality school system. We need to be progressive and not remain static. This is what the school district is trying to do."

ANOTHER "YES" vote for the referendum came from Mrs. W. T. Lynch. She said, "We have to do something about our schools. They need more space."

"It is one of the facts of education, that it costs more now," said Bill Kuhns, president of the Prospect Heights Park District board. "It is just going to take more money to maintain the standards in our schools and to give an education to the increasing number of people coming into the system."

Shack Being Built; Who Will 'Guard' It?

A new crossing guard shack is being built for the corner of Schoenbeck Road and Anthony Drive in Wheeling, and Wheeling police are looking for someone to fill the job of crossing guard at that corner.

Wheeling Police Lt. Robert Llewellyn said yesterday that a new crossing guard will be needed for the corner by Nov. 1.

The village pays guards $3 an hour for their services in the morning, at noon, and in the afternoon.

Retired people and housewives fill many of the guard positions currently in the village.

Applicants for the job may contact Llewellyn at the police station in the municipal building at 255 W. Dundee Rd.

THE SCENE IS from the Wheeling High School production of "The Bad Seed." Sue Rich, left, watches in horror as a house burns down in a fire set by her daughter. She is comforted by Elizabeth Brol, at right. The play will be presented at 8 p.m. today and again Saturday in the WHS Little Theater.

Halloween Parade Planned For Pupils

A Halloween parade will be held Saturday at Kildeer School in Long Grove for all Kildeer elementary pupils.
The youngsters will parade around the school in Halloween costumes beginning at 3 p.m.
Prizes will be awarded for the prettiest, funniest, ugliest, scariest and most original costumes.
The parade is being sponsored by the Kildeer Community Club.

Low-Cost Housing Backed By AAUW

As the controversy over low and moderate income-housing continues, the local branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) recently jumped into the fray.

The Arlington Heights branch of AAUW, which includes members from throughout the Northwest suburban area, passed a resolution recently to encourage the development of low and moderate-income housing in the area.

The AAUW last week sent copies of the resolution to village boards throughout the area.

A letter was sent by a member of the group to state that the resolution "contains an element that can do more harm than good" soon after the resolutions were mailed.

THE TWO LETTERS were brought up during the meeting of the Wheeling Village Board Monday night. Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon said that the local board and plan commission were working through annexations and zoning changes to "do everything possible to consider moderate income housing" for the village.

The resolution was passed Oct. 8 and states:

"Whereas, the Arlington Heights Branch, American Association of University Women, has a deep concern for the provision of adequate housing and is aware of the need, both local and national, for well-planned housing for people of all income levels; and

"WHEREAS, the Illinois State Division, American Association of University Women, adopted the following in April, 1970: 'We support measures to alleviate hunger, cultural, social and economic deprivation and to eliminate substandard dwellings; therefore be it

"Resolved: That the Arlington Heights Branch, AAUW calls upon the village governments of the Northwest Suburban areas within which members reside to encourage the development of low and moderate income housing while including provision for open space within all village limits so that people at all income levels will be able to live comfortably within our communities."

The copy of the resolution was sent Oct. 12 and the letter from Mrs. Joseph Braun, a member of AAUW, was dated three days later.

Mrs. Braun wrote, "As relatively harmless as this resolution appears, it contains an element that can do more harm than good. It carries with it the stigma of having been forced upon a group of supposedly intelligent women.

"TO THIS DAY, a great number of AAUW members are not aware that such a resolution exists since it did not appear in the organization newsletter or on the agenda of the meeting (general meeting at which the resolution was passed)."

Mrs. Braun, 1210 E. Campbell St., Arlington Heights, is a member of the legislative committee which originally approved the resolution.

During a meeting of the legislative committee in September, the matter of a resolution on low and moderate income housing was discussed, according to Mrs. Thomas Haack, chairman of the committee who lives at 903 Burning Tree Lane, Arlington Heights.

The discussion was published in the AAUW's newsletter so that other than committee members could attend. Mrs. Haack said that the state and national AAUW groups have endorsed the idea of local communities providing housing for low and moderate income families.

THE COMMITTEE discussed forming a study group but the consensus was that AAUW members had already been encouraged to attend meetings within the past year on the subject and the League of Women Voters was already working on a fact sheet on the subject, Mrs. Haack said.

The committee voted to have the chairman present a resolution at the October meeting of the committee. The presentation of the resolution to the committee was published in the organization's newsletter, Mrs. Haack said.

Shortly after the committee approved the resolution in October, it was presented to the general meeting and approved by a voice vote.

Mrs. Braun said in her letter that a "few members" arranged for the presentation of the resolution at the general meeting and that no advance notice of the topic coming up was given.

MRS. HAACK SAID that AAUW will be having no regular meeting next month and thus the approval of the resolution would have had to wait until December if it had not been presented at the October meeting.

The committee chairman said that unfortunately "there are a few people who are very unhappy."

In order for any association to state a position, "there are going to be some dissenting members" who do not agree with the position, Mrs. Haack said.

She pointed out that the committee had been discussing the issue of low and moderate income housing for about a year.

License Fees To Be Less

License fees for recreation vehicles such as campers and boat and camping trailers are going to be cheaper next year in Wheeling.

The village board agreed Monday to drop rates for licensing of the vehicles from $15 to $8.

Residents can get the license for even less than that however.

If they buy a license before a Feb. 15 deadline, the village will charge only $5 for the metal tag which must be attached to the trailer's state license plates.

Trustee Ira Bird said Monday that the village's purpose for having a licensing provision for the vehicles was to be able to enforce local ordinances about screening and indoor storage of the vehicles.

Bird said that the new lower fees were closer to the $8 charged for automobile stickers ($13 after Feb. 15) charged by the village.

The $5 fee will adequately cover the costs of inspections of the recreational vehicles by various village departments, Bird said.

Village Cab Rates Rise

Taxi fares for trips longer than a mile and a half are going to cost more for Wheeling cab users. The village board Monday approved an increase in fares for the Wheeling Village Cab Co.

The board agreed to change village ordinances so that taxi fares will be 45 cents for the first half mile and then 10 cents for each additional 1/6 mile.

The rates have been 45 cents for the first 2/5 of a mile and 10 cents for each additional 1/5 of a mile.

The change in rates will have practically no effect on trips within the village limits, according to Bob Birks, president of the cab firm. However, trips to Wheeling from other municipalities or from Wheeling to Chicago or other suburbs will cost 10 cents more per mile under the new fare system.

IN CONNECTION with the fare increase Birks told village officials that the company would put five cabs on the streets for use in Wheeling instead of the current three.

"This is the only town in the area without a railroad (passenger) that's a good cab town," Birks told the board. He said that a lot of Wheeling people take cabs to and from O'Hare Airport.

Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon urged Birks to pay fees for the two new cab licenses soon. Scanlon said that other cab companies have been inquiring about the two unused licenses which Birks' firm had not paid.

Businessman Praises Police

A Wheeling businessman has praised Wheeling police for investigating a recent burglary at his store.

In a letter to the mayor, village board, fire and police commission on the police chief, Nicholas Sirrell noted that although the police "were unable to apprehend the subjects, they did an excellent job of investigating."

Sirrell and his wife own and operate the Barrel O' Bygones Antique Store at 483 S. Milwaukee Ave. It was broken into Sept. 28.

"As a former police officer with the Morton Grove Police Department for approximately 10 years, I know when a good investigation is done. I would like to let you gentlemen know how much my wife and I appreciate your excellent police department since we all know the police have a job that is most trying and at times unappreciated.

"FURTHER, WE wish to extend a special thank you to Officer K. Dawson, Badge 123. He was the officer that noticed the broken window at the rear of our antique shop while on patrol. Also Sgt. T. Conte for his fine work checking for fingerprints and footprints," Sirrell wrote.

"We feel our police department are doing an outstanding job in patrolling, and feel that our shop is in good hands knowing such conscientious men are on the job," he concluded.

Sirrell also sent a contribution to the Wheeling Police Benevolent Association.

Pennants, Streamers Refused For Opening

There won't be any pennants or streamers to announce the grand opening celebration today through Sunday at the New Martin Oil Service Station at 621 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

The village board Monday refused to grant permission for even the temporary display of pennants or streamers at the station. The service station had requested permission.

A village ordinance prohibits hanging banners, pennants, streamers or strings of lights.

Board members said station officials would be allowed to put up pennants only if they petitioned the village for a variation from the zoning ordinance for the property and went through public hearing procedures.

Vandals Damage Construction Machine

Vandals did $300 damage to a road construction machine parked on Camp McDonald Road west of Wolf Road in Wheeling last weekend.

The machine, which belongs to Milburn Bros. Const. Co. of 704 Central Rd., Mount Prospect, was being used for road work at the site.

A report of the damage to Wheeling police indicated that the gauges had been smashed, dirt had been dumped in the gas tank, two gear levers had been bent, and all fuel line wires were pulled out.

Village Will Object To Apartments

The Village of Buffalo Grove will file an objection with the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals, opposing construction plans for a 680-unit apartment development west of the village.

Richard Raysa, village attorney, told the Herald he will base the objection on the grounds that proper drainage has not been provided for by the developers, Kussuba Development Corp., on the 40-acre site located north of Dundee Road behind the Weidner Egg Farm.

Kussuba is seeking special use zoning for a planned development to allow a density of 18 units per acre, according to Raysa. Plans call for constructing 18 two-and-one-half story buildings containing one and two-bedroom apartment units.

RAYSA SAID he is currently obtaining statements from the village engineers, Hattis Engineering Co., concerning Kussuba's plans for drainage. At the public hearing on the zoning request, representatives for the developer proposed to widen and deepen the branch of Buffalo Creek running through the property to act as a retention basin.

"It's a question of drainage. Our objection will ask them to provide for adequate drainage," Raysa said.

"We are not objecting to multiple-family dwellings being built on the site. We're not concerned about anything but drainage. We can't visualize their proposal (for drainage) doing anything but adding to our problems that already exist," he added.

Village Pres. Don Thompson, in directing Raysa to prepare the objection, said, "Our engineering will never support this (widening of the creek). It just won't solve the problem. It would probably handle about 15 per cent of the problem."

According to law, all objections must be filed with the zoning board of appeals within 21 days from the date of the public hearing on the matter. The hearing was held Oct. 19 in the Palatine Village Hall.

At that hearing, homeowners in Pinehurst Manor, an unincorporated area west of the proposed development also objected. They contended also that flooding problems would be increased and children from the planned complex would overcrowd area schools.

The Village of Palatine is also planning to file a formal objection to the development.

AN AUDIENCE OF junior high and high school girls received tips on proper make-up care Monday at the Buffalo Grove Jayceettes annual charm school. Mrs. Gail Peters, cosmetician at this Carson Pirie Scott Store in the Randhurst Shopping Center, demonstrates with Beth Scheibe, sixth grade at Kilmer School in Buffalo Grove. Four sessions are included in the charm school. Two more sessions remain.

Dist. 21 Students To Meet Mayors

The new "public officials" in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove will meet today with the mayors of the two villages to discuss their duties.

The new "officials" are Dist. 21 junior high school students who will serve in various village offices Monday as part of the district's observance of American Education Week.

The students from Cooper Junior High in Buffalo Grove who are participating in the program will have lunch at noon today with Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Don Thompson. Then they will tour village offices in the municipal building.

Wheeling students from Holmes and London Junior High schools will meet with Wheeling Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon at 3:30 p.m. in the Wheeling Municipal Building.

Students in the various offices were chosen on the basis of essays they submitted telling why they wanted to participate in the program.

Assuming the post of Buffalo Grove Village Pres. Monday will be student Bill Carlson.

Also participating will be Bonnie Brubaker, Buffalo Grove village clerk; Mike Kroll, Buffalo Grove building com-

Mike Muccianite, will assume the post of Wheeling building and zoning director; Brian Buenzow, Wheeling plan commissioner; Gail Mills, Wheeling police chief; Sam Bieber, Wheeling director of public works; and Valerie Galow, Wheeling village clerk.

The students will be sworn into office at their respective village board meetings Monday.

Allowing students to become public officials is only one of many programs that will be conducted in Dist. 21 during American Education Week next week. Theme of the program will be "Justice Under the Law."

Schubert Services Set

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. today in Des Plaines for Frederick O. Schubert, vice president of the Wheeling Public Library District, who died Monday.

Schubert, 69, was elected to a two-year term on the board in April of this year. He had served as an appointed library district trustee beginning in July of 1969.

Schubert was responsible for public relations for the district in the recent successful referendum, held for a new library building and increased tax revenues for the district.

THE BOARD is expected to discuss plans for filling the vacancy left by Schubert's death at its meeting in November.

Schubert, who lived at 200 Deborah Ln., Wheeling was known in Wheeling for his column "I Wonder Why" published in the Wheeling Reminder. He wrote the column under the pen name of Richard L. Hope.

He was retired managing editor of publications for the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

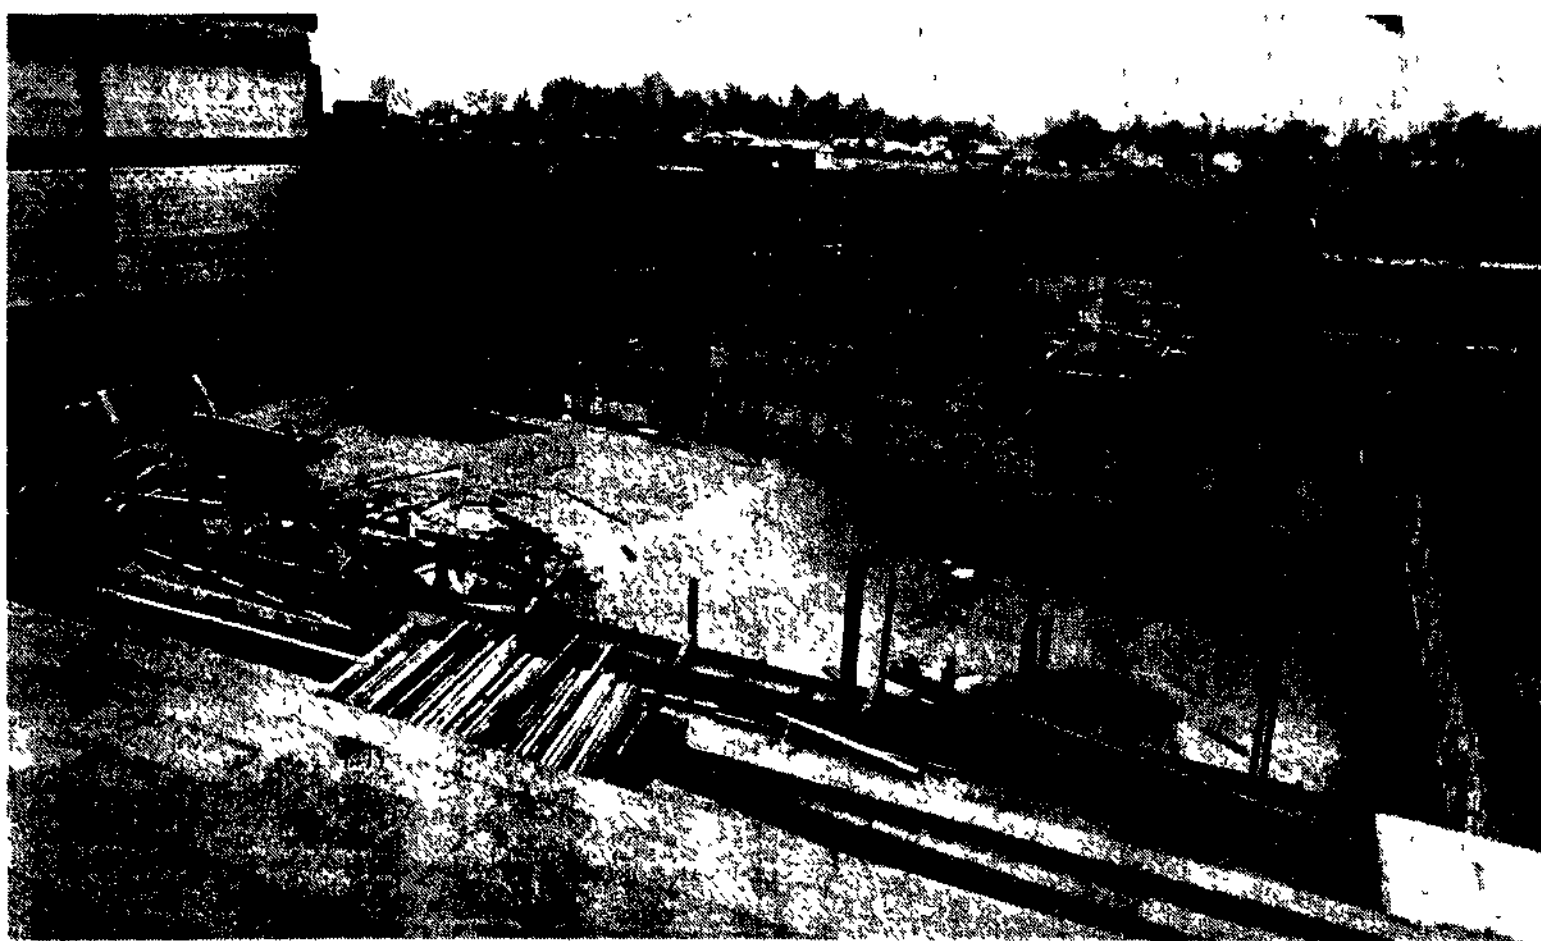

Schubert, who died in Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge, was preceded in death by his wives Ruth and Margaret. He is survived by one son Gregory of Bowling Green, Ohio, and one grandchild.

Funeral services will be at the Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets, Des Plaines. The Rev. Ernest C. Grant will officiate.

Group To Discuss Platform Issues

The Buffalo Grove Alliance, a village political party will hold a platform meeting at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Longfellow School in Buffalo Grove, according to Philip Stevens, an Alliance officer.

He said the meeting will consist of an open forum for residents to present issues for consideration as part of the group's platform.

NOW CONCRETE AND steel beams, it will soon be a new swimming pool at Stevenson High School in Prairie View. The pool is part of an addition now under construction at the high school. The addition will include the pool, a gymnasium, library and classrooms. It will be finished, August, 1971.

Randhurst Named In Cullerton Tax Probe

by GERRY DeZONNA

The tax records of the Randhurst Corp., owner of Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect, will be investigated by a state senate subcommittee in connection with alleged tax assessment reductions granted by County Assessor P.J. Cullerton.

State Sen. Arthur R. Swanson, R-Chicago, chairman of the state senate subcommittee for assessment practices, said yesterday Randhurst Shopping Center is one of several shopping centers in the area which will be included in the committee's investigation of tax assessment reductions.

"We're currently investigating parcels of property in which there have been glaring discrepancies in the tax assessments. At the moment, we're zeroing in on twelve buildings in the city, and once we've finished these investigations, we'll proceed with our review of shopping centers in the county," Swanson said.

ROBERT HANRAHAN, Cook County superintendent of schools, has also charged that Randhurst Shopping Center as well as six other shopping centers in the county are "grossly underassessed."

Hanrahan said Tuesday the assessed valuation of Randhurst "should be almost quadrupled." The 1969 assessed valuation of a shopping center is $6,091,105," he said.

In addition to Randhurst, the subcommittee in the newspaper or we've seen on television will also investigate alleged tax-assessment reductions for Old Orchard, Skokie; Hillside Shopping Center, Wolf Road at the Eisenhower Expressway;

Evergreen Plaza, 95th and Western streets; Lawrencewood Shopping Center, Oakton and Waukegan roads; and Dixie Square Shopping Plaza, 151st Street and Dixie Highway.

Richard McCarthy, public relations director of the Randhurst Corp., said yesterday the corporation has not been notified of an investigation by Swanson's committee.

"WE'VE HEARD NOTHING about the investigation other than what we've read in the newspaper," McCarthy said. "To the best of my knowledge, Randhurst has not received any cuts in its assessed valuation," McCarthy explained.

Randhurst Corp. is equally owned by Carson Pirie Scott and Co., Montgomery Ward and Wieboldt's, McCarthy said. Swanson's committee is currently reviewing the files on 12 buildings in Chicago, including the Brunswick Building, Merchandise Mart and Prudential Building.

"It's taken us 10 days to review 10 files, and at this point, it's evident that favoritism plays a very big part in the granting of tax-assessment cuts for the owners of downtown properties. There is an obvious need for regulatory legislation, and this committee intends to prove this need as well as the passage of regulatory legislation," Swanson said.

Swanson said the investigation of tax-assessment reductions is the result of "information secured by the news media following a review of the county tax rolls."

"IT HAS BEEN brought to our attention that property owners who are friends of the Mayor (Richard Daley) or the assessor (Cullerton) have been granted substantial cuts in the assessed valuation of their properties," Swanson said.

"My subcommittee will investigate the tax cuts granted to shopping centers, but at this time, I can't tell you when those investigations will be scheduled. This will all depend on when our investigations of the major buildings in the city have been concluded," he said.

Tax-assessment reductions reportedly were granted to these businesses on the grounds that they needed tax relief to show a fair profit.

Swanson said a search of the assessor's records has provided "no such economic hardships as grounds for tax cuts" on the 12 Chicago buildings now under investigation.

Officials Back Referendum

by BETSY BROOKER

Most community leaders and residents contacted at random by the Herald indicated they supported the Dist. 23 referendum.

The referendum will be held this Saturday at Sullivan School, located at Palatine and Schoenbeck roads. Voters will be asked to approve a tax hike in the building fund and an education fund and a special levy to build a new school in Arlington Heights. In addition, district officials are requesting authorization to go to the maximum limit in selling bonds, to finance additions and improvements to existing schools.

Several of the people called by the Herald for the poll did not know what the district is proposing in the referendum. And they weren't sure they were going to vote. Others said they believed the district needed money but they didn't think they could afford to vote "yes."

However, all of the community leaders and the majority of the residents called at random support the referendum.

"My youngest child is attending Harper Junior College, so I am not involved with the referendum except as an interested taxpayer," said Mrs. Erville Crain. "I believe the schools need the funds, and I hope they are making the best use of them. But some of my neighbors feel there are a few too many frills in the schools."

ACCORDING TO Richard Schuld, president of the Prospect Heights Old Town Sanitary District, "The school district is in dire need of the money. Any person in the community who would just intelligently sit down and realize that when you have more children attending school in today's economy on a budget that was established years ago, you are going to have a problem. I think we have a moral obligation to vote yes on the referendum."

"I don't like to see the trailers outside of MacArthur Junior High School," said Mrs. E. G. Doyle. "I support the referendum 100 per cent, and I don't believe they are asking for too much. The referendum has been defeated so many times they have to ask for all five proposals now."

"These are our future American leaders and they need a good education," added Mrs. Doyle. "We just have to pay a little more to get it."

According to Bill Williams, president of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association, "We should vote for some of the items on the referendum in order to maintain a quality school system. We need to be progressive and not remain static. This is what the school district is trying to do."

ANOTHER "YES" vote for the referendum came from Mrs. W. T. Lynch. She said, "We have to do something about our schools. They need more space."

"It is one of the facts of education, that it costs more now," said Bill Kuhns, president of the Prospect Heights Park District board. "It is just going to take more money to maintain the standards in our schools and to give an education to the increasing number of people coming into the system."

Shack Being Built; Who Will 'Guard' It?

A new crossing guard shack is being built for the corner of Schoenbeck Road and Anthony Drive in Wheeling, and Wheeling police are looking for someone to fill the job of crossing guard at that corner.

Wheeling Police Lt. Robert Llewellyn said yesterday that a new crossing guard will be needed for the corner by Nov. 1.

The village pays guards $3 an hour for their services in the morning, at noon, and in the afternoon.

Retired people and housewives fill many of the guard positions currently in the village.

Applicants for the job may contact Llewellyn at the police station in the municipal building at 255 W. Dundee Rd.

THE SCENE IS from the Wheeling High School production of "The Bad Seed." Sue Rich, left, watches in horror as a house burns down in a fire set by her daughter. She is comforted

Village May Form Environment Unit

Palatine came a step closer to being one of the few municipalities in Illinois to have a local environmental control board when village officials met Tuesday night.

Members of the board of health and several village trustees instructed local health officer Richard Dawson to prepare a rough draft of a new ordinance providing for the establishment of a Palatine Environmental Control Board.

The action was a result of previous discussions in which many local officials have described the current health ordinance as being "antiquated."

As it stands now, the board of health is primarily concerned with infectious and contagious diseases. "This was the big thing in small towns 50 years ago, but those times are far in the past now," Dawson said.

By creating an environmental control board, the scope of problems could be expanded to include the environmental protection of Palatine, he said.

DAWSON SAID it could take up to several months before the fine details of the proposal are worked out.

If it is created, however, the environmental control board would absorb current members of the existing board of health, add members with expertise in various fields such as chemistry and biology and serve as a referral and advisory group to the Village board of trustees.

"The purpose of this group would be to improve the environment of the village. It's as simple as that," Dawson said.

As an example of the proposed group's duties, Dawson said board members would be responsible to see that incoming industrial developments meet all health, safety and environmental regulations.

The board could also deal with problems like noise abatement, tree disease, rabies, refuse collection, pesticides, air pollution and anything which affects the local environment.

ANOTHER ASSET of setting up such a board would be that it would draw on community resources. "We want to establish a board that will form a rather large umbrella over many people and many agencies to serve as a vehicle for accomplishing things we can't do now," he said.

Dawson was referring to problems the current board of health has in securing the necessary "money, manpower and inclination" to meet the environmental needs of Palatine.

He said it is possible that money will have to be budgeted for the proposed board during the next budget year, but that this, like other aspects of its development, are only in the planning stages.

"First we have to decide exactly what we are going to do," he said. At present, a seven to nine member board has been proposed.

Its relationship to the village will be in an advisory capacity and the enforcement arm of the environmental board would be the Palatine Health Department, which Dawson heads.

Dawson said that a Palatine environmental control board obviously will not stop pollution in neighboring communities, but that Palatine's program hopefully will be successful to the point of influencing other communities to start their own environmental control boards.

THIS SCENE WILL be recreated tomorrow night when the Fremd Vikings play the first homecoming game in their history under lights. This will be the second night game held at Fremd since the lights were installed with the sponsorship of the schools booster club early this month. Game time is 6 p.m. and Hersey High School will be their opponents.

'Locomotive' To Chase Again

"The Great Locomotive Chase," will be the first in a series of films in the holiday movie program which begins this Friday at the Palatine Park District.

The two-hour long movie will be shown at 1:30 p.m. in the recreation building, 282 E. Palatine Road. A 50 cent admission will be charged.

Duane Hosmer, assistant recreation director, said this is the first in a series of Walt Disney movies which will be shown on days children have a holiday from school.

The program is for children of all ages and will include other films such as "Treasure Island" on Nov. 27 and "Hans Brinker and the Silver Skates" on Dec. 29. The program will continue through April.

Fremd Queen Naming Set

Fremd High School's homecoming queen for 1970 will be named at a pep rally in the school gym this afternoon.

The coronation will be the first in a series of festivities planned for the annual fall homecoming. Tonight an informal dance will be held from 8 to 10 p.m. in the gym, and will be followed by a bonfire on the school grounds.

Friday at 4 p.m. the homecoming parade will start out from Fremd High, wind its way through Palatine and return to the school in time for the big game.

AT 6 P.M. FRIDAY the Fremd High Vikings will take on Hersey High School beneath the recently installed football stadium lights.

Members of the Fremd Viking Booster Club, who sponsored the lights, will join Dist. 211 administrators, board of education members faculty, parents and students in cheering their team on.

Homecoming will come to an end Saturday night when students dance to the theme of "Sports Illustrated" at the annual formal homecoming dance.

More on the Fremd High's 1970 Homecoming, including a parade route, will be detailed in tomorrow's Herald.

Bomb Scare At Fremd H.S.

Teachers and police took precautionary measures early Tuesday morning when an unidentified caller reported that a bomb had been placed in Fremd High School.

Richard Sikorski, Fremd High police consultant, said the school's switchboard operator received a call at 10:30 a.m. in which a "young voice" said "There is a bomb in the English wing."

search was completed in approximately two minutes.

Although this was the first time a bomb threat has occurred at Fremd High, "it usually happens several times per year" in Dist. 211 schools, said Bruce Altergott, assistant superintendent of the high school district.

"EACH TIME IT happens we do not evacuate the building because this is exactly what the caller wants," Altergott said.

He explained that the calls are usually received just prior to or after a class and could come from a student who simply wants to disrupt classes to avoid taking a test.

"If we do evacuate, we do so on the basis of a fire drill, which calls for students to be out of the building in two minutes," he said.

Currently, all schools in High School Dist. 211 have a precautionary procedure worked out with local police and fire departments.

"We feel we have a procedure worked out from expert advice from community agencies and outside counsel," he said.

ALTERGOTT ADDED that Dist. 211 officials are now re-evaluating this procedure because "the times are past when we can simply brush these things off as pranks."

Sikorski also felt Tuesday's incident was meant to be nothing more than a prank. He said there are no suspects and that the phone call was not traced. Out side police and fire assistance was not summoned.

Earlier this year a school bus parked behind Fremd High was slightly damaged when someone tried to set the vehicle ablaze and last month two Palatine police vehicles were bombed while parked in the police parking lot, 110 W. Washington Street.

Asked if there could be any connection between the previous incidents and Tuesday's threat, Sikorski said "There could be, but I seriously doubt it, to be quite honest."

Vehicle Stickers Here

Samples of the new Palatine vehicle stickers which sport an earth-green ecology emblem have arrived at the Village Hall.

The samples, which lack a printed registration number, were distributed to village trustees earlier this week by Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun.

The new stickers were developed according to a design which Pollution and Environmental Problems (PEP), a Palatine-based anti-pollution group, proposed to the village board last July.

At that time Mrs. Clayton Brown, former head of the group, said in a letter to the board that the new stickers would be appropriate "in view of the progressive strides that the Village of Palatine has made in eliminating pollution problems within the village limits."

She said, "An emblem of this nature on the windshield of every Palatine automobile would remind the citizens of the village's concern and the responsibility of every citizen in helping to curb pollution."

THE STICKERS contain the ecology emblem, (the Greek letter Theta), the words "Earth Day Every Day," and a green background, which is symbolic for vegetation.

While the new 1971 stickers are quite different from last year's American flag sticker, the price has remained the same.

Going on sale after Nov. 10, the stickers sell for $10. However, residents have the opportunity to purchase the vehicle stickers for $9 if the purchase is made before Jan. 1, 1971.

Currently village officials are preparing to mail a letter dated Nov. 10 to village residents. The letter contains two applications for vehicle stickers and explains the purchasing procedure.

Stickers can be purchased via mail or in person at the Village Hall after mid-November.

Sikorski said the first and second floors of the north wing of the school were searched thoroughly immediately after the call was reported but that no bomb was found.

Students in the building were not evacuated, he said. Teachers, who had each been preassigned to a specific task for such a procedure assisted Sikorski in searching the building. He said the

'Sing-Out Palatine' Performance Slated

Sing-out Palatine will perform at the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center Saturday.

The musical group affiliated with the world-wide "Up With People" program will stage performances at 1 and 3 p.m. in the mall at the shopping center.

Sing-Out Palatine believes in motivation through music. The singers advocate "Up With People" as an experience and want to represent a determination to take a responsible part in the task of society and nation building.

The group has been performing for almost three years at various locations including the Chicago Conrad Hilton, Sherman House and for local schools, civic organizations and political rallies.

WHAT MIGHT HAVE been a strange symbol to many, will become second nature as Palatine residents begin to purchase the new 1971 ecology vehicle stickers in November.

When Palatine's health officer Richard Dawson was demonstrating the new thicker garbage bags to Village Trustees last Monday, he inflated one of the plastic containers and, confident that it couldn't be done, asked Trustee Wendell Jones to try squeezing the new product until it burst. With a gleam in his eye, Jones wrapped his arms about the bag and seconds later it was deflated. . . . and Jones' ego was inflated. But, Dawson said, "you cheated," while eyeing a tiny hole in the bag. "I told you to just hug it, not poke it."

A sign of the times while discussing specifications for the new garbage bags, trustees began talking over specifications for garbage bag holders — until Mayor John Moodie put his foot down. "You can't make people use a garbage bag holder. I'll tell you, life's just getting too complicated."

No more last minute rushes to the library. The staff has announced that starting Nov. 1, no materials will be checked out during the 10 minute period before closing time, which is 9 p.m. on weekdays, 6 p.m. on Saturdays and 5 p.m. on Sundays.

Palatine isn't the only town with a history of The Herald. The leading newspaper of Truth or Consequences, N.M., a thriving community of 5,000 people, also is called The Herald. It's published every Thursday. Some of you may remember the Palatine Herald when it came to your doorstep only Thursday mornings.

Offer New Books

by The Staff of the Palatine Library
New at the library this week is "Sex, Man and Society," Ashley Montague's newest book.

More books concerning contemporary topics also have arrived. "The Divided Self" written by R. D. Laing deals with the process of going mad. "Our Time is Now" contains notes from the high school underground and was written by John Birmingham.

The confidential papers of Robert Humphreys are given in "Smoke Filled Rooms" edited by Harold Lavine.

A book by Jesse Owens, "Blackthink; My Life as a Black Man and White Man" also is available at the library.

New arrivals in the nostalgia category include "Birth of a Giant" by Richard Crabb. The book deals with the men and incidents that gave America the motorcar.

"AMERICAN AND her Almanacs" give wit, wisdom and weather from 1639 to 1970. The author is Robb Sagedorff.

For the readers looking for helpful hints there is "Garden and Home Landscaping" by Jack Kramer, which gives city and suburban garden plans, planting annuals, perennials, bulbs, trees, shrubs and how to get rid of lawn weeds.

More "how to" books include "Money Raising Activities for Community Groups," by Virginia W. Muselman, "Collecting Art on a Shoestring," by Alicia Craig Faxon and "Balik as a Hobby," by Vivian Steln.

For those interested in humor there's "Krazy Kat" a classic from the Golden Age of Comics by George Herrmans and "Asterix the Gaul," by Goscinny and Vderzo, which introduces Europe's favorite comic character.

The new "people books" this week range from the Churchills to Joe Namath.

"Lady Randolph Churchill" is the story of Jennie Jerome, mother of Winston Churchill. It's written by Anita Leslie.

"SUPER JOE" by Larry Bortstein is the story of the famous and controversial quarterback for the New York Jets.

Michael J. Arles writes about two unusual people, "beautiful people," if you will, his parents in "Exiles."

More people come alive in "Thomas Jefferson and the New Nation," by Merrill D. Peterson and "Spinoza; The Young Thinker who Destroyed the Past," by Dan Levin.

New fiction at the library varies from mysteries to a modern Huck Finn. "The Pushbutton Butterfly," by Kin Platt introduces a new private eye, Max Roper. A six-shooter replaces the old fishing pole in "Joey" a modern Huckleberry Finn written by Milton Bass.

Science fiction by the "master of it all" comes through in "Tales of the Flying Mountains" by Paul Anderson.

"A BIRD in the House" by Margaret Lawrence contains interlocking stories about a woman remembering herself as a girl. It's sensitively told.

Away from fiction there's a couple of new history books at the library. "The Thousand-Mile War," by Brian Garfield covers World War II in Alaska and the Aleutians. Richard Deacon gives "A History of the British Secret Service."

Greet New Students

New students at the Champaign-Urbana campus on the University of Illinois this fall were greeted by upperclassmen wearing big orange buttons labeled "Illini Guide."

Among the guides were three Palatine youths: Barb Baker, 1410 Joan Dr.; Rick Moran, 1340 Virginia Dr.; Nancy Schwall, 2136 Thorntree Ln.

Home Of Your Nightmares?

by SANDRA BROWNING

The mystery of the dark unknown is being built into two older homes in Arlington Heights.

The Campus Life organization, a non-denominational Christian group for high school and college students in the Northwest and North Shore suburbs, is renovating the older homes, preparing them to be "haunted" during Halloween week.

Last year, Campus Life renovated a home which was about to be torn down just south of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library, 500 N. Danton St., and about 2,000 young adults toured through the house of horrors.

During the past few weeks, volunteer adults and members of the Campus Life staff have been working on the homes near downtown Arlington Heights in preparation for a four-day "Haunted House" event. The walls have been painted black and doors have been put in so that visitors may walk through rooms easily.

People may tour the houses beginning next week. They will be open from 7 to 9:45 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday and from 7 to 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday. The exact location of the houses will be announced later. Campus Life workers are afraid they might have some premature visits if the location was announced this week.

The heating and electrical systems of the homes were completely revamped and approved by the village's building department before workers started adding their own horrible touches.

Lattoff Motor Sales of Arlington Heights owns the buildings which are scheduled for demolition soon. The company offered to let Campus Life use the buildings for haunted houses and the organization went to work cleaning them out and remodeling them.

Because of problems with junior high schools students last year, none of these students will be allowed to go through the house unescorted. Last year, some of the younger kids "went bananas" because they were so frightened, according to Campus Life representatives.

Guards at the doors will also be checking older adults closely because the houses promise to be so scary that "adults may get heart attacks. And we're not kidding," according to Clayton Baumann from Campus Life.

The organization will be using about six professional makeup artists to help with the decorating of staff members' faces, faces, turning them into werewolves and other delightful creatures.

The haunted houses are aimed at the high school and college aged crowd, although others may tour the houses. By aiming at a specific age group, Campus Life staff members can do more "horrible" planning than if they tried to appeal to a general audience, Baumann said.

The main building has nearly twice as many rooms this year as the Haunted house run by the organization last year. The entire program is more than double the size of last year's, runs twice as long and promises to be "twice as scary," according to the Campus Life representatives.

The entire operation and construction of the haunted houses will take about 100 people. Construction involved bringing the old houses up to meet building code standards and then remodeling the rooms.

Baumann said a lot of the work is being done by college students who went through the haunted house last year and thought it was so good that they wanted to work on the project for this year.

Campus Life representatives said that people will be stationed in each room to help with crowd control and to keep people moving.

The organization is also trying to line up a musical group to play and has scheduled movies for people who are waiting to go through the house, Baumann said. Last year, some visitors waited up to three hours to tour the haunted house.

Campus Life will be using three floors of the buildings and workers have built an outside staircase to help with traffic control. The admission charge will be a $1 per person and about 5,000 people are expected to tour the homes.

Education Editor To Be Speaker

Tom Wellman, education editor for Paddock Publications, will be the featured speaker next Tuesday at the ninth annual Forest View High School publications banquet.

The event will be held at the Scandia House Restaurant at the Mount Prospect Shopping Plaza, Rand and Central roads in Mount Prospect.

Wellman will discuss journalistic trends and education. He has worked as a newspaper reporter, columnist and editor, and has been a radio newsmen.

Mistress of ceremonies for the event will be Nancy King, president of the school's chapter of the Quill and Scroll International Honorary Society for high school journalists. She is also the editor-in-chief of the school's newspaper, the Viewer.

Other guests on the program include Richard Carey, Viewer advisor; Robert Staley, yearbook advisor; and Russell Sinkler, last year's editor-in-chief of the Viewer.

The dinner is the first journalistic social affair of the year for the school. Those invited include yearbook and newspaper students.

Object To Apartment Plans

The Village of Buffalo Grove will file an objection with the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals, opposing construction plans for a 660-unit apartment development west of the village.

Richard Rayssa, village attorney, told the Herald he will base the objection on the grounds that proper drainage has not been provided for by the developers, Kassuba Development Corp., on the 40-acre site located north of Dundee Road behind the Weidner Egg Farm.

Kassuba is seeking special use zoning for a planned development to allow a density of 19 units per acre, according to Rayssa. Plans call for constructing 18 two-and-one-half story buildings containing one and two-bedroom apartment units.

RAYSA SAID he is currently obtaining statements from the village engineers, Hattis Engineering Co., concerning Kassuba's plans for drainage. At the public hearing on the zoning request, representatives for the developer proposed to widen and deepen the branch of Buffalo Creek running through the property to act as a retention basin.

"It's a question of drainage. Our objection will ask them to provide for adequate drainage," Rayssa said.

"We are not objecting to multiple-family dwellings being built on the site. We're not concerned about anything but drainage. We can't visualize their proposal (for drainage) doing anything but adding to our problems that already exist," he added.

Village Pres. Don Thompson, in directing Rayssa to prepare the objection, said, "Our engineering will never support this (widening of the creek). It just won't solve the problem. It would probably handle about 15 per cent of the problem."

RALEIGH BRANDON of Hattis said, "Under flood conditions it would just flood anyway."

According to law, all objections must be filed with the zoning board of appeals within 21 days from the date of the public hearing on the matter. The hearing was held Oct. 19 in the Palatine Village Hall.

At that hearing, homeowners in Pinehurst Manor, an unincorporated area west of the proposed development also objected. They contended also that flooding problems would be increased and children from the planned complex would overcrowd area schools.

The Village of Palatine is also planning to file a formal objection to the development.

Name Policeman At Fremd High

A new police consultant has been named for Fremd High School, said Lt. Frank Ortiz of the Palatine Police Department.

David Zach, a patrolman with the department for two years, will assume his new duties as police consultant this Monday. Zach is a resident of Barrington.

He replaces officer Richard Sikorski, who has served as Fremd's consultant for the past two years. Before that, he was a patrolman on the Palatine force for two years.

Randhurst Named In Tax Probe

by GERRY DeZONNA

The tax records of the Randhurst Corp., owner of Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect, will be investigated by a state senate subcommittee in connection with alleged tax assessment reductions granted by County Assessor P.J. Cullerton.

State Sen. Arthur R. Swanson, R-Chicago, chairman of the state senate subcommittee for assessment practices, said yesterday Randhurst Shopping Center is one of several shopping centers in the area which will be included in the committee's investigation of tax assessment reductions.

"We're currently investigating parcels of property in which there have been glaring discrepancies in the tax assessments. At the moment, we're zeroing in on twelve buildings in the city, and once we've finished these investigations, we'll proceed with our review of shopping centers in the county," Swanson said.

ROBERT HANRAHAN, Cook County

superintendent of schools, has also charged that Randhurst Shopping Center as well as six other shopping centers in the county are "grossly underassessed."

Hanrahan said Tuesday the assessed valuation of Randhurst "should be almost quadrupled." The 1969 assessed valuation of a shopping center is $8,991,105, he said.

In addition to Randhurst, the subcommittee in the newspaper or we've seen on television will also investigate alleged tax assessment reductions for Old Orchard, Skokie; Hillside Shopping Center, Wolf Road at the Eisenhower Expressway; Evergreen Plaza, 95th and Western streets; Lawrencewood Shopping Center, Oakton and Waukegan roads; and Dixie Square Shopping Plaza, 151st Street and Dixie Highway.

Richard McCarthy, public relations director of the Randhurst Corp., said yesterday the corporation has not been notified of an investigation by Swanson's committee.

"WE'VE HEARD NOTHING about the investigation other than what we've read vision. To the best of my knowledge, Randhurst has not received any cuts in its assessed valuation," McCarthy explained.

Randhurst Corp. is equally owned by Carson Pirie Scott and Co., Montgomery Ward and Wieboldt's, McCarthy said.

Swanson's committee is currently reviewing the files on 12 buildings in Chicago, including the Brunswick Building, Merchandise Mart and Prudential Building.

"It's taken us 10 days to review 10 files, and at this point, it's evident that favoritism plays a very big part in the granting of tax-assessment cuts for the owners of downtown properties. There is an obvious need for regulatory legislation, and this committee intends to prove this need as well as the passage of regulatory legislation," Swanson said.

Swanson said the investigation of tax-assessment reductions is the result of

a school

According to Joseph Kiszka, assistant superintendent of Dist. 15, the architect's report on the land should be ready for presentation at the next Dist. 15 board meeting Nov. 11 and further plans for use of the land will be considered.

AT A COUNTY ZONING Board of Appeals hearing Monday where Pinehurst residents presented their objections to the plans of Kassuba Development Corp. to construct an apartment complex east of the subdivision, Kiszka said Kassuba had donated two acres to Dist. 15 for a school site. The district was also offered the option of purchasing the additional 4.6 acres for a total 6.6-acre school site.

Kiszka said the 6.6 acres would be "adequate for a school building," but would be one of the smallest school sites owned by the district.

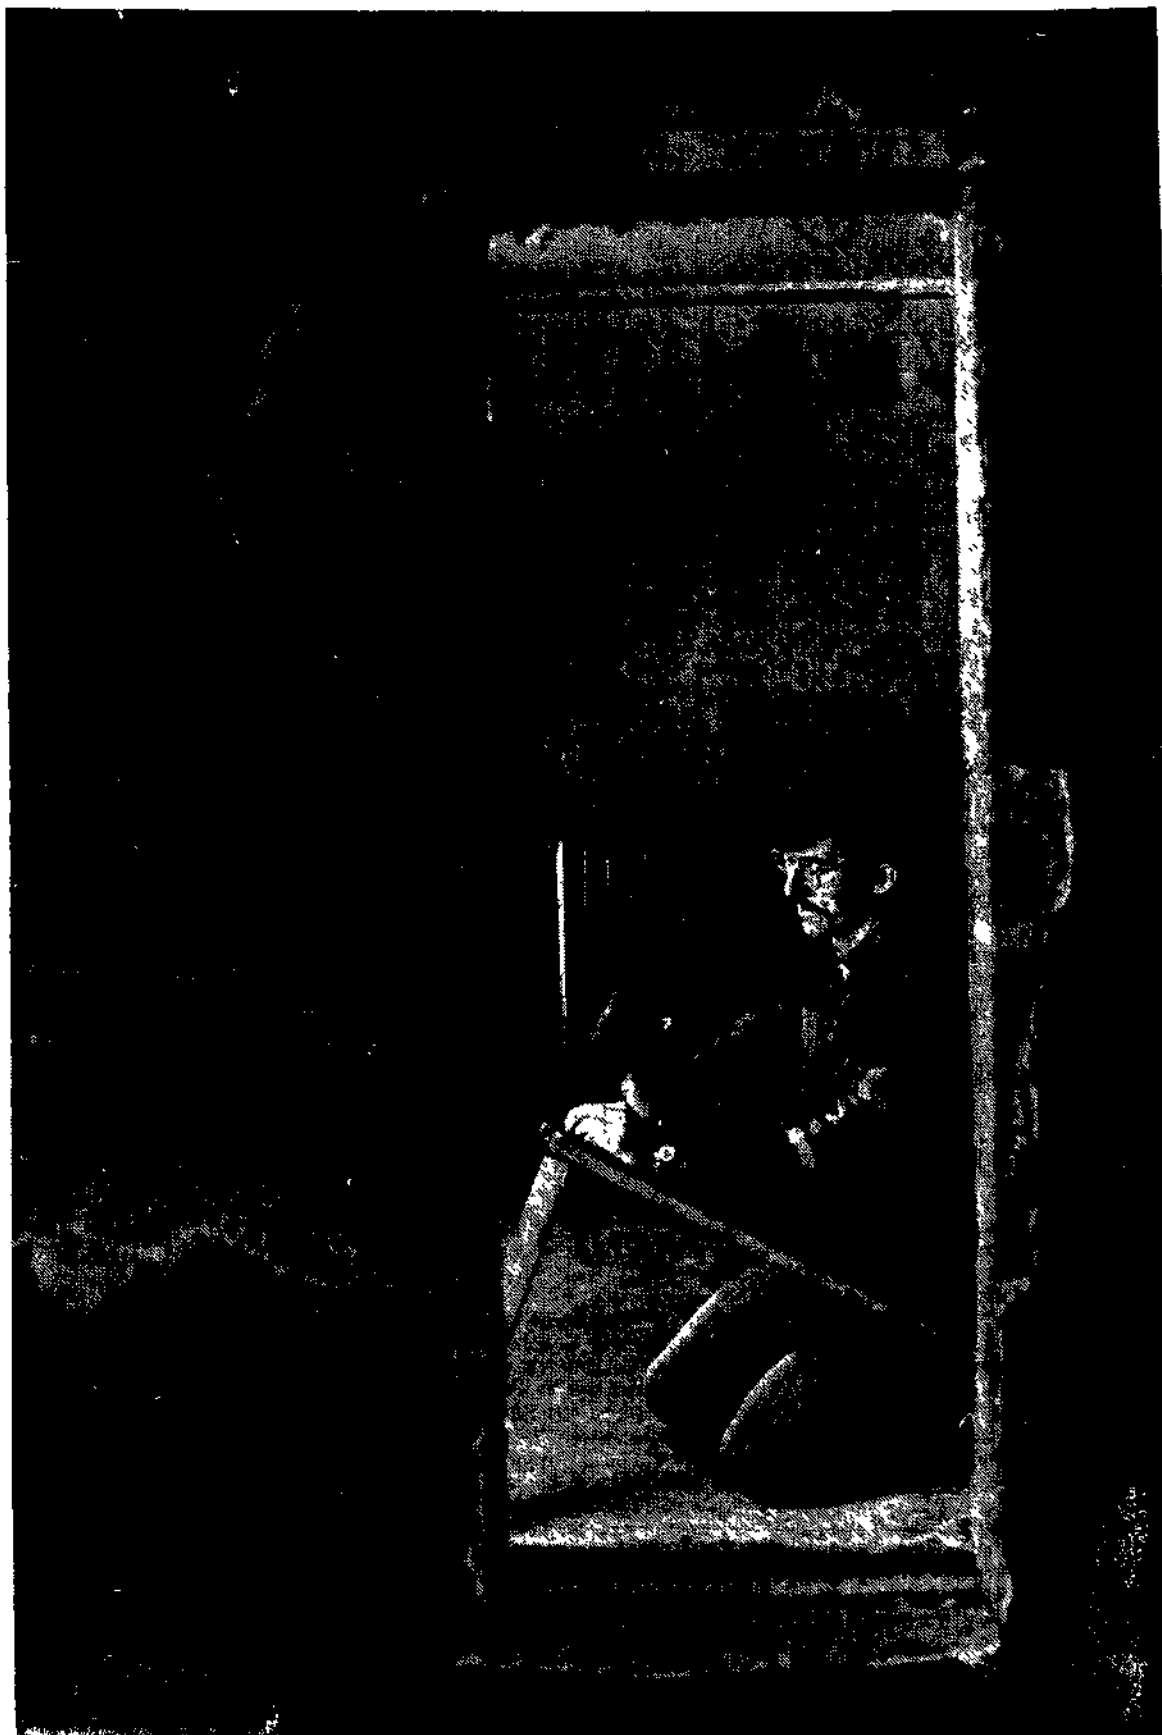

Because investigations of the property and negotiations continue, Kiszka could not say at what price the additional 4.6 acres would be sold to the district, although he explained that representatives of the real estate company handling the sale said the price "would be far below the present market value of such land."

KISZKA SAID THAT although courts have declared unconstitutional a contractual provision requiring developing firms to provide land for school sites, most land developers and construction firms agree to make some sort of a provision for schools.

"We (Dist. 15 officials) would be greatly upset if they (Kassuba) were building without consideration for schools," he said.

The possibility of overcrowding existing Dist. 15 schools when construction of the Kassuba apartment complex is completed is not only a consideration of Dist. 15 but the Pinehurst homeowners as well.

In their presentation to the Zoning Board Monday, the homeowners explained that their children are now being bused to different schools and that the apartment complex would only increase an already overcrowded situation.

Low-Cost Housing Backed By AAUW

As the controversy over low and moderate income-housing continues, the local branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) recently jumped into the fray.

The Arlington Heights branch of AAUW, which includes members from throughout the Northwest suburban area, passed a resolution recently to encourage the development of low and moderate-income housing in the area.

The AAUW last week sent copies of the resolution to village boards throughout the area.

A letter was sent by a member of the group to state that the resolution "contains an element that can do more harm than good" soon after the resolutions were mailed.

THE TWO LETTERS were brought up during the meeting of the Wheeling Village Board Monday night. Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon said that the local board and plan commission were working through annexations and zoning changes to "do everything possible to consider moderate income housing" for the village.

The resolution was passed Oct. 8 and states:

"Whereas, the Arlington Heights Branch, American Association of University Women, has a deep concern for the provision of adequate housing and is aware of the need, both local and national, for well-planned housing for people of all income levels; and

"WHEREAS, the Illinois State Division, American Association of University Women, adopted the following in April, 1970: 'We support measures to alleviate hunger, cultural, social and economic deprivation and to eliminate substandard dwellings;' therefore be it

"Resolved; That the Arlington Heights Branch, AAUW calls upon the village governments of the Northwest Suburban areas within which members reside to encourage the development of low and moderate income housing while including provision for open space within all village limits so that people at all income levels will be able to live comfortably within our communities."

The copy of the resolution was sent Oct. 12 and the letter from Mrs. Joseph Braun, a member of AAUW, was dated three days later.

Mrs. Braun wrote, "As relatively harmless as this resolution appears, it contains an element that can do more harm than good. It carries with it the stigma of having been forced upon a group of supposedly intelligent women."

"TO THIS DAY, a great number of AAUW members are not aware that such a resolution exists since it did not appear in the organization newsletter or on the agenda of the meeting (general meeting at which the resolution was passed)."

Mrs. Braun, 1210 E. Campbell St., Arlington Heights, is a member of the legislative committee which originally approved the resolution.

During a meeting of the legislative committee in September, the matter of a resolution on low and moderate income housing was discussed, according to Mrs. Thomas Haack, chairman of the committee who lives at 903 Burning Tree Lane, Arlington Heights.

The discussion was published in the AAUW's newsletter so that other than committee members could attend. Mrs. Haack said that the state and national AAUW groups have endorsed the idea of local communities providing housing for low and moderate income families.

THE COMMITTEE discussed forming a study group but the consensus was that AAUW members had already been encouraged to attend meetings within the past year on the subject and the League of Women Voters was already working on a fact sheet on the subject, Mrs. Haack said.

The committee voted to have the chairman present a resolution at the October meeting of the committee. The presentation of the resolution to the committee was published in the organization's newsletter, Mrs. Haack said.

Shortly after the committee approved the resolution in October, it was presented to the general meeting and approved by a voice vote.

Mrs. Braun said in her letter that a "few members" arranged for the presentation of the resolution at the general meeting and that no advance notice of the topic coming up was given.

MRS. HAACK SAID that AAUW will be having no regular meeting next month and thus the approval of the resolution would have had to wait until December if it had not been presented at the October meeting.

The committee chairman said that unfortunately "there are a few people who are very unhappy."

In order for any association to state a position, "there are going to be some dissenting members" who do not agree with the position, Mrs. Haack said.

She pointed out that the committee had been discussing the issue of low and moderate income housing for about a year.

Ogilvie To Attend School Dedication

Illinois Governor Richard B. Ogilvie will arrive at Schaumburg Airport at 10 a.m. Saturday and proceed to the dedication ceremonies of Schaumburg High School.

Schaumburg High School which opened this fall, is the first secondary school to be built with Illinois School Building Commission funds.

The governor is scheduled to arrive at the school at 10:30 a.m. and will begin a brief tour of the facility. A formal dedication of the building will start at 11 a.m.

The ISBC is the agency of the state that provides guidelines and funds for school districts which are unable to construct facilities because of financial limitations. The commission has built many elementary schools in the state.

The newest Dist. 211 school was built at a cost of $16.42 per square foot, considerably below the $20 to $25 per square foot for similarly constructed schools.

Statistically the school is a 2,500 student capacity, with over 100 class, seminar and large group instruction rooms. The air conditioned facility cost $5,040,424. Two football fields could be laid end to end within the walls, which contain 7.05 acres under roof for a total of 307,057 square feet of space.

All residents of Palatine-Schaumburg High School Dist. 211 are encouraged to attend the dedication and take advantage of special tours that Schaumburg High School student will conduct.

Dist. 211 is setting aside a special section of seats for residents from both townships who worked on the recently successful Dist. 211 referendum. Funds from the referendum will construct a third high school in Schaumburg Township and another one in Palatine Township.

ERIE JONES, of Fitch, Larocca, Carington and Jones, architects, designers of the school, will greet Ogilvie at the airport, along with John Moore of ISBC. Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher will accompany Ogilvie, along with Dist. 211 board members and Jones on the special tour of the facility.

The school's band and chorus will perform in the gymnasium at 10:30 a.m. Tours for the public will start at 11:30 a.m.

William Fremd, oldest school board member, will be a special guest at the dedication.

Elected officials from surrounding communities have been invited and Dist. 211 expects some 500 residents to attend the ceremonies.

Al Capp To Lead GOP Rally

Cartoonist Al Capp, creator of Li'l Abner and Daisy Mae will lead an Elk Grove Township rally today of almost the entire slate of Republican candidates running for State and County offices in the Nov. 3 election.

Heading the list of candidates is U.S. Sen. Ralph Smith. He will be joined by Ray Page, who is seeking reelection as superintendent of public instruction and Edmund Kucharski, candidate for state treasurer.

THE RALLY WILL begin at 8 p.m. at Lincoln Junior High School, Mount Prospect, and candidates will answer questions during the refreshment hour after the program.

Almost all the important candidates for county offices and the candidates for county commissioner from the suburbs will also attend.

Rounding out the list will be Illinois Sen. John Graham and State Representatives David Regner and Eugene Schlickman.

Republican Committeeman Carl Hansen said he was pleased, "so many of the candidates have been able to fit the Elk Grove Township rally into their busy schedules. It's a tribute to our township's ability to deliver a large Republican plurality for them, which they need to offset the Democratic vote in the city."

Tell Bomb Scare At Fremd High

Teachers and police took precautionary measures early Tuesday morning when an unidentified caller reported that a bomb had been placed in Fremd High School.

Richard Sikorski, Fremd High police consultant, said the school's switchboard operator received a call at 10:30 a.m. in which a "young voice" said "There is a bomb in the English wing."

Sikorski said the first and second floors of the north wing of the school were searched thoroughly immediately after the call was reported but that no bomb was found.

Students in the building were not evacuated preassigned to a specific task for such a procedure assisted Sikorski in searching the building. He said the search was completed in approximately two minutes.

Although this was the first time a bomb threat has occurred at Fremd High, "it usually happens several times per year" in Dist. 211 schools, said Bruce Altergott, assistant superintendent of the high school district.

"EACH TIME IT happens we do not evacuate the building because this is exactly what the caller wants," Altergott said.

He explained that the calls are usually received just prior or after a class and could come from a student who simply wants to disrupt classes to avoid taking a test.

"If we do evacuate, we do so on the basis of a fire drill, which calls for students to be out of the building in two minutes," he said.

Currently, all schools in High School Dist. 211 have a precautionary procedure worked out with local police and fire departments.

"We feel we have a procedure worked out from expert advice from community agencies and outside counsel," he said.

ALTERGOTT ADDED that Dist. 211 officials are now re-evaluating this procedure because "the times are past when we can simply brush these things off as pranks."

Sikorski also felt Tuesday's incident was meant to be nothing more than a prank. He said there are no suspects and that the phone call was not traced. Out side police and fire assistance was not summoned.

Earlier this year a school bus parked behind Fremd High was slightly damaged when someone tried to set the vehicle ablaze and last month two Palatine police vehicles were bombed while parked in the police parking lot, 110 W. Washington Street.

Asked if there could be any connection between the previous incidents and Tuesday's threat, Sikorski said "There could be, but I seriously doubt it, to be quite honest."

'Choral Capers' Is Friday

The third annual "Choral Capers" concert by the four choral groups at Elk Grove High School will be held tomorrow and Saturday in the school's Little Theatre.

Choral Capers is a production by the Concert Choir, Girls Glee Club, Boys Chorus and Girls Chorus, singing and dancing to a variety of musical arrangements, under the direction of instructors Lendell King and Harry Swenson.

Pop and rock music, show tunes, oldies but goodies, and standard choral songs will be included in the show.

"The staging is unique. Students dance to some music, act to others. The costumes fit the mood or the music. Drums, string bass, and piano furnish appropriate accompaniment," said George Ergang, school public relations chairman.

Each chorus has selected a theme for its portion of the program and student choreographers have been planning the dancing and acting for the choral groups.

THE GIRLS CHORUS has chosen selections from "Sweet Charity"; the Boys Chorus, selections from "Paint Your Wagon"; the Girls Glee Club, selections from "Babes in Toyland"; and the Concert Choir, selections from "Bye, Bye, Birdie."

A highlight of the program will be the first appearance of the Concert Choir in its new red, white, and blue outfits, which were purchased in part from the proceeds of last year's show.

Presidents of the four choruses are Mary Campbell, Tina Stefanos, Cindy Cashman and John Mullins.

The show was performed at the two Elk Grove junior high schools and several elementary schools in the village yesterday.

Tickets, $1 for adults and 50 cents for children 12 years old and under, will be on sale from any choral student or at the door.

Proceeds will be used for uniforms, field trip expenses, and other school activities not ordinarily paid for by school board funds.

CLAY CLICKNER, left, Cindy Keagle, Sara Keagle, Karen Vinezeano and Chris Vinezeano stand before the Community Chest sign at Meadow Drive and Kirchoff Road. They represent three of the nine agencies which will receive funds raised from this year's drive. This year, the goal is to raise $6,000 locally.

Fund Drive Begins

Money collected during the Community Chest fund drive, which began Monday and will continue for two weeks, will go back to city residents.

This is the plan of the organizers of the drive this year, who are following a campaign slogan of "Let's Help Our Own."

Organizers are asking that residents contribute at least $9 to the drive, $1 going to each of the nine agencies being helped with the funds. Most residents are probably involved in one of the organizations which receive money.

A mail-in campaign was started several weeks ago for the collection of money, heading for a goal of $6,000. Door-to-door campaigns will be held for two weeks to solicit more funds.

Almost 500 Rolling Meadows girls will be benefited by funds provided through the Community Chest to the Girl Scouts of Northwest Cook County. One hundred and nineteen adults in the city are also involved in the scouting programs.

Funds distributed to the Girl Scouts will be used for programs held within the community, such as Head Start, and cultural and camping activities as well.

Fremd Queen Naming Set

Fremd High School's homecoming queen for 1970 will be named at a pep rally in the school gym this afternoon.

The coronation will be the first in a series of festivities planned for the annual fall homecoming. Tonight an informal dance will be held from 8 to 10 p.m. in the gym, and will be followed by a bonfire on the school grounds.

Friday at 4 p.m. the homecoming parade will start out from Fremd High, wind its way through Palatine and return to the school in time for the big game.

AT 6 P.M. FRIDAY the Fremd High Vikings will take on Hershey High School beneath the recently installed football stadium lights.

Members of the Fremd Viking Booster Club, who sponsored the lights, will join Dist. 211 administrators, board of education members faculty, parents and students in cheering their team on.

Homecoming will come to an end Saturday night when students dance to the theme of "Sports Illustrated" at the annual formal homecoming dance.

More on the Fremd High's 1970 Homecoming, including a parade route, will be detailed in tomorrow's Herald.

'Sing-Out Palatine' Performance Slated

Sing-out Palatine will perform at the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center Saturday.

The musical group affiliated with the world-wide "Up With People" program will stage performances at 1 and 3 p.m. in the mall at the shopping center.

Sing-Out Palatine believes in motivation through music. The singers advocate "Up With People" as an experience and want to represent a determination to take a responsible part in the task of society and nation building.

The group has been performing for almost three years at various locations including the Chicago Conrad Hilton, Sherman House and for local schools, civic organizations and political rallies.

Cracker Barrel

SOME HOMEOWNERS in the Pepper Tree farms area don't think Dist. 15 officials should name the new school in their area after the subdivision. At the Dist. 15 board meeting last week, Supt. Frank Whiteley read a letter from the homeowners which strongly urged the district to name the school something else, because "there's not one single pepper tree in the area."

ROLLING MEADOWS Park District land may soon become the lover's lane of the Northwest suburbs. Irrate residents who attended the last park board meeting complained that the ski slope being constructed near Salt Creek behind Kimball Hill School may become a haven for young lovers during the dark summer nights.

SOME PARK DISTRICT commissioners seem to think that dealings with the Salt Creek Rural Park District depend on the year's harvesting of corn or bringing the cows in. At least that's what they said at the last park board meeting.

MISS VIRGINIA Connell, Rolling Meadows librarian, has been anxiously awaiting the day the library receives money from the city for the purchase of more books. She has had mounds of note cards piled high on her desk for weeks with the names of all the books and materials she would like to purchase for the library with the extra money.

ALTHOUGH MANY residents have been complaining about the inconveniences caused by the work on the Salt Creek improvement project, the city's youths seem to be enjoying it. The piles of dirt pushed to the side of the creek make excellent bicycle hills after school.

IF YOU EXPECT to find a seat in the library in the evening, you'd better get there early. Residents have been filling every seat in the library recently, making it a busy place.

THIS SCENE WILL be recreated tomorrow night when the Fremd Vikings play the first homecoming game in their history under lights. This will be the second night game held at Fremd since the lights were installed with the sponsorship of the schools booster club early this month. Game time is 6 p.m. and Hershey High School will be their opponents.

Gimmicks, Etc.

by VIRGINIA CONNELL

I've seen many gimmicks in my time. If I had to generalize, I'd say that the more incredible and impossible they seemed at first, the more they paid off in the end.

Psychologists say we are the sum total of all the things we experience and all the people we meet. If you are interested in the field of advertising, you will want to read "400 Secrets of Advertising Experts" by Willard A. Pleuthner, and learn more of his ideas for a successful advertising career.

The growth of larger and more complex corporate enterprises in our industrial system and the sweep of their activities has profoundly affected all aspects of American society. One of the most important of these aspects is the impact of the corporation on American politics.

Is it necessary and desirable for business firms, as a matter of corporate policy, to engage in political activities? Is corporate political involvement legitimate? Read "The Corporation in American Politics" by Edwin M. Epstein and compare your ideas on the subject with his.

IN HARVEY M. Wagner's "Principles of Operational Research," one finds a full range of operational research topics. The book forms an excellent reference for practicing professionals in operations. At a fundamental level, but designed to promote the reader's mathematical maturity, this important work offers an up-to-date and comprehensive coverage of modern production and inventory theory, dynamic programming and computer simulation. The book is an essential working tool in the hands of all professionals in the field.

More and more people are becoming interested in how to select a business for themselves. If you are contemplating such a move, why not read the book "Franchising," by Robert Metz. This book will answer such questions as: How much money will I need? Where do I get it? What are the advantages and disadvantages of franchising? How do I do market research? It also explains 25 different franchises covering all major areas and how they operate.

When postage rates went up, the higher costs affected over three million businessmen in this country. For thousands of them, this new situation indirectly created a new advertising and sales promotion medium.

BY SUBSTITUTING systematic phone calls for mailing pieces, a rapidly growing list of retailers, merchandising and marketing men are finding that phone calls in volume don't cost any more than mailing pieces, and are five times as effective.

The how-to-do-it book for the businessman who wants to increase his sales volume while cutting the cost of operation is "Promotional Telephoning," by Alfred Griffin.

The public relations field often encompasses advertising, merchandising and promotion, as well as an array of techniques which include books, exhibitions, motion pictures and dozens of other forms of communication. Education Editor To Be Speaker

Tom Wellman, education editor for Paddock Publications, will be the featured speaker next Tuesday at the ninth annual Forest View High School publications banquet.

The event will be held at the Scandia House Restaurant at the Mount Prospect Shopping Plaza, Rand and Central roads in Mount Prospect.

Wellman will discuss journalistic trends and education. He has worked as a newspaper reporter, columnist and editor, and has been a radio newsmen.

Mistress of ceremonies for the event will be Nancy King, president of the school's chapter of the Quill and Scroll International Honorary Society for high school journalists. She is also the editor-in-chief of the school's newspaper, the Viewer.

Other guests on the program include Richard Carey, Viewer advisor; Robert Staley, yearbook advisor; and Russell Sinkler, last year's editor-in-chief of the Viewer.

The dinner is the first journalistic social affair of the year for the school. Those invited include yearbook and newspaper students.

Object To Apartment Plans

The Village of Buffalo Grove will file an objection with the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals, opposing construction plans for a 660-unit apartment development west of the village.

Richard Raysa, village attorney, told the Herald he will base the objection on the grounds that proper drainage has not been provided for by the developers, Kassuba Development Corp., on the 40-acre site located north of Dundee Road behind the Weidner Egg Farm.

Kassuba is seeking special use zoning for a planned development to allow a density of 19 units per acre, according to Raysa. Plans call for constructing 18 two-and-one-half story buildings containing one and two-bedroom apartment units.

RAYSA SAID he is currently obtaining statements from the village engineers, Hattis Engineering Co., concerning Kassuba's plans for drainage. At the public hearing on the zoning request, representatives for the developer proposed to widen and deepen the branch of Buffalo Creek running through the property to act as a retention basin.

"It's a question of drainage. Our objection will ask them to provide for adequate drainage," Raysa said.

"We are not objecting to multiple-family dwellings being built on the site. We're not concerned about anything but drainage. We can't visualize their proposal (for drainage) doing anything but adding to our problems that already exist," he added.

Village Pres. Don Thompson, in directing Raysa to prepare the objection, said, "Our engineering will never support this (widening of the creek). It just won't solve the problem. It would probably handle about 15 per cent of the problem."

RALEIGH BRANDON of Hattis said, "Under flood conditions it would just flood anyway."

by SANDRA BROWNING

The mystery of the dark unknown is being built into two older homes in Arlington Heights.

The Campus Life organization, a non-denominational Christian group for high school and college students in the Northwest and North Shore suburbs, is renovating the older homes, preparing them to be "haunted" during Halloween week.

Last year, Campus Life renovated a home which was about to be torn down just south of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library, 500 N. Dunton St., and about 2,000 young adults toured through the house of horrors.

During the past few weeks, volunteer adults and members of the Campus Life staff have been working on the homes near downtown Arlington Heights in preparation for a four-day "Haunted House" event. The walls have been painted black and doors have been put in so that visitors may walk through rooms easily.

People may tour the houses beginning next week. They will be open from 7 to 9:45 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday and from 7 to 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday. The exact location of the houses will be announced later. Campus Life workers are afraid they might have some premature visits if the location was announced this week.

The heating and electrical systems of the homes were completely revamped and approved by the village's building department before workers started adding their own horrible touches.

Lattoff Motor Sales of Arlington Heights owns the buildings which are scheduled for demolition soon. The company offered to let Campus Life use the buildings for haunted houses and the organization went to work cleaning them out and remodeling them.

Because of problems with junior high schools students last year, none of these students will be allowed to go through the house unescorted. Last year, some of the younger kids "went bananas" because they were so frightened, according to Campus Life representatives.

Guards at the doors will also be checking older adults closely because the houses promise to be so scary that "adults may get heart attacks. And we're not kidding," according to Clayton Baumann from Campus Life.

The organization will be using about six professional makeup artists to help with the decorating of staff members' faces, faces, turning them into werewolves and other delightful creatures.

The haunted houses are aimed at the high school and college aged crowd, although others may tour the houses. By aiming at a specific age group, Campus Life staff members can do more "horrible" planning than if they tried to appeal to a general audience, Baumann said.

According to law, all objections must be filed with the zoning board of appeals within 21 days from the date of the public hearing on the matter. The hearing was held Oct. 19 in the Palatine Village Hall.

At that hearing, homeowners in Pinehurst Manor, an unincorporated area west of the proposed development also objected. They contended also that flooding problems would be increased and children from the planned complex would overcrowd area schools.

The Village of Palatine is also planning to file a formal objection to the development.

Eye Possible Land Purchase

Elementary School Dist. 15 officials are continuing an investigation into the feasibility of purchasing 4.8 acres of land in Pinehurst Manor in Palatine Township for a school site.

The architectural firm representing Dist. 15 was recently directed by the board of education to conduct soil borings on the property to determine the suitability of the land for construction of a school. According to Joseph Kiszka, assistant superintendent of Dist. 15, the architect's report on the land should be ready for presentation at the next Dist. 15 board meeting Nov. 11 and further plans for use of the land will be considered.

AT A COUNTY ZONING Board of Appeals hearing Monday where Pinehurst residents presented their objections to the plans of Kassuba Development Corp. to construct an apartment complex east of the subdivision, Kiszka said Kassuba had donated two acres to Dist. 15 for a school site. The district was also offered the option of purchasing the additional 4.8 acres for a total 6.6-acre school site.

Kiszka said the 6.6 acres would be "adequate for a school building," but would be one of the smallest school sites owned by the district.

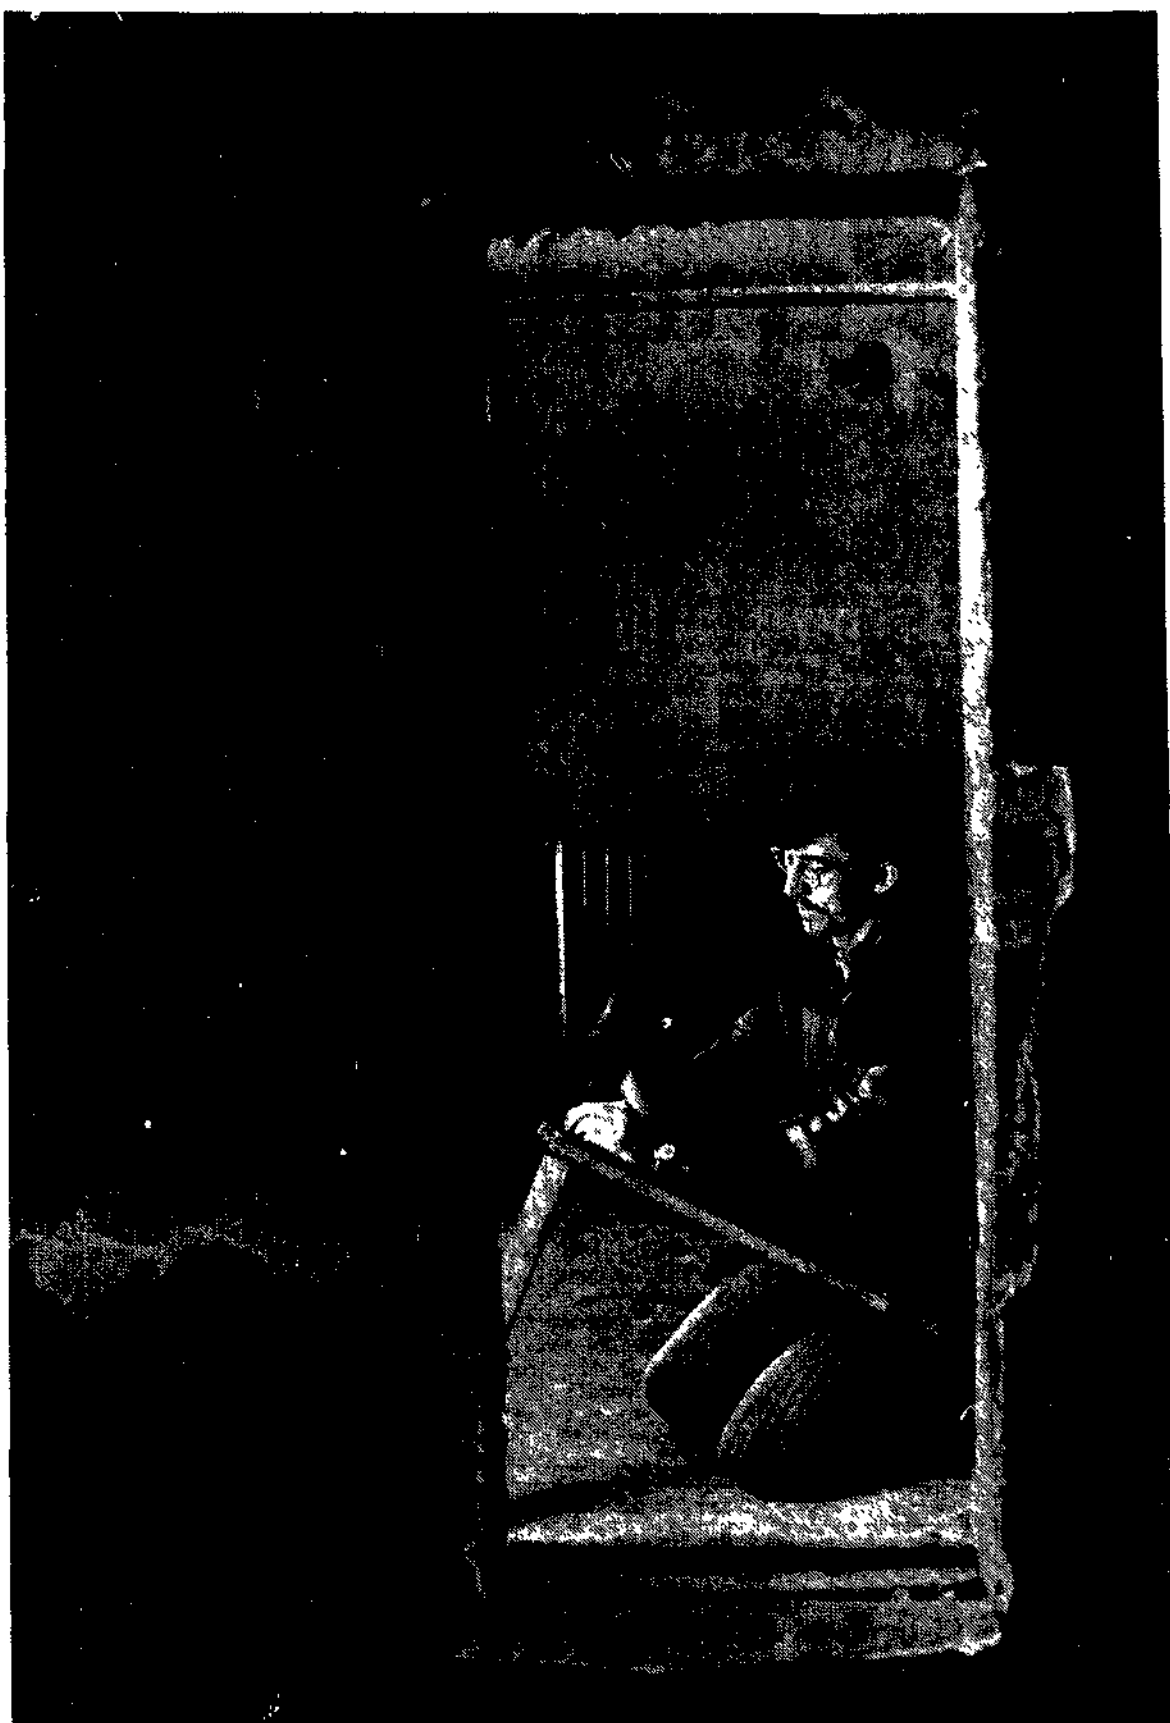

Because investigations of the property and negotiations continue, Kiszka could not say at what price the additional 4.8 acres would be sold to the district, although he explained that representatives of the real estate company handling the sale said the price "would be far below the present market value of such land."

KISZKA SAID THAT although courts have declared unconstitutional a contractual provision requiring developing firms to provide land for school sites, most land developers and construction firms agree to make some sort of a provision for schools.

"We (Dist. 15 officials) would be greatly upset if they (Kassuba) were building without consideration for schools," he said.

The possibility of overcrowding existing Dist. 15 schools when construction of the Kassuba apartment complex is completed is not only a consideration of Dist. 15 but the Pinehurst homeowners as well.

In their presentation to the Zoning Board Monday, the homeowners explained that their children are now being bused to different schools and that the apartment complex would only increase an already overcrowded situation.

CAMPUS LIFE VOLUNTEERS have been working for several weeks on renovating two older homes in Arlington Heights, remodeling the houses for Halloween week. Dan Coffey from Trinity Seminary works on one of the rooms of the houses. The houses will be

"haunted" next week and will be open for brave residents who want to tour through them. Campus Life is a non-denominational Christian organization for high school and college students. It draws members from all the Northwest and North Shore Suburbs.

Name Policeman At Fremd High

A new police consultant has been named for Fremd High School, said Lt. Frank Ortiz of the Palatine Police Department.

David Zach, a patrolman with the department for two years, will assume his new duties as police consultant this Monday. Zach is a resident of Barrington.

He replaces officer Richard Sikorski, who has served as Fremd's consultant for the past two years. Before that, he was a patrolman on the Palatine force for two years.

Randhurst Named In Tax Probe

by GERRY DeZONNA

The tax records of the Randhurst Corp., owner of Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect, will be investigated by a state senate subcommittee in connection with alleged tax assessment reductions granted by County Assessor P.J. Cullerton.

State Sen. Arthur R. Swanson, R-Chicago, chairman of the state senate subcommittee for assessment practices, said yesterday Randhurst Shopping Center is one of several shopping centers in the area which will be included in the committee's investigation of tax assessment reductions.

"We're currently investigating parcels of property in which there have been glaring discrepancies in the tax assessments. At the moment, we're zeroing in on twelve buildings in the city, and once we've finished these investigations, we'll proceed with our review of shopping centers in the county," Swanson said.

ROBERT HANRAHAN, Cook County

superintendent of schools, has also charged that Randhurst Shopping Center as well as six other shopping centers in the county are "grossly underassessed."

Hanrahan said Tuesday the assessed valuation of Randhurst "should be almost quadrupled." The 1969 assessed valuation of a shopping center is $6,091,105, he said.

In addition to Randhurst, the subcommittee in the newspaper or we've seen on television will also investigate alleged tax assessment reductions for Old Orchard, Skokie; Hillside Shopping Center, Wolf Road at the Eisenhower Expressway; Evergreen Plaza, 95th and Western streets; Lawrencewood Shopping Center, Oakton and Waukegan roads; and Dixie Square Shopping Plaza, 151st Street and Dixie Highway.

Richard McCarthy, public relations director of the Randhurst Corp., said yesterday the corporation has not been notified of an investigation by Swanson's committee.

"WE'VE HEARD NOTHING about the investigation other than what we've read in the vision. To the best of my knowledge, Randhurst has not received any cuts in its assessed valuation," McCarthy explained.

Randhurst Corp. is equally owned by Carson Pirie Scott and Co., Montgomery Ward and Wieboldt's, McCarthy said.

Swanson's committee is currently reviewing the files on 12 buildings in Chicago, including the Brunswick Building, Merchandise Mart and Prudential Building.

"It's taken us 10 days to review 10 files, and at this point, it's evident that favoritism plays a very big part in the granting of tax-assessment cuts for the owners of downtown properties. There is an obvious need for regulatory legislation, and this committee intends to prove this need as well as the passage of regulatory legislation," Swanson said.

Swanson said the investigation of tax-assessment reductions is the result of

Randhurst Named In Cullerton Tax Probe

ENTERTAINMENT WAS provided by the MacArthur Junior High School choir at an open house Wednesday night. Parents attending the event, learned about the school's operation. In the classrooms, the parents observed teaching methods used, and in some cases participated in class discussion.

by GERRY DeZONNA
The tax records of the Randhurst Corp., owner of Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect, will be investigated by a state senate subcommittee in connection with alleged tax assessment reductions granted by County Assessor P. J. Cullerton.

State Sen. Arthur R. Swanson, R-Chicago, chairman of the state senate subcommittee for assessment practices, said yesterday Randhurst Shopping Center is one of several shopping centers in the area which will be included in the committee's investigation of tax assessment reductions.

"We're currently investigating parcels of property in which there have been glaring discrepancies in the tax assessments. At the moment, we're zeroing in on twelve buildings in the city, and once we've finished these investigations, we'll proceed with our review of shopping centers in the county," Swanson said.

ROBERT HANRAHAN, Cook County superintendent of schools, has also charged that Randhurst Shopping Center as well as six other shopping centers in the county are "grossly underassessed."

Hanrahan said Tuesday the assessed valuation of Randhurst "should be almost quadrupled." The 1969 assessed valuation of a shopping center is $6,091,105, he said.

In addition to Randhurst, the subcommittee will also investigate alleged tax-assessment reductions for Old Orchard, Skokie; Hillside Shopping Center, Wolf Road at the Eisenhower Expressway; Evergreen Plaza, 95th and Western streets; Lawrencewood Shopping Center, Oakton and Waukegan roads; and Dixie Square Shopping Plaza, 151st Street and Dixie Highway.

Richard McCarthy, public relations director of the Randhurst Corp., said yesterday the corporation has not been notified of an investigation by Swanson's committee.

"WE'VE HEARD NOTHING about the investigation other than what we've read in the newspaper," McCarthy explained. To the best of his knowledge, Randhurst has not received any cuts in its assessed valuation, McCarthy explained.

Randhurst Corp. is equally owned by Carson Pirie Scott and Co., Montgomery Ward and Wieboldt's, McCarthy said.

Swanson's committee is currently reviewing the files on 12 buildings in Chicago, including the Brunswick Building, Merchandise Mart and Prudential Building.

"It's taken us 10 days to review 10 files, and at this point, it's evident that favoritism plays a very big part in the granting of tax-assessment cuts for the owners of downtown properties. There is an obvious need for regulatory legislation, and this committee intends to prove this need as well as the passage of regulatory legislation," Swanson said.

Swanson said the investigation of tax-assessment reductions is the result of "information secured by the news media following a review of the county tax rolls."

"IT HAS BEEN brought to our attention that property owners who are friends of the Mayor (Richard Daley) or the assessor (Cullerton) have been granted substantial cuts in the assessed valuation of their properties," Swanson said.

"My subcommittee will investigate the tax cuts granted to shopping centers, but at this time, I can't tell you when those investigations will be scheduled. This will all depend on when our investigations of the major buildings in the city have been concluded," he said.

Tax-assessment reductions reportedly were granted to these businesses on the grounds that they needed tax relief to show a fair profit.

Swanson said a search of the assessor's records has provided "no such economic hardships as grounds for tax cuts" on the 12 Chicago buildings now under investigation.

Randhurst Said To Be Assessed Low

The assessed valuation of Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect should be almost four times what it is now, Robert Hanrahan, Cook County superintendent of schools, charged this week.

"The 1969 assessed valuation of Randhurst Shopping Center is $6,091,105, and in my estimation, I think the shopping center should be assessed at about $24 million," Hanrahan said.

Hanrahan said Randhurst is located on a 100-acre tract of land with 1,250,000 square feet of rental space which is fully occupied. Major tenants include Carson Pirie Scott and Co., Montgomery Ward and Wieboldt's department stores.

Hanrahan said Randhurst as well as six other shopping centers in the area have been "grossly underassessed."

The other shopping centers are Old Orchard, Skokie; Hillside Shopping Center, Wolf Road at the Eisenhower Expressway; Lawrencewood Shopping Center, Oakton and Waukegan roads; Evergreen Plaza, 95th and Western; and Dixie Square Shopping Plaza, 151st and Dixie Highway.

Hanrahan charged that the total assessed valuation on land value only is $33 million, when the total assessed valuation on land value only for all seven shopping centers should be about $132 million.

"I HAVE CONSERVATIVELY estimated, as a result of these assessed valuations, that 14 school districts in the county have been losing about $1,500,000 in school revenues annually," he said.

"This unfair system of determining assessed valuation not only deprives our schools and children of funds needed to carry on a first-rate educational program but it also puts an unfair burden on the homeowner. Many school bond issues have been defeated recently as a result," Hanrahan said.

Hanrahan has urged that State Sen. Arthur R. Swanson, R-Chicago, chairman of the state subcommittee on assessment practices, investigate the seven shopping centers in connection with tax-assessment reductions granted by County Assessor P. J. Cullerton.

Query School Intern Program

An internship program now in effect in School Dist. 26 is not authorized under the provisions of the Illinois School Code, according to John Hager, attorney for the district.

As part of the district internship program, a graduate student in education administration at Loyola University, who is certified by the state, works as an assistant principal at River Trails Junior High School.

The district compensates Loyola for the student's services. The university, in turn, grants a scholarship to the student in an amount approximating the total compensation paid by the school district. Money not paid to the student is used by the university for expenses of the student program.

Recently residents belonging to the Parkview Homeowners Association, an unincorporated Mount Prospect, questioned the legality of the district internship program. They said the arrangement is "in conflict with a certain section of the Illinois School Code which provides that no public school funds can be paid to any sectarian institutions."

ACCORDING TO HAGER the arrangement does not violate that section of the code. "The aid, if any, which goes to Loyola is incidental to the primary purpose for which this program is carried on. The purpose is the benefit of the school district in its administrative operations."

"This program, which provides graduate student assistants to school districts, is not limited to sectarian schools," added Hager. "Other public universities are participating."

Despite these facts Hager advised the district to "make all payments directly to the individuals who perform the services, if the internship program is to be conducted."

The problem according to Hager is that "there is no authorization in the school code for the employment of educational institutions to provide either educational or administrative services."

A school board's powers are limited to what is specifically listed in the school code, said Hager.

The school board agreed to follow Hager's advice.

Hersey Gets 'All American'

An All-American rating has been awarded to the "Correspondent," the Hersey High School newspaper, for the fourth consecutive semester.

The National Scholastic Press Association awarded the highest high school rating to the newspaper for the second semester of the 1969-70 school year.

The "Correspondent" had to earn marks of distinction in at least four of five areas. They include coverage and content, writing and editing, editorial leadership, physical appearance, and photography.

The newspaper earned marks of distinction in all five judging areas for the first time. It is now eligible for the "Pacemaker" award, given each year to less than 10 high school newspapers in the nation.

ACCORDING TO Richard Nelson, "Correspondent" advisor, "Special credit should go to Brendan O'Connell for winning the fifth mark of distinction, in photography. If he hadn't taken it upon himself, we would not have won that fifth mark."

Fairview PTA Will Hold 'Spook Party'

The Fairview School PTA will hold a "Spook House Party and Pumpkin Sale" Saturday at the school, 300 N. Fairview Ave., Mount Prospect. The event will run from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Mrs. Gerry Pagel, a PTA member said the school's multipurpose room will be transformed into a "spook house," complete with a "witches pot" and "ring the pumpkin" game as well as a "Frankenstein coffin" exhibit.

Admittance to the event will be $1 per child. Adults will be admitted free. The admittance cost will go for taffy apples, soda pop, cupcakes and other refreshments for the youngsters.

"As superintendent of schools in Cook County, I am deeply distressed by the widespread scandals which have been discovered in the assessor's office by the news media. This unjustified favoritism and under-evaluation have reduced the amount of funds available for school expenditures," Hanrahan said.

Delay Utility Suit Hearing

A hearing to review a suit filed by the Citizens Utility Co. against Cook County has been postponed until today.

Originally the suit was to be heard yesterday, but it was postponed because an earlier case took longer than expected.

A Prospect Heights group called "Taxes and Promises" have petitioned to intervene in the suit against the utility company. The group was formed to protest construction of a one-million gallon water tank at the corner of Lee and Old Willow roads in Prospect Heights.

Referendum Support Shown By Poll

by BETSY BROOKER

Most community leaders and residents contacted at random by the Herald indicated they supported the Dist. 23 referendum.

The referendum will be held this Saturday at Sullivan School, located at Palatine and Schoenbeck roads. Voters will be asked to approve a tax hike in the building fund and education fund and a special levy to build a new school in Arlington Heights. In addition, district officials are requesting authorization to go to the maximum limit in selling bonds, to finance additions and improvements to existing schools.

Several of the people called by the Herald for the poll did not know what the district is proposing in the referendum. And they weren't sure they were going to vote. Others said they believed the district needed money but they didn't think they could afford to vote "yes."

However, all of the community leaders and the majority of the residents called at random support the referendum.

"My youngest child is attending Harper Junior College, so I am not involved with the referendum except as an interested taxpayer," said Mrs. Erville Crain. "I believe the schools need the funds, and I hope they are making the best use of them. But some of my neighbors feel there are a few too many frills in the schools."

ACCORDING TO Richard Schuld, president of the Prospect Heights Old Town Sanitary District, "The school district is in dire need of the money. Any person in the community who would just intelligently sit down and realize that when you have more children attending school in today's economy on a budget that was established years ago, you are going to have a problem. I think we have a moral obligation to vote yes on the referendum."

"I don't like to see the trailers outside of MacArthur Junior High School," said Mrs. E. G. Doyle. "I support the referendum 100 per cent, and I don't believe they are asking for too much. The referendum has been defeated so many times they have to ask for all five proposals now."

"These are our future American leaders and they need a good education," added Mrs. Doyle. "We just have to pay a little more to get it."

According to Bill Williams, president of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association, "We should vote for some of the items on the referendum in order to maintain a quality school system. We need to be progressive and not remain static. This is what the school district is trying to do."

ANOTHER "YES" vote for the referendum came from Mrs. W. T. Lynch. She said, "We have to do something about our schools. They need more space."

"It is one of the facts of education, that it costs more now," said Bill Kuhns, president of the Prospect Heights Park District board. "It is just going to take more money to maintain the standards in our schools and to give an education to the increasing number of people coming into the system."

Park Sign-Up Change Told

Beginning in December, residents of the Mount Prospect Park District wishing to register for park programs will have to do so in person instead of by telephone.

Park district officials will cease accepting telephone registrations in favor of a card catalogue system according to Paul Caldwell, assistant director of parks and recreation.

The decision to revert to the card catalogue system was made after inquiries into the registration procedures of six area park districts in Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Palatine, Wheeling, Prospect Heights and Glenview.

The park district currently requires residents to call in their registrations between the hours of 9:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. on one particular day.

CALDWELL SAID THIS system has created some problems in that the park district always had to call back those persons registering for confirmation. He also said that on days when registration for a popular program was taking place, the telephone lines would be tied up and an early caller would not necessarily be the first one registered.

Caldwell said most of the park districts he visited used a card catalogue system similar to that used for registration at colleges and universities.

Caldwell said registration for all programs sponsored by the park district would be handled in one day at the park district offices, 600 S. See-Gwyn Ave.

Cards listing a particular program and the necessary information would be handed out to persons at the office. There will be as many cards as there are openings in each program.

Registrations will be handled on a first-come, first-serve basis. Names of persons arriving at the park district offices before it opens at 9 a.m. will be given first priority.

REGISTRANTS CAN register for one other family, no matter how large, besides themselves. Persons must pay necessary fees at the time they register.

Caldwell said mailing registrations was "cumbersome" in that "some of the registrations would be lost or mishandled in the mailing process."

He said a combination of both telephone and "in-person" registration would not be adequate because persons calling the office would have a better opportunity than those registering in person.

Council Plans To Upgrade Programs

Introduction of programs in drug abuse, conservation and a program for gifted children in Dist. 26 schools is being considered by the newly formed curriculum council.

The council was organized this summer to recommend curriculum policy to the school board. It is composed of teachers and administrators.

At its October meeting the council discussed not only the introduction of new programs but also upgrading of present programs.

According to Assistant Supt. James Retzlaff, "the main areas which it was felt needed upgrading at the present time are the language arts program, the social studies program, motivation of learning, cultural enrichment, kindergarten science programs and coordination of different subject area."

The council chose to concentrate on academic areas first. In addition, efforts will be made immediately to coordinate the different grades and schools.

IN THE AREA OF new programs, the district may develop a drug abuse program that will fit into the health series of the elementary grades, said Supt. Winston Harwood. The present drug abuse program at the junior high school level may also be expanded.

Three district personnel attended a workshop on the drug problem, sponsored by Cook County, earlier this month. A curriculum manual was distributed at the workshop which the district is considering for use as a general guideline.

"The concentration in the lower grades will be to teach the children a respect for medicine," said Harwood. "At the junior high school we will concentrate on the dangers of drugs."

The council will recommend a policy to the school board later, on action that should be taken by school officials when drugs are discovered in the schools. "We have to decide to what degree the principal has a responsibility to the parent and to the police. And who he should notify first," said Harwood.

CONSERVATION IS another area the council is considering for the new district curriculum. Miss Bea Amundson, principal of Feehanville School, proposed teaching a course in "outdoor education" at all of the schools.

Earlier this month students at Feehanville School spent an entire day in an outdoor field trip, at Potawatomi Woods. The purpose of the trip according to Miss Amundson was "to acquaint ourselves with some plants and animals in their natural habitats, their interactions and interdependence."

Concerning a program for gifted children, Harwood reported that he has mailed an application requesting aid from the state for the program. The aid, if granted, will equal the cost of a workshop that would be held to instruct teachers for the program.

IN ORDER TO institute a program for gifted children, Harwood said, "teachers need to be equipped through training and experience to teach the gifted. In the workshop we must develop a method of stimulation, teacher interest and participation."

The children who will be eligible for the program "do not have to be geniuses," said Harwood. "The state lets you define gifted children. I feel it is the child who has considerably above average ability."

Resident Is Hit By Auto

A 27-year-old Mount Prospect man was injured yesterday afternoon when he was struck by a car on Euclid Street, near Arlington High School, in Arlington Heights.

Arlington Heights police said William A. Maulding, of 6 S. William St., Mount Prospect, was struck after he got out of the trailer truck he had parked alongside the roadway in front of the school.

A spokesman at Northwest Community Hospital said late yesterday afternoon that Maulding was still being examined and no condition report was yet available.

Police said Maulding was hit by a car driven by Sophie F. Gardner, 67, of 813 N. Mitchell Ave., Arlington Heights. She was charged by police with violation of a drivers' license restriction code and driving too fast for conditions. She is scheduled to appear in Arlington Heights court Nov. 23.

Fun Fair Slated

A "wild west round-up fun fair" will be sponsored by the Dist. 21 Frost School PTA this Saturday.

The fair will be held from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the school's gym in Prospect Heights. Booths, games, prizes, cotton candy and refreshments will highlight the event.

15 Camp Fire Girls Slate Cleanup Drive

Approximately 15 girls from two Campfire Girls organizations will stage a cleanup drive Monday from the Mount Prospect Public Library to the Chicago and North Western R. R. depot.

The girls who will be participating in the cleanup drive are both Blue Birds (girls from seven to eight years old) and Camp Fire Girls (girls between the ages of nine and 11 years old).

The girls will begin at approximately 4 p.m. at the library.

Reiter On Kenroy: 'Not Unhappy'

"I'm not unhappy with the outcome of the Kenroy petition," Trustee George Reiter of the Mount Prospect Village Board said Tuesday.

Reiter did not attend the village board meeting Oct. 13, when the board turned down a request from Kenroy Builders Inc. for annexation and rezoning of a 37-acre tract, including the Rob Roy Driving Range, at Wolf Road and Euclid Avenue. Kenroy wants to build a planned unit development on the site.

When asked if he had any comments on the Kenroy decision, Reiter said, "Since my vote won't count one way or the other, I have no comment except that I'm not unhappy with the outcome." The board refused annexation and rezoning of the land which would have paved the way for the construction of a $27 million planned unit development with 624 apartment units, 130 townhouses and a racquet club with indoor tennis courts.

The Kenroy petition was turned down because it failed to win the approval of at least four members of the board. The vote was 3 to 3: Mayor Robert Teichert said Tuesday a motion for reconsideration, calling for another vote on the case, would have to have been entered Oct. 13.

Village trustees did not ask for reconsideration of the Kenroy petition.

MRS. WILLIAM LUNDMARK, left, and Mrs. Richard Prybil look over some of the hundreds of candles and candle holders that were for sale yesterday at the third annual Holiday

Candle Tea sponsored by the local unit of the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation. The event was held at the Holiday Inn, 200 E. Rand Rd. in Mount Prospect.

Services Slated

The congregation of St. Paul Lutheran Church, 100 S. School St. in Mount Prospect, will observe Mission Sunday this weekend.

Worship services will focus on the Lutheran Church's missionary activities throughout the world. Guest speaker at this Sunday's worship services will be the Rev. Peter Zadeik, superintendent of the Lutheran high school for the Chicago area.

Also this Sunday, the Lutheran Women's Missionary League will have various displays set up in the church basement showing the type of mission work the women of the church are doing.

One of the displays will have the theme, "Adopt an Indian Child." Currently 12 Indian children from the western United States have been financially "adopted" by the women's missionary league.

Low-Cost Housing Backed By AAUW

As the controversy over low and moderate income-housing continues, the local branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) recently jumped into the fray.

The Arlington Heights branch of AAUW, which includes members from throughout the Northwest suburban area, passed a resolution recently to encourage the development of low and moderate-income housing in the area.

The AAUW last week sent copies of the resolution to village boards throughout the area.

A letter was sent by a member of the group to state that the resolution "contains an element that can do more harm than good" soon after the resolutions were mailed.

THE TWO LETTERS were brought up during the meeting of the Wheeling Village Board Monday night. Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon said that the local board and plan commission were working through annexations and zoning changes to "do everything possible to consider moderate income housing" for the village.

The resolution was passed Oct. 8 and states:

"Whereas, the Arlington Heights Branch, American Association of University Women, has a deep concern for the provision of adequate housing and is aware of the need, both local and national, for well-planned housing for people of all income levels; and

"WHEREAS, the Illinois State Division, American Association of University Women, adopted the following in April, 1970: 'We support measures to alleviate hunger, cultural, social and economic deprivation and to eliminate substandard dwellings;' therefore be it

"Resolved; That the Arlington Heights Branch, AAUW calls upon the village governments of the Northwest Suburban areas within which members reside to encourage the development of low and moderate income housing while including provision for open space within all village limits so that people at all income levels will be able to live comfortably within our communities."

The copy of the resolution was sent Oct. 12 and the letter from Mrs. Joseph Braun, a member of AAUW, was dated three days later.

Mrs. Braun wrote, "As relatively harmless as this resolution appears, it contains an element that can do more harm than good. It carries with it the stigma of having been forced upon a group of supposedly intelligent women."

"TO THIS DAY, a great number of AAUW members are not aware that such a resolution exists since it did not appear in the organization newsletter or on the agenda of the meeting (general meeting at which the resolution was passed)."

Mrs. Braun, 1210 E. Campbell St., Arlington Heights, is a member of the legislative committee which originally approved the resolution.

During a meeting of the legislative committee in September, the matter of a resolution on low and moderate income housing was discussed, according to Mrs. Thomas Haack, chairman of the committee who lives at 903 Burning Tree Lane, Arlington Heights.

The discussion was published in the AAUW's newsletter so that other committee members could attend. Mrs. Haack said that the state and national AAUW groups have endorsed the idea of local communities providing housing for low and moderate income families.

THE COMMITTEE discussed forming a study group but the consensus was that AAUW members had already been encouraged to attend meetings within the past year on the subject and the League of Women Voters was already working on a fact sheet on the subject, Mrs. Haack said.

The committee voted to have the chairman present a resolution at the October meeting of the committee. The presentation of the resolution to the committee was published in the organization's newsletter, Mrs. Haack said.

Shortly after the committee approved the resolution in October, it was presented to the general meeting and approved by a voice vote.

Mrs. Braun said in her letter that a "few members" arranged for the presentation of the resolution at the general meeting and that no advance notice of the topic coming up was given.

MRS. HAACK SAID that AAUW will be having no regular meeting next month and thus the approval of the resolution would have had to wait until December if it had not been presented at the October meeting.

The committee chairman said that unfortunately "there are a few people who are very unhappy."

In order for any association to state a position, "there are going to be some dissenting members" who do not agree with the position, Mrs. Haack said.

She pointed out that the committee had been discussing the issue of low and moderate income housing for about a year.

Dist. 57 Plans Visitor Limits

Mount Prospect School Dist. 57 has followed the lead of other area school districts and established a resolution regulating public access to district schools.

The resolution, passed Monday night by the district board of education, further clarifies regulations on building access presently included in the Illinois School Code, according to assistant superintendent J. C. Busenhart.

Busenhart said there is a misconception that because schools are public facilities, school districts cannot regulate access to school buildings and that individuals not associated with the school can "come and go as they please."

Busenhart indicated that there is a trend among other districts in the area to pass similar resolutions, primarily to provide legal basis for removing unwanted persons from the building.

THE DIST. 57 resolution states that "no person may enter any premises... except during regular school or business hours, or during such other hours as the administration may establish from time to time for school-connected or other public events."

The resolution goes on to state that persons entering the premises for "school, business or other purposes" must leave the building "immediately after the purpose for which they entered terminates," or "the end of school or business... or school-connected activity ends."

"Persons entering the building for other reasons must report to the principal of the school. The principal must make the decision to either allow the person to stay or leave the building, according to the resolution."

The resolution adds that teachers, employees or student monitors may request persons to identify themselves, and that all persons "must conduct themselves in an orderly manner."

A notice is to be posted at the schools directing persons to report to the principal's office upon entering the building.

Miss Kuntz is a freshman at the university this year, majoring in romance languages. She graduated from Hersey High School in Arlington Heights last June.

Ogilvie To Attend School Dedication

Illinois Governor Richard B. Ogilvie will arrive at Schaumburg Airport at 10 a.m. Saturday and proceed to the dedication ceremonies of Schaumburg High School.

Schaumburg High School which opened this fall, is the first secondary school to be built with Illinois School Building Commission funds.

The governor is scheduled to arrive at the school at 10:30 a.m. and will begin a brief tour of the facility. A formal dedication of the building will start at 11 a.m.

The ISBC is the agency of the state that provides guidelines and funds for school districts which are unable to construct facilities because of financial limitations. The commission has built many elementary schools in the state.

The newest Dist. 211 school was built at a cost of $18.42 per square foot, considerably below the $20 to $25 per square foot for similarly constructed schools.

Statistically the school is a 2,500 student capacity, with over 100 class, seminar and large group instruction rooms.

The air conditioned facility cost $5,040,424. Two football fields could be laid out to end within the walls, which contain 7.05 acres under roof for a total of 307,057 square feet of space.

All residents of Palatine-Schaumburg High School Dist. 211 are encouraged to attend the dedication and take advantage of special tours that Schaumburg High School student will conduct.

Dist. 211 is setting aside a special section of seats for residents from both townships who worked on the recently successful Dist. 211 referendum. Funds from the referendum will construct a third high school in Schaumburg Township and another one in Palatine Township.

ERIE JONES, of Fitch, Larocca, Carington and Jones, architects, designers of the school, will greet Ogilvie at the airport, along with John Moore of ISBC. Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher will accompany Ogilvie, along with Dist. 211 board members and Jones on the special tour of the facility.

The school's band and chorus will perform in the gymnasium at 10:30 a.m. Tours for the public will start at 11:30 a.m.

William Fremd, oldest school board member, will be a special guest at the dedication.

Elected officials from surrounding communities have been invited and Dist. 211 expects some 500 residents to attend the ceremonies.

Randhurst Named In Cullerton Tax Probe

by GERRY DeZONNA

The tax records of the Randhurst Corp., owner of Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect, will be investigated by a state senate subcommittee in connection with alleged tax assessment reductions granted by County Assessor P.J. Cullerton.

State Sen. Arthur R. Swanson, R-Chicago, chairman of the state senate subcommittee for assessment practices, said yesterday Randhurst Shopping Center is one of several shopping centers in the area which will be included in the committee's investigation of tax assessment reductions.

"We're currently investigating parcels of property in which there have been glaring discrepancies in the tax assessments. At the moment, we're zeroing in on twelve buildings in the city, and once we've finished these investigations, we'll proceed with our review of shopping centers in the county," Swanson said.

ROBERT HANRAHAN, Cook County superintendent of schools, has also charged that Randhurst Shopping Center as well as six other shopping centers in the county are "grossly underassessed."

Hanrahan said Tuesday the assessed valuation of Randhurst "should be almost quadrupled." The 1969 assessed valuation of a shopping center is $6,091,105," he said.

In addition to Randhurst, the subcommittee will also investigate alleged tax-assessment reductions for Old Orchard, Skokie; Hillside Shopping Center, Wolf Road at the Eisenhower Expressway; Evergreen Plaza, 95th and Western streets; Lawrencewood Shopping Center, Oakton and Waukegan roads; and Dixie Square Shopping Plaza, 151st Street and Dixie Highway.

Richard McCarthy, public relations director of the Randhurst Corp., said yesterday the corporation has not been notified of an investigation by Swanson's committee.

"WE'VE HEARD NOTHING about the investigation other than what we've read in the newspaper. To the best of my knowledge, Randhurst has not received any cuts in its assessed valuation," McCarthy explained.

Randhurst Corp. is equally owned by Carson Pirie Scott and Co., Montgomery Ward and Wieboldt's, McCarthy said.

Swanson's committee is currently reviewing the files on 12 buildings in Chicago, including the Brunswick Building, Merchandise Mart and Prudential Building.

"It's taken us 10 days to review 10 files, and at this point, it's evident that favoritism plays a very big part in the granting of tax-assessment cuts for the owners of downtown properties. There is an obvious need for regulatory legislation, and this committee intends to prove this need as well as the passage of regulatory legislation," Swanson said.

Swanson said the investigation of tax-assessment reductions is the result of "information secured by the news media following a review of the county tax rolls."

"IT HAS BEEN brought to our attention that property owners who are friends of the Mayor (Richard Daley) or the assessor (Cullerton) have been granted substantial cuts in the assessed valuation of their properties," Swanson said.

"My subcommittee will investigate the tax cuts granted to shopping centers, but at this time, I can't tell you when those investigations will be scheduled. This will all depend on when our investigations of the major buildings in the city have been concluded," he said.

Randhurst Underassessed?

The assessed valuation of Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect should be almost four times what it is now, Robert Hanrahan, Cook County superintendent of schools, charged this week.

"The 1969 assessed valuation of Randhurst Shopping Center is $6,091,105, and in my estimation, I think the shopping center should be assessed at about $24 million," Hanrahan said.

Hanrahan said Randhurst is located on a 100-acre tract of land with 1,250,000 square feet of rental space which is fully occupied. Major tenants include Carson Pirie Scott and Co., Montgomery Ward and Wieboldt's department stores.

Hanrahan said Randhurst as well as six other shopping centers in the area have been "grossly underassessed."

The other shopping centers are Old Orchard, Skokie; Hillside Shopping Center, Wolf Road at the Eisenhower Expressway; Lawrencewood Shopping Center, Oakton and Waukegan roads; Evergreen Plaza, 95th and Western; and Dixie Square Shopping Plaza, 151st and Dixie Highway.

Hanrahan charged that the total assessed valuation on land value only is $33 million, when the total assessed valuation on land value only for all seven shopping centers should be about $132 million.

"I HAVE CONSERVATIVELY estimated, as a result of these assessed valuations, that 14 school districts in the county have been losing about $1,500,000 in school revenues annually," he said.

"This unfair system of determining assessed valuation not only deprives our schools and children of funds needed to carry on a first-rate educational program but it also puts an unfair burden on the homeowner. Many school bond issues have been defeated recently as a result," Hanrahan said.

Hanrahan has urged that State Sen. Arthur R. Swanson, R-Chicago, chairman of the state subcommittee on assessment practices, investigate the seven shopping centers in connection with tax-assessment reductions granted by County Assessor P.J. Cullerton.

Park Dist. Open Forum Set

The Mount Prospect Park District will hold an "open forum" tonight to discuss use of the community center under construction at Lions Park in Mount Prospect.

The meeting will be held in the Mount Prospect Country Club, 600 S. See-Grun Ave., beginning at 8 p.m.

Residents of the park district, including most of Mount Prospect and the 8th Ward in Des Plaines, are urged by park officials to attend the meeting and voice ideas and opinions. The forum will deal primarily with the planning of the teen center, which will occupy the building's ground floor.

The park district mailed invitations to 45 civic, business and social organizations in Mount Prospect and Des Plaines last week. Paul Caldwell, assistant director of parks and recreation for the Mount Prospect Park District, said yesterday that only the Mount Prospect Jaycees and Elk Grove Township Young Republicans have indicated they would attend.

"WE WERE HOPING to get responses from most of these organizations before the meeting. I do feel that a lot of them will attend although they did not get in touch with us," said Caldwell.

"I'm a little bit discouraged that we didn't get much of a response from these organizations and hope it isn't an indication of the turnout at the meeting," he said.

Caldwell said he and Sam Geati, who will act as building director for the community center, will first explain the park district's philosophy on the use of the center. They will then open up the forum for questions from the audience.

"We hope to enlist some volunteers to follow through with what ideas come out of the meeting . . . people who want to work with the park district in helping to establish some kind of rules," said Caldwell.

"AT THE END OF the meeting we don't want to say we'll keep their ideas in mind and carry out as many as we can. We want them to perhaps form standing committees to follow through with the ideas," he said.

Caldwell and Geati are especially concerned that the youngsters themselves attend the meeting, they said.

"The programming to a great degree will be handled by the kids themselves. We will do anything we can for them that we are legally and physically able to do. We're putting the ball in their hands. They can do what they want to do and make out of the teen center what they can," said Geati.

"The kids will have a definite say in how the center will be run, but it is still a park district building and we reserve in the right to say no if we have to," Geati added.

Revised Game Ordinance Passed

A revised village ordinance allowing not-for-profit organizations to operate certain carnival games was approved unanimously by the Mount Prospect Village Board Tuesday.

The new ordinance allows not-for-profit organizations to "offer prizes, awards or compensation to the contestants in any bona fide contest for the determination of skill, speed, strength or endurance."

The new ordinance was redrafted by Village Atty. John Zimmermann and approved by the village's judiciary committee Oct. 12.

Trustee Daniel Ahern, chairman of the judiciary committee, recommended the board approve the revisions Tuesday.

Ahern told the board the new ordinance is less restrictive than the old ordinance, which prohibits the operation of all carnival games in the village.

"The revised ordinance in no way contradicts with the Illinois statutes prohibiting gambling. Although our old village ordinance prohibits the operation of all carnival games, this does not mean every carnival game is prohibited by the state statutes," he said.

"A BONA FIDE game of skill, speed, endurance or strength is exempt from the state's gambling statutes but prohibited by the old village ordinance. Our revised ordinance will still prohibit carnival games as in the past, except that not-for-profit organizations can operate games — as long as they don't violate the state statutes," Ahern explained.

Ahern said games that would not be allowed under the state statutes are ones

"in which chance alone determines the prize."

The village board, by a vote of 5 to 0 approved the revised ordinance. Trustees George Reiter, Ahern, Robert Soderman, Donald Furst and John Kilroy voted on the issue.

The controversy over the legality of games played at carnivals occurred last summer. Most of the games at the World of Wold Carnival, held last May at the Mount Prospect Shopping Plaza, were closed for violating the village ordinance.

In view of the village's action against the World of Wold Carnival, the Lions Club asked the village board to either allow them to operate table games at the annual Fourth of July Carnival or to amend the village ordinance to exempt not-for-profit organizations.

All proceeds from the Fourth of July Carnival, sponsored by the Lions' Club, are donated to helping blind and handicapped children.

Although the Lions' Club held the carnival on schedule, they were not allowed to operate any table games pending revision of the ordinance, which the village board voted not to redraft or amend until after the carnival.

The village board voted in June to refer the Lions' Club request to the judiciary committee for additional study rather than amend the ordinance at that point.

Ahern said discussion of the ordinance was postponed, when it appeared revision of the ordinance "at that time would be inopportune because of the interpretations many people would make of that action."

FEEHANVILLE SCHOOL children are piling up bags of clothes to be contributed to the 26th annual Save The Children Federation's "Bundle Days Drive." The clothes will be distributed to clothing centers, belonging to the federation, in the Appalachian Mountains. The contributors are from, left, Vicky Frakes and Lisa Hall.

Al Capp To Lead Republican Rally

Cartoonist Al Capp, creator of Li'l Abner and Daisy Mae will lead an Elk Grove Township rally today of almost the entire slate of Republican candidates running for State and County offices in the Nov. 3 election.

Heading the list of candidates is U.S. Sen. Ralph Smith. He will be joined by Ray Page, who is seeking reelection as superintendent of public instruction and Edmund Kucharski, candidate for state treasurer.

THE RALLY WILL begin at 8 p.m. at Lincoln Junior High School, Mount Prospect, and candidates will answer questions during the refreshment hour after the program.

Almost all the important candidates for county offices and the candidates for county commissioner from the suburbs will also attend.

Rounding out the list will be Illinois Sen. John Graham and State Representatives David Regner and Eugene Schlickman.

Republican Committeeman Carl Hansen said he was pleased, "so many of the candidates have been able to fit the Elk Grove Township rally into their busy schedules. It's a tribute to our township's ability to deliver a large Republican plurality for them, which they need to offset the Democratic vote in the city."

Kopp Pool Reopening: '2 Or 3 Weeks'

Kopp Pool "will probably reopen in two to three weeks," according to Paul Caldwell, assistant director of parks and recreation for the Mount Prospect Park District.

Caldwell said that is the time it will take to install safety devices at the pool to guard against a recurrence of escaping carbon monoxide fumes at the pool which forced its evacuation Saturday morning.

The pool is located next to Dempster Junior High School, 420 W. Dempster St. in Mount Prospect.

Caldwell said a cost estimate on the installation of the safety devices is forthcoming from the architectural firm, Kesler, Merri and Lochner. That firm designed the pool, which was built last spring. Caldwell said he had no idea what the cost might be.

THE SAFETY MEASURES are those specified in a written report that came after a weekend investigation of the pool. Involved in the probe were Caldwell and architects Howard Kessler and Bill Merri. Others involved were Chief Larry Pairitz of the Mount Prospect Fire Department and Gene Gaul, a representative of the Merchants Heating and Air Conditioning Co.

The recommendations listed included the installation of a "spill thermostat" which would automatically shut off the boiler in the event of a down draft of fumes. Another recommendation was in the boiler stacks to assist in exhausting fumes.

Caldwell said the recommendations were submitted to Pairitz who will inspect the indoor pool after the recommendations are carried out. The inspection will be at the request of the park district.

The village fire department has no jurisdiction over Dempster Junior High, which is attached to the pool, Pairitz said. "We have no jurisdiction under our own code. We are involved in that we work in cooperation with the superintendent of schools," Pairitz said.

"ANYTIME YOU WORK with a governmental agent like the parks or the schools there is a question of how much authority you have over them, and it isn't much," Pairitz added.

"We (fire department) were asked to participate in the investigation and we were most willing to do so. All parties — the schools, the parks and the fire department — worked well together on it. There was no problem of jurisdiction at all and everybody had the same goal in mind which was the safety of the pool," said Pairitz.

Park Sign-Up Change Told

Beginning in December, residents of the Mount Prospect Park District wishing to register for park programs will have to do so in person instead of by telephone.

Park district officials will cease accepting telephone registrations in favor of a card catalogue system according to Paul Caldwell, assistant director of parks and recreation.

The decision to revert to the card catalogue system was made after inquiries into the registration procedures of six area park districts in Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Palatine, Wheeling, Prospect Heights and Glenview.

The park district currently requires residents to call in their registrations between the hours of 9:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. on one particular day.

CALDWELL SAID THIS system has created some problems in that the park district always had to call back those persons registering for confirmation. He also said that on days when registration for a popular program was taking place, the telephone lines would be tied up and an early caller would not necessarily be the first one registered.

Caldwell said most of the park districts he visited used a card catalogue system similar to that used for registration at colleges and universities.

Caldwell said registration for all programs sponsored by the park district would be handled in one day at the park district offices, 600 S. See-Gwyn Ave.

Cards listing a particular program and the necessary information would be handed out to persons at the office. There will be as many cards as there are openings in each program.

Registrations will be handled on a first-come, first-serve basis. Names of persons arriving at the park district offices before it opens at 9 a.m. will be given first priority.

REGISTRANTS CAN register for one other family, no matter how large, besides themselves. Persons must pay necessary fees at the time they register.

Caldwell said mailing registrations was "cumbersome" in that "some of the registrations would be lost or mishandled in the mailing process."

He said a combination of both telephone and "in-person" registration would not be adequate because persons calling the office would have a better opportunity than those registering in person.

Council Plans To Upgrade Programs

Introduction of programs in drug abuse, conservation and a program for gifted children in Dist. 28 schools is being considered by the newly formed curriculum council.

The council was organized this summer to recommend curriculum policy to the school board. It is composed of teachers and administrators.

At its October meeting the council discussed not only the introduction of new programs but also upgrading of present programs.

According to Assistant Supt. James Reitzlaff, "the main areas which it was felt needed upgrading at the present time are the language arts program, the social studies program, motivation of learning, cultural enrichment, kindergarten science programs and coordination of different subject areas."

The council chose to concentrate on academic areas first. In addition, efforts will be made immediately to coordinate the different grades and schools.

IN THE AREA OF new programs, the district may develop a drug abuse program that will fit into the health series of the elementary grades, said Supt. Winston Harwood. The present drug abuse program at the junior high school level may also be expanded.

Three district personnel attended a workshop on the drug problem, sponsored by Cook County, earlier this month. A curriculum manual was distributed at the workshop which the district is considering for use as a general guideline.

"The concentration in the lower grades will be to teach the children a respect for medicine," said Harwood. "At the junior high school we will concentrate on the dangers of drugs."

The council will recommend a policy to the school board later, on action that should be taken by school officials when drugs are discovered in the schools. "We have to decide to what degree the principal has a responsibility to the parent and to the police. And who he should notify first," said Harwood.

CONSERVATION IS another area the council is considering for the new district curriculum. Miss Bea Amundson, principal of Feehanville School, proposed teaching a course in "outdoor education" at all of the schools.

Earlier this month students at Feehanville School spent an entire day in an outdoor field trip, at Potawatomi Woods. The purpose of the trip according to Miss Amundson was "to acquaint ourselves with some plants and animals in their natural habitats, their interactions and interdependence."

Concerning a program for gifted children, Harwood reported that he has mailed an application requesting aid from the state for the program. The aid, if granted, will equal the cost of a workshop that would be held to instruct teachers for the program.

IN ORDER TO institute a program for gifted children, Harwood said, "teachers need to be equipped through training and experience to teach the gifted. In the workshop we must develop a method of stimulation, teacher interest and participation."

The children who will be eligible for the program "do not have to be geniuses," said Harwood. "The state lets you define gifted children. I feel it is the child who has considerably above average ability."

Resident Is Hit By Auto

A 27-year-old Mount Prospect man was injured yesterday afternoon when he was struck by a car on Euclid Street, near Arlington High School, in Arlington Heights.

Arlington Heights police said William A. Maulding, of 6 S. William St., Mount Prospect, was struck after he got out of the trailer truck he had parked alongside the roadway in front of the school.

A spokesman at Northwest Community Hospital said late yesterday afternoon that Maulding was still being examined and no condition report was yet available.

Police said Maulding was hit by a car driven by Sophie F. Gardner, 67, of 813 N. Mitchell Ave., Arlington Heights. She was charged by police with violation of a drivers' license restriction code and driving too fast for conditions. She is scheduled to appear in Arlington Heights court Nov. 23.

Fun Fair Slated

A "wild west round-up fun fair" will be sponsored by the Dist. 21 Frost School PTA this Saturday.

The fair will be held from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the school's gym in Prospect Heights. Booths, games, prizes, cotton candy and refreshments will highlight the event.

Reiter On Kenroy: 'Not Unhappy'

"I'm not unhappy with the outcome of the Kenroy petition," Trustee George Reiter of the Mount Prospect Village Board said Tuesday.

Reiter did not attend the village board meeting Oct. 13, when the board turned down a request from Kenroy Builders Inc. for annexation and rezoning of a 37-acre tract, including the Rob Roy Driving Range, at Wolf Road and Euclid Avenue. Kenroy wants to build a planned unit development on the site.

When asked if he had any comments on the Kenroy decision, Reiter said, "Since my vote won't count one way or the other, I have no comment except that

"I'm not unhappy with the outcome."

The board refused annexation and rezoning of the land which would have paved the way for the construction of a $27 million planned unit development with 624 apartment units, 130 townhouses and a racquet club with indoor tennis courts.

The Kenroy petition was turned down because it failed to win the approval of at least four members of the board. The vote was 3 to 3. Mayor Robert Teichert said Tuesday a motion for reconsideration, calling for another vote on the case, would have to have been entered Oct. 13.

Village trustees did not ask for reconsideration of the Kenroy petition.

15 Camp Fire Girls Slate Cleanup Drive

Approximately 15 girls from two Campfire Girls organizations will stage a cleanup drive Monday from the Mount Prospect Public Library to the Chicago and North Western R. R. depot.

The girls who will be participating in the cleanup drive are both Blue Birds (girls from seven to eight years old) and Camp Fire Girls (girls between the ages of nine and 11 years old).

The girls will begin at approximately 4 p.m. at the library.

MRS. WILLIAM LUNDMARK, left, and Mrs. Richard Prybil look over some of the hundreds of candles and candle holders that were for sale yesterday at the third annual Holiday

Candle Tea sponsored by the local unit of the National Cystic Fibrosis Research Foundation. The event was held at the Holiday Inn, 200 E. Rand Rd. in Mount Prospect.

Services Slated

The congregation of St. Paul Lutheran Church, 100 S. School St. in Mount Prospect, will observe Mission Sunday this weekend.

Worship services will focus on the Lutheran Church's missionary activities throughout the world. Guest speaker at this Sunday's worship services will be the Rev. Peter Zadek, superintendent of the Lutheran high school for the Chicago area.

Also this Sunday, the Lutheran Women's Missionary League will have various displays set up in the church basement showing the type of mission work the women of the church are doing.

One of the displays will have the theme, "Adopt an Indian Child." Currently 12 Indian children from the western United States have been financially "adopted" by the women's missionary league.

Randhurst Named In Cullerton Probe

by GERRY DEZONNA

The tax records of the Randhurst Corp., owner of Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect, will be investigated by a state senate subcommittee in connection with alleged tax assessment reductions granted by County Assessor P.J. Cullerton.

State Sen. Arthur R. Swanson, R-Chicago, chairman of the state senate subcommittee for assessment practices, said yesterday Randhurst Shopping Center is one of several shopping centers in the area which will be included in the committee's investigation of tax assessment reductions.

"We're currently investigating parcels of property in which there have been glaring discrepancies in the tax assessments. At the moment, we're zeroing in on twelve buildings in the city, and once we've finished these investigations, we'll proceed with our review of shopping centers in the county," Swanson said.

ROBERT HANRAHAN, Cook County superintendent of schools, has also charged that Randhurst Shopping Center as well as six other shopping centers in the county are "grossly underassessed."

Hanrahan said Tuesday the assessed valuation of Randhurst "should be almost quadrupled." The 1968 assessed valuation of a shopping center is $6,091,105, he said.

In addition to Randhurst, the subcommittee will also investigate alleged tax-assessment reductions for Old Orchard, Skokie; Hillside Shopping Center, Wolf Road at the Eisenhower Expressway;

Evergreen Plaza, 95th and Western streets; Lawrencewood Shopping Center, Oakton and Waukegan roads; and Dixie Square Shopping Plaza, 151st Street and Dixie Highway.

Richard McCarthy, public relations director of the Randhurst Corp., said yesterday the corporation has not been notified of an investigation by Swanson's committee.

"WE'VE HEARD NOTHING about the investigation other than what we've read in the news," McCarthy said. "To the best of my knowledge, Randhurst has not received any cuts in its assessed valuation," McCarthy explained.

Randhurst Corp. is equally owned by Carson Pirie Scott and Co., Montgomery Ward and Wieboldt's, McCarthy said.

Swanson's committee is currently reviewing the files on 12 buildings in Chicago, including the Brunswick Building, Merchandise Mart and Prudential Building.

"It's taken us 10 days to review 10 files, and at this point, it's evident that favoritism plays a very big part in the granting of tax-assessment cuts for the owners of downtown properties. There is an obvious need for regulatory legislation, and this committee intends to prove this need as well as the passage of regulatory legislation," Swanson said.

Swanson said the investigation of tax-assessment reductions is the result of "information secured by the news media following a review of the county tax rolls."

"IT HAS BEEN brought to our attention that property owners who are friends of the Mayor (Richard Daley) or the assessor (Cullerton) have been granted substantial cuts in the assessed valuation of their properties," Swanson said.

"My subcommittee will investigate the tax cuts granted to shopping centers, but at this time, I can't tell you when those investigations will be scheduled. This will all depend on when our investigations of the major buildings in the city have been concluded," he said.

Tax-assessment reductions reportedly were granted to these businesses on the grounds that they needed tax relief to show a fair profit.

Swanson said a search of the assessor's records has provided "no such economic hardships as grounds for tax cuts" on the 12 Chicago buildings now under investigation.

Randhurst Underassessed?

The assessed valuation of Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect should be almost four times what it is now, Robert Hanrahan, Cook County superintendent of schools, charged this week.

"The 1968 assessed valuation of Randhurst Shopping Center is $6,091,105, and in my estimation, I think the shopping center should be assessed at about $24 million," Hanrahan said.

Hanrahan said Randhurst is located on a 100-acre tract of land with 1,250,000 square feet of rental space which is fully occupied. Major tenants include Carson Pirie Scott and Co., Montgomery Ward and Wieboldt's department stores.

Hanrahan said Randhurst as well as six other shopping centers in the area have been "grossly underassessed."

The other shopping centers are Old Orchard, Skokie; Hillside Shopping Center, Wolf Road at the Eisenhower Expressway; Lawrencewood Shopping Center, Oakton and Waukegan roads; Evergreen Plaza, 95th and Western; and Dixie Square Shopping Plaza, 151st and Dixie Highway.

Hanrahan charged that the total assessed valuation on land value only is $33 million, when the total assessed valuation on land value only for all seven shopping centers should be about $132 million.

"I HAVE CONSERVATIVELY estimated, as a result of these assessed valuations, that 14 school districts in the county have been losing about $1,500,000 in school revenues annually," he said.

"This unfair system of determining assessed valuation not only deprives our schools and children of funds needed to carry on a first-rate educational program but it also puts an unfair burden on the homeowner. Many school bond issues have been defeated recently as a result," Hanrahan said.

Hanrahan has urged that State Sen. Arthur R. Swanson, R-Chicago, chairman of the state subcommittee on assessment practices, investigate the seven shopping centers in connection with tax-assessment reductions granted by County Assessor P. J. Cullerton.

Hersey Band Gets Award

The Hersey High School band received two first place awards during a recent trip to Illinois State University. The band participated in the first annual ISU Band Day competition.

The band, under the leadership of director Donald Caneva and assistant director Bob Rogers, received the "Outstanding Band" award and the first place award in class AA competition. Bands from all over the state competed for the honors.

Charles Minelli, a judge at ISU, stated the band "is one of the greatest bands I have heard and seen in the state of Illinois. They are a credit to their school and community."

After winning the afternoon competition, the Hersey band was asked to play the half-time show of the Illinois State-University of Akron football game.

The next public performance for the band will be the half time show of the Hersey-Wheeling football game on Oct. 30.

Ah, It's The Home Of Your Nightmares

by SANDRA BROWNING

The mystery of the dark unknown is being built into two older homes in Arlington Heights.

The Campus Life organization, a non-denominational Christian group for high school and college students in the Northwest and North Shore suburbs, is renovating the older homes, preparing them to be "haunted" during Halloween week.

Last year, Campus Life renovated a home which was about to be torn down just south of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library, 500 N. Dunton St., and about 2,000 young adults toured through the house of horrors.

During the past few weeks, volunteer adults and members of the Campus Life staff have been working on the homes near downtown Arlington Heights in preparation for a four-day "Haunted House" event. The walls have been painted black and doors have been put in so that visitors may walk through rooms easily.

People may tour the houses beginning next week. They will be open from 7 to 9:45 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday and from 7 to 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday. The exact location of the houses will be announced later. Campus Life workers are afraid they might have some premature visits if the location was announced this week.

The heating and electrical systems of the homes were completely revamped and approved by the village's building department before workers started addressing their own horrible touches.

Lattoff Motor Sales of Arlington Heights owns the buildings which are scheduled for demolition soon. The company offered to let Campus Life use the buildings for haunted houses and the organization went to work cleaning them out and remodeling them.

Because of problems with junior high schools students last year, none of these students will be allowed to go through the house unescorted. Last year, some of the younger kids "went bananas" because they were so frightened, according to Campus Life representatives.

Guards at the doors will also be checking older adults closely because the houses promise to be so scary that "adults may get heart attacks. And we're not kidding," according to Clayton Baumann from Campus Life.

The organization will be using about six professional makeup artists to help with the decorating of staff members' faces, faces, turning them into werewolves and other delightful creatures.

The haunted houses are aimed at the high school and college aged crowd, although others may tour the houses. By aiming at a specific age group, Campus Life staff members can do more "horrible" planning than if they tried to appeal to a general audience, Baumann said.

The main building has nearly twice as many rooms this year as the Haunted house run by the organization last year. The entire program is more than double the size of last year's, runs twice as long and promises to be "twice as scary," according to the Campus Life representatives.

The entire operation and construction of the haunted houses will take about 100 people. Construction involved bringing the old houses up to meet building code standards and then remodeling the rooms.

Baumann said a lot of the work is being done by college students who went through the haunted house last year and thought it was so good that they wanted to work on the project for this year.

Campus Life representatives said that people will be stationed in each room to help with crowd control and to keep people moving.

The organization is also trying to line up a musical group to play and has scheduled movies for people who are waiting to go through the house, Baumann said. Last year, some visitors waited up to three hours to tour the haunted house.

Campus Life will be using three floors of the buildings and workers have built an outside staircase to help with traffic control. The admission charge will be a $1 per person and about 5,000 people are expected to tour the homes.

Couple Caught With Evidence In Hands

It's not a good idea to take the law into your own hands.

It's even worse when the law catches you with the evidence in your hands.

That was the difficult situation in which an Arlington Heights couple, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Saas, of 910 White Oak St., found themselves early Monday evening.

Patrolman J. Eccles of the Arlington Heights police department reported that he was on patrol when he saw a group of people "tampering with a '25 miles-per-hour' speed limit sign in front of 1018 White Oak St."

Patrolman Eccles said Mrs. Saas told him they were moving the sign from in front of their home to the vacant address because the sign was a nuisance to them. Eccles said the woman added that she had contacted the public works department to have the sign moved, but received no satisfaction.

School Bids Are High

Bids to complete Berkley School in Arlington Heights came in just about as expected yesterday — more than $25,000 higher than the budget.

Administrators in Dist. 25 will meet later this week to study the bids submitted for general and special contracts on the second phase of the school at 2501 N. Chestnut Ave.

Low bids for the general contract appear to be in the area of $225,000, Supt. Donald Strong said after bids were opened yesterday afternoon.

The original budget calls for $193,000 for completion of the three classroom pods at the school.

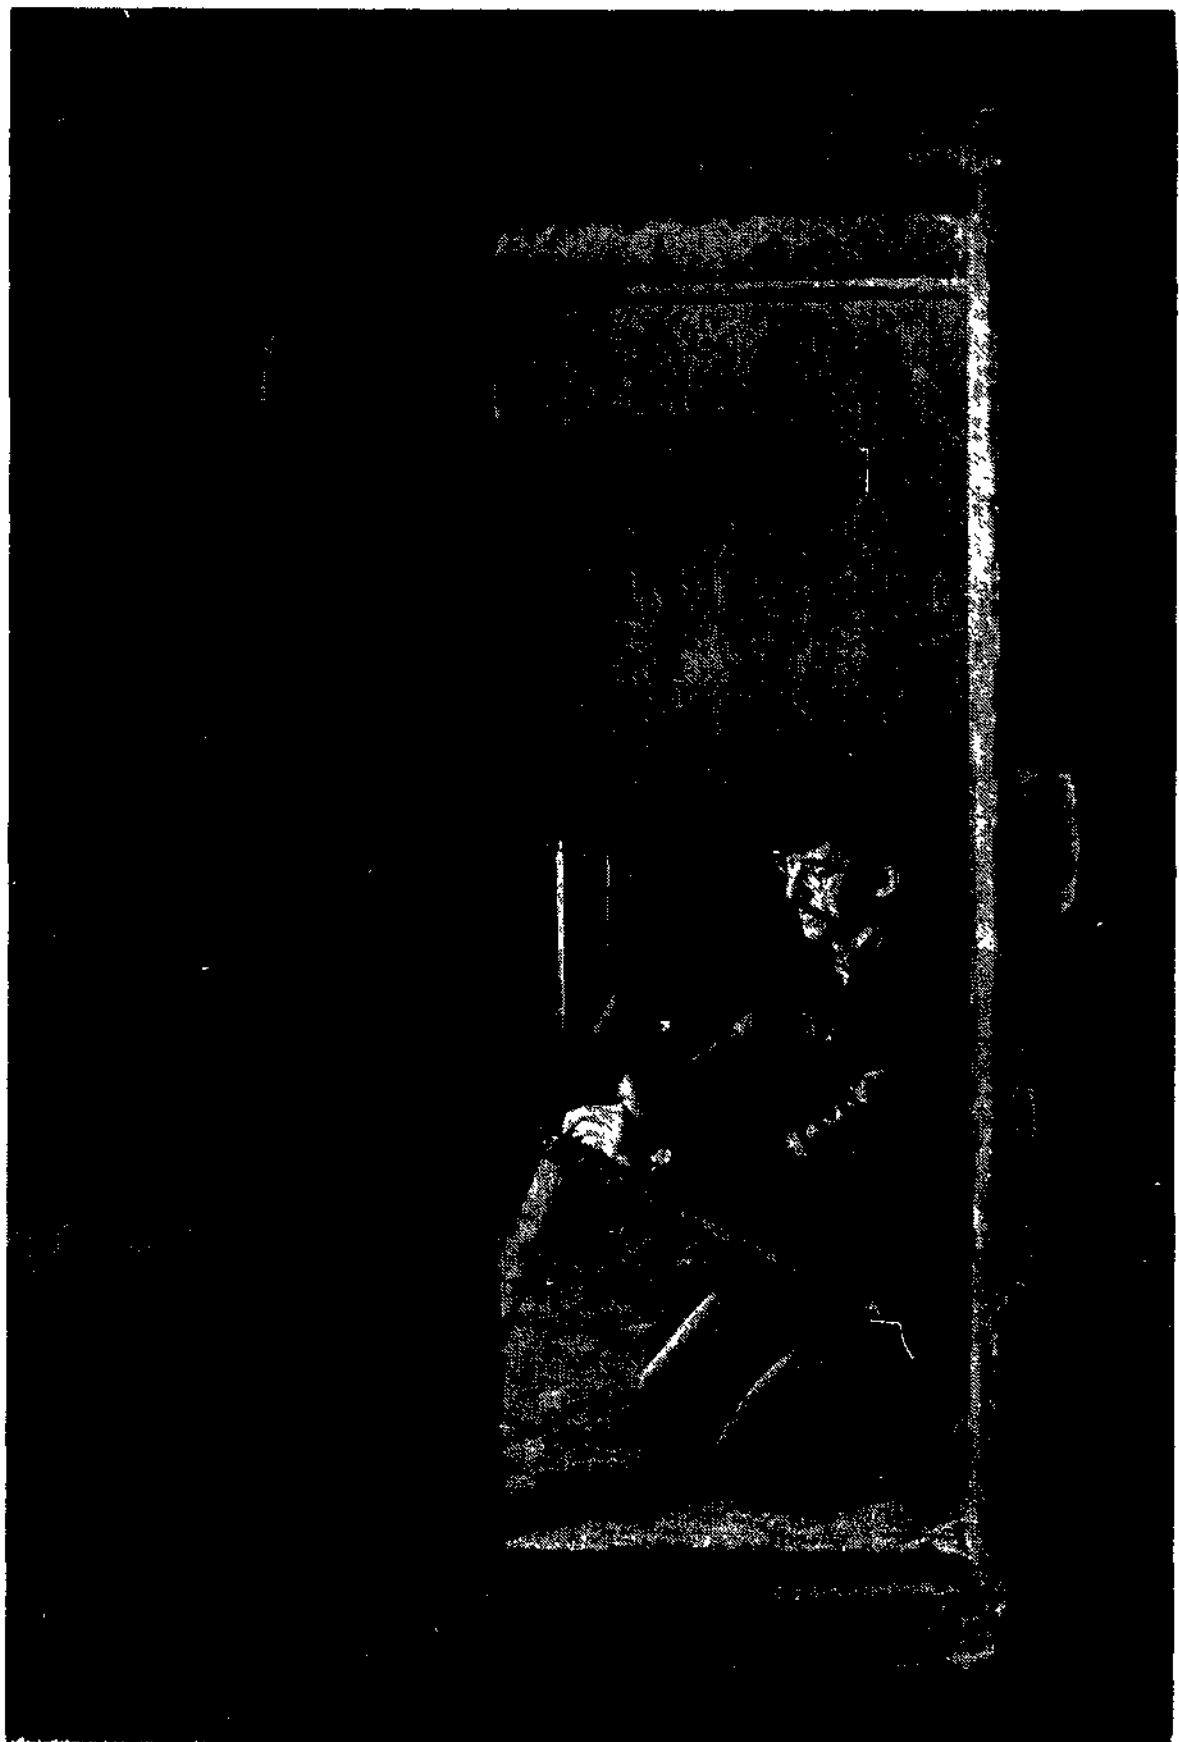

Alternative plans offered in some of the bids will be studied by the administration and some changes might be made in architectural plans to cut costs, Strong said.

FIFTEEN GENERAL contractors bid for the job and bids came in at almost the same amount architects had estimated, he said.

Last month school board members were told that estimates might be considerably higher than the amount budgeted and they authorized architects to make revised drawings in case changes in plans had to be made.

The board can now accept one of the bids made yesterday, trim plans and accept a revised bid based on changes in materials. The board could instead reject all bids, make a more major revision in the plans and rebid the project.

CAMPUS LIFE VOLUNTEERS have been working for several weeks on renovating two older homes in Arlington Heights, remodeling the houses for Halloween week. Dan Coffey from Trinity Seminary works on one of the rooms of the houses. The houses will be

"haunted" next week and will be open for brave residents who want to tour through them. Campus Life is a non-denominational Christian organization for high school and college students. It draws members from all the Northwest and North Shore Suburbs.

Doctor's Building Approved

After almost 18 months of hearings and presentations, Dr. Otto Bouc, an orthopedic surgeon, received approval Monday for a planned development of a doctor's building at 2010 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

The village board of trustees approved the plans after hearing a report from its legal committee and more testimony from the petitioner's attorney and architect.

At the board's regular meeting, the legal committee reported on several areas of the plans that were matters of concern at a previous hearing. The committee reported that the drainage of the property was satisfactorily engineered; that the public street should be dedicated, known as Seeger Road; that parking should be reduced adjacent to Arlington Heights Road to provide for more green area; and that an additional dedication, as needed, is to be provided so that Arlington Heights Road will have a half-street right of way of 50 feet.

IN APPROVING the plan, the board altered the wording of the drainage stipulation to read that water detention be engineered "to the satisfaction" of the village.

Manfred Hansjoachim Riedel, architect, presented drainage plans to the board which he said would reduce the run-off below the level of the natural state of the land. Trustee Burton Thompson praised the drainage plans, calling them, "the best plans for detention of storm water I've seen."

Eugene Schlickman, attorney for the petitioner, presented a model of the proposed building to the board to aid in the explanation of drainage, parking and design plans.

The plans call for the building to be constructed in three phases with a total gross area of 84,700 square feet. The final building will be a two-story structure on the west side of Arlington Heights Road between Golf and Algonquin roads.

LATER IN the evening the board approved a special use request from the American Oil Co., to permit the construction of a service station and a rezoning and a petition requesting permission to build an FM radio tower.

In approving the oil company request, the board followed a recommendation from the plan commission dated Sept. 23.

The station will be located on the northwest corner of Arlington Heights and Algonquin roads.

The radio tower, to be located on Dundee Road, just east of Arlington Heights Road, will be the transmitter site for a new FM allocation recently granted by the Federal Communications Commission.

The man who won the station allocation, Edward Piszczek, told the board the tower will be 350 feet high. He said the station's studios will be located in Des Plaines.

Officials Back Referendum

by BETSY BROOKER

Most community leaders and residents contacted at random by the Herald indicated they supported the Dist. 23 referendum.

The referendum will be held this Saturday at Sullivan School, located at Palatine and Schoenbeck roads. Voters will be asked to approve a tax hike in the building fund and education fund and a special levy to build a new school in Arlington Heights. In addition, district officials are requesting authorization to go to the maximum limit in selling bonds, to finance additions and improvements to existing schools.

Several of the people called by the Herald for the poll did not know what the district is proposing in the referendum. And they weren't sure they were going to vote. Others said they believed the district needed money but they didn't think they could afford to vote "yes."

However, all of the community leaders and the majority of the residents called at random support the referendum.

"My youngest child is attending Harper Junior College, so I am not involved with the referendum except as an interested taxpayer," said Mrs. Ervile Crain. "I believe the schools need the funds, and I hope they are making the best use of them. But some of my neighbors feel there are a few too many frills in the schools."

ACCORDING TO Richard Schild, president of the Prospect Heights Old Town Sanitary District, "The school district is in dire need of the money. Any person in the community who would just intelligently sit down and realize that when you have more children attending school in today's economy on a budget that was established years ago, you are going to have a problem. I think we have a moral obligation to vote yes on the referendum."

"I don't like to see the trailers outside of MacArthur Junior High School," said Mrs. E. G. Doyle. "I support the referendum 100 per cent, and I don't believe they are asking for too much. The referendum has been defeated so many times they have to ask for all five proposals now."

"These are our future American leaders and they need a good education," added Mrs. Doyle. "We just have to pay a little more to get it."

According to Bill Williams, president of the Prospect Heights Improvement Association, "We should vote for some of the items on the referendum in order to maintain a quality school system. We need to be progressive and not remain static. This is what the school district is trying to do."

ANOTHER "YES" vote for the referendum came from Mrs. W. T. Lynch. She said, "We have to do something about our schools. They need more space."

"It is one of the facts of education, that it costs more now," said Bill Kuhns, president of the Prospect Heights Park District board. "It is just going to take more money to maintain the standards in our schools and to give an education to the increasing number of people coming into the system."

Woman's Club Donates $300

The first check received by the Arlington Heights United Fund was donated by the Arlington Heights Woman's Club.

In yesterday's Herald, the $300 check received by the local fund as incorrectly identified in a picture caption as being given by the Arlington Heights Junior Woman's Club.

In the caption, Mrs. Laddie Poduska was mistakenly identified as the president of the junior woman's club. She is president of the Arlington Heights Woman's Club.

The club's donation and other donations collected by the local United Fund drive, will be used to help finance 15 local agencies and their programs.

Al Capp To Lead GOP Rally

Cartoonist Al Capp, creator of Li'l Abner and Daisy Mae will lead an Elk Grove Township rally today of almost the entire slate of Republican candidates running for State and County offices in the Nov. 3 election.

Heading the list of candidates is U.S. Sen. Ralph Smith. He will be joined by Ray Page, who is seeking reelection as superintendent of public instruction and Edmund Kucharski, candidate for state treasurer.

THE RALLY WILL begin at 8 p.m. at Lincoln Junior High School, Mount Prospect, and candidates will answer questions during the refreshment hour after the program.

Almost all the important candidates for county offices and the candidates for county commissioner from the suburbs will also attend.

Rounding out the list will be Illinois Sen. John Graham and State Representatives David Regner and Eugene Schlickman.

Republican Committeeman Carl Hansen said he was pleased, "so many of the candidates have been able to fit the Elk Grove Township rally into their busy schedules. It's a tribute to our township's ability to deliver a large Republican plurality for them, which they need to offset the Democratic vote in the city."

Education Editor To Be Speaker

Tom Wellman, education editor for Paddock Publications, will be the featured speaker next Tuesday at the ninth annual Forest View High School publications banquet.

The event will be held at the Seanda House Restaurant at the Mount Prospect Shopping Plaza, Rand and Central roads in Mount Prospect.

Wellman will discuss journalistic trends and education. He has worked as a newspaper reporter, columnist and editor, and has been a radio newsmen.

Mistress of ceremonies for the event will be Nancy King, president of the school's chapter of the Quill and Scroll International Honorary Society for high school journalists. She is also the editor-in-chief of the school's newspaper, the Viewer.

Other guests on the program include Richard Carey, Viewer advisor; Robert Staley, yearbook advisor; and Russell Sinkler, last year's editor-in-chief of the Viewer.

The dinner is the first journalistic social affair of the year for the school. Those invited include yearbook and

Kopp Pool Action Promised

by DAVE PALERMO
Officials from the Mount Prospect Park District and School Dist. 59 will act on the results of a weekend investigation into an incident Saturday in which carbon monoxide escaped into the Kopp Pool area.

The escaping gas forced the evacuation of 25 youngsters and adults from the pool. They were taken to local hospitals by four area fire departments, where they were treated and released.

The pool is adjacent to Dempster Junior High School, 420 W. Dempster St. in Mount Prospect, Dist. 59 operates the school.

Participating in the investigation were Chief Larry Patritz of the Mount Prospect Fire Department; Gene Gaul, engineering representative, Merchants Heating and Air Conditioning, Inc.; Howard Kessler and William Merc, Kessler, Merc and Lochner, Inc.; and Paul Caldwell, assistant director of the Mount Prospect Park District.

INVESTIGATIVE TESTS, detailed in a written report submitted to the park board Monday, indicated that the problem was one of improper ventilation of the heating facilities. However, the report "did not rule out a possible operating defect in the motorized operation."

Chiefly responsible for the incident, said the report, was an incompatibility of exhaust systems at Dempster Junior High School and the indoor swimming pool, which is attached to the school but totally separate mechanically.

The report stated that exhaust fans "probably drew air back down the boiler stack and into the pool and locker room area."

Michael Buckley, a member of the park board, said the incident Saturday was caused by exhaust fans operating in the school being more powerful than exhaust fans servicing the pool.

Buckley said the fans in the school counteracted the efficiency of the pools exhaust system, drawing fumes into the pool and locker room which would normally escape outside the building.

MERC said that a lack of fresh air ventilating into the school caused negative pressure which "drains approximately one-third or more of the heat output of the pool area heater."

Merc and Dist. 59 officials reportedly agreed that the school's exhaust system should operate on a manual basis rather than the present automatic timing system to promote even air pressure between the school and the pool.

Bob Jackson said the eight recommendations made in the report would be followed by both the park district and school district. He said the expense would be "nominal." He did not know when the changes would be completed.

The recommendations listed included the installation of a "spill thermostat" which would automatically shut off the boiler in the event of a down draft of fumes. Another recommendation was that an "air induction fan" be installed in the boiler stacks to assist in exhausting combustion gas.

The remaining recommendations dealt with the testing of the heating system and not with any mechanical changes at either the pool or the school.

PARK BOARD members said they had felt assured the pool facilities were safe before Saturday's incident. "We asked about lighted hallway, fire extinguishers and unbreakable glass, but it never occurred to us to inquire about interlocking ventilating systems," said Jackson.

"It wasn't negligence on the school's part because they had no reason to adapt their system to fit ours."

"You have to go on what the people you hire say and do. We as a board are obviously not knowledgeable enough in this area. As far as I'm concerned we did everything we were supposed to do when we built the pool to assure that it was safe," said board member Bill Selep.

"Now we're going over and above what we had to do because of the incident and I'm all for it. The problem did occur and God only knows how grateful we are nobody was seriously affected."

JACKSON SAID the park district was not required under law to conform to either the school's life-safety code or the village building requirements. He did say plans for the construction of the pool were submitted to the fire department last year for their approval.

However, Harold Barra of the Mount Prospect Fire Prevention Bureau said, "To the best of my knowledge we haven't seen the plans." He said the fire department participated in the inspection of the pool "as a matter of courtesy."

Jackson commended the fire department for their participation in the investigation and handling of the evacuation of the pool Saturday.

'Have Trailer, Get A Permit' Policy Set

Service station operators in Arlington Heights will be required to obtain special use permits from the village board if they want to rent trucks, trailers, and motorcycles at their facilities.

The Arlington Heights Board of Trustees voted Monday night to instruct the village attorney to prepare an ordinance stipulating the new requirement. The board's action also covered other business aspects of village service stations, including the sale of salt, milk, ice, and exterior housekeeping.

The ordinance will state that milk must be stored in mechanically refrigerated cabinets that can be maintained and cleaned inside and outside and the village sanitarian should make regular inspections of the equipment. The sale of salt will be permitted provided it is stored in an enclosed building or structure.

Another section of the new ordinance will state that the village should exert all pressure to see that continual proper maintenance is being observed and that no parking or storing of abandoned or disabled vehicles is allowed. The trustees noted a "disabled vehicle" is one that is in need of more than just normal repairs.

It was further concluded by the board that the village should set up an educational program regarding the conditions for every service station within the village.

L. A. Hanson, Arlington Heights village manager, said a copy of the new ordinance will be sent to all existing service stations. Hanson noted that service stations now involved in renting trucks, trailers or motorcycles will have to acquire a special use permit. He said operators can apply for the special use not sooner than 15 days, and not later than 30 days after the ordinance is finalized.

Board: Vote 'Yes' Nov. 3

The Arlington Heights Village Board of Trustees passed a resolution Monday supporting adoption of the Anti-Pollution Bond Act at the general election Nov. 3.

The resolution notes that if the people of the state adopt the act in the amount of $750 million, 50 to 55 per cent of the cost of pollution abatement will be paid by the federal government. The state would pay 25 per cent, with the affected municipalities or sanitary districts contributing the remaining 20 to 25 per cent.

If the bond issue is not adopted, the federal share will not be paid and therefore the cost of the individual municipality or sanitary district would be approximately 70 per cent instead of 25 per cent.

The resolution also notes that because the adoption of the issue requires a majority of those voting at the election, those persons failing to vote specifically on the bond issue are, in effect, casting a negative vote.

The resolution concludes, "The President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Arlington Heights goes on record as actively supporting said bond issue and urging all citizens to cast an affirmative vote thereon in the General Election of Nov. 3, 1970."

Prospect Heights 'Free To Incorporate'

by BETSY BROOKER
Prospect Heights may be able to incorporate as a city without the consent of surrounding municipalities, according to attorney Donald Kreger, a specialist in municipal law.

Kreger was invited to a meeting Monday to explain the procedure of incorporation to representatives of Prospect Heights civic organizations. The Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA), which represents the "old town" area of the community, has decided to try to incorporate their area. They contacted Kreger to advise them on the project.

However, the "new town" area is considering not only incorporation, but also annexation to a neighboring municipality or strengthened township government. Representatives from both areas of the community attended the meeting.

THE ADVANTAGES of incorporation versus annexation will be discussed at another meeting in November. The public is invited to attend the meeting which will be sponsored by the Northwest Suburban Council of Associations. The council represents all of the homeowner organizations in Prospect Heights.

Kreger told the residents Monday that it "will be easier to incorporate as a city rather than a village. A contradiction in the state statutes, relative to incorporation as a city, makes consent from neighboring municipalities questionable."

"The state legislature neglected to change one section of the statutes, while changing another. A section approved in 1967 states anyone owning property within one and a half miles from the area considered for incorporation may object. But the statute doesn't say what the result of that objection will be. And it isn't certain whether the term property owners includes villages."

Bomb Scare At Fremd H.S.

Teachers and police took precautionary measures early Tuesday morning when an unidentified caller reported that a bomb had been placed in Fremd High School.

Richard Sikorski, Fremd High police consultant, said the school's switchboard operator received a call at 10:30 a.m. in which a "young voice" said "There is a bomb in the English wing."

Sikorski said the first and second floors of the north wing of the school were searched thoroughly immediately after the call was reported but that no bomb was found.

Students in the building were not evacuated, he said. Teachers, who had each been preassigned to a specific task for such a procedure assisted Sikorski in searching the building. He said the search was completed in approximately two minutes.

Although this was the first time a bomb threat has occurred at Fremd High, "it usually happens several times per year" in Dist. 211 schools, said Bruce Altergott, assistant superintendent of the high school district.

"EACH TIME IT happens we do not evacuate the building because this is exactly what the caller wants," Altergott said.

He explained that the calls are usually received just prior to or after a class and could come from a student who simply wants to disrupt classes to avoid taking a test.

"If we do evacuate, we do so on the basis of a fire drill, which calls for students to be out of the building in two minutes," he said.

Currently, all schools in High School Dist. 211 have a precautionary procedure worked out with local police and fire departments.

"We feel we have a procedure worked out from expert advice from community agencies and outside counsel," he said.

ALTERGOTT ADDED that Dist. 211

officials are now re-evaluating this procedure because "the times are past when we can simply brush these things off as pranks."

Sikorski also felt Tuesday's incident was meant to be nothing more than a prank. He said there are no suspects and that the phone call was not traced. Out side police and fire assistance was not summoned.

Earlier this year a school bus parked behind Fremd High was slightly damaged when someone tried to set the vehicle ablaze and last month two Palatine police vehicles were bombed while parked in the police parking lot, 110 W. Washington Street.

Asked if there could be any connection between the previous incidents and Tuesday's threat, Sikorski said "There could be, but I seriously doubt it, to be quite honest."

Ogilvie To Attend School Dedication

Illinois Governor Richard B. Ogilvie will arrive at Schaumburg Airport at 10 a.m. Saturday and proceed to the dedication ceremonies of Schaumburg High School.

Schaumburg High School which opened this fall, is the first secondary school to be built with Illinois School Building Commission funds.

The governor is scheduled to arrive at the school at 10:30 a.m. and will begin a brief tour of the facility. A formal dedication of the building will start at 11 a.m.

The ISBC is the agency of the state that provides guidelines and funds for school districts which are unable to construct facilities because of financial limitations. The commission has built many elementary schools in the state.

The newest Dist. 211 school was built at a cost of $16.42 per square foot, considerably below the $20 to $25 per square foot for similarly constructed schools.

Statistically the school is a 2,500 student capacity, with over 100 class, seminar and large group instruction rooms. The air conditioned facility cost $5,040,424. Two football fields could be laid out to end within the walls, which contain 7.05 acres under roof for a total of 307,057 square feet of space.

All residents of Palatine-Schaumburg High School Dist. 211 are encouraged to attend the dedication and take advantage of special tours that Schaumburg High School student will conduct.

Dist. 211 is setting aside a special section of seats for residents from both townships who worked on the recently successful Dist. 211 referendum. Funds from the referendum will construct a third high school in Schaumburg Township and another one in Palatine Township.

ERIE JONES, of Fitch, Larocca, Carington and Jones, architects, designers of the school, will greet Ogilvie at the airport, along with John Moore of ISBC.

PHEASANT IN THE field is almost as good as it is on the table, but the combination of hunt and feast is irresistible. Season opens in Wisconsin on Saturday, and in Illinois on Nov. 14. Study Annexation In Maine Dist. 207

Annexation by referendum of parts of Maine Township High School Dist. 207 and other areas will be studied to see if it would benefit the Niles-Maine Township Community College Dist. 535.

The Oakton Community College Board of Trustees directed the college administration Tuesday night to examine the "pros and cons" of annexation.

The areas in question include a half of Harwood Heights and a section of unincorporated land south of the Kennedy Expressway. High School students in this area attend Maine Township schools. Also under study is land in Rosemont, Norridge and the other half of Harwood Heights, according to Paul Gilson, board member.

Annexation might mean a slight decrease in taxes paid by Des Plaines residents, according to the business managers of Oakton and Dist. 207.

THE AREAS UNDER study were not annexed when the district was formed, because of legal questions, according to Griffith MacDonald, an Oakton Board Member who was former chairman of the Maine Township Citizens for a Community College.

Those who support creation of the junior college district felt that the areas involved were not "contiguous," part of the continuous, unbroken whole of the district, as required by the state junior college law, he said. The Norridge and Harwood Heights areas are divided from Dist. 535 by the Kennedy Expressway, part of Chicago.

The board asked for further action after hearing the opinion of Joseph Murphy, board attorney, that annexation may be possible, though a challenge to its legality is also possible.

He told the Herald/Day that the Illinois Junior College Act now allows formation of a junior college district, if the areas involved are within five miles of each other, and are divided by a "natural barrier," like a mountain or river.

He feels this would also be true of a junior college district that is already formed, although this hasn't been approved in court decisions.

THERE WOULD BE no legal difficulty in annexing Rosemont, he said, because it is divided from the district by a natural barrier, the Cook County Forest Preserve west of E. River Road, and south of Devon Avenue.

Tollroads, like the Kennedy Expressway, which is part of Chicago, have been judged to be natural boundaries, he said.

Oakton has as much a claim on the areas in question as do Triton College, in the western suburbs and Harper Community College in Palatine, Murphy told the board.

Gilson, who originally suggested the annexation to the board, said the Niles-Maine district would benefit from annexation, because of the increased base for taxation and because all students from Dist. 207 could then attend Oakton.

William Koehnline, Oakton president, told the board he had contacted Richard Short, Dist. 207 Supt. and Deno Fenili, supt. of the Norridge elementary school district.

THEY TOLD HIM they would be "interested in supporting the annexation, and they would have supported it originally."

Seven Des Plaines police cars patrol the city at all times. Six are driven by patrolmen. The seventh is Adam 70, driven by Sgt. Bruce Williams. This is the second in a series of articles by reporter Cynthia Tivers on the life of Des Plaines policemen on wheels.

by CYNTHIA TIVERS
The 3 p.m. to 11 p.m. shift provides a contrast in the types of calls Des Plaines policemen make. The difference was evidenced to me last Friday night when I rode for three hours with patrol Sgt. Fred Altergott.

I was out with Altergott from 8 to 11 p.m., during which time we traveled from one end of the city to another, chasing two escaped mental patients from Forest Hospital, stopping traffic violators, checking on some youth disturbances and a possible drug overdose.

We started out by directing traffic at Graceland and Miner Streets where the traffic lights had been malfunctioning. Altergott, armed with a flashlight, directed the line of waiting, angered motorists through the intersection.

THEN WE STARTED our cruise. It amazed me as I listened to him talk, watched him observe the street activity, and heard him answer calls from his patrolmen and the communications center.

Our first call came from Adam 51 asking us to come to the shopping center at Oakton and Lee via Lee Street. We drove over and circled the lot. "Look," Altergott pointed to Lee Street at the north end of the lot. "See all that dust — some of those cars can hardly see where they're going. I bet that's why he wanted us to come here. But there's nothing we

He said he had contacted Fred Wellman, executive secretary of the State Junior College Board, and he had advised Koehnline that a meeting between the high school districts and Oakton would have to be attended by the other possible junior college districts.

"With the legal problems Joe (Murphy) has seen and the position of Wellman, I wonder if this isn't a lot of trouble," for a small gain.

Koehnline also said "it is not worth it, if the district would be three to one against annexation. We would need at least a 50-50 chance before it would make sense" to go to the voters.

Mid-Day Shift Provides Contrast can do now. We have to know who dropped all that dirt that's causing the problem — then we could make them clean it up."

Altergott said the city had been notified about the spot but hadn't gotten to it yet. "Only the company who made the mess should be responsible for cleaning it up."

We left the lot and started cruising again. A call came over the radio for Adam 11, 31 and 70. We were alerted that two patients from Forest Hospital's intensive care unit had escaped and had clubs and had threatened to kill anyone who came near them.

OUR FLASHING red lights went on and the siren was sounded. Altergott speeded his squad car down Lee Street and turned off at the hospital's front door. The sounds and lights of authority and emergency kept the streets open to us and we arrived there within a minute just as the other two squad cars pulled up.

The three uniformed men were directed through the hospital to the Des Plaines river side where the two young men had run. Ten minutes later, the entire backside of the hospital was searched and the two had not been found.

We left and so did Adam 11's Paul Giovannoni and Adam 31's Wayne Adams but Giovannoni said he would continue to search the wooded area around the river.

We went to answer a call just a few blocks away from the hospital where a group of young people had congregated. But after questioning the youths, Alter-

Sen. Smith Visit Set For Monday

Sen. Ralph T. Smith (R-Ill.) will visit heavily Republican Maine Township Monday for a morning rally in Des Plaines and a noon luncheon with business and civic leaders at the Des Plaines Elks Club.

Smith backers, whose candidate in this area is running well behind the rest of the Republican ticket for state and county offices, hope to attract a crowd of several hundred to a late morning rally for the incumbent senator at Oak Leaf Commons Shopping Center, Lee and Oakton streets, Des Plaines.

Smith will greet commuters at downtown train stations in Des Plaines and Park Ridge between 7 and 8:30 a.m. Monday, according to Alan Wright of 981 Oakton St., Des Plaines, who is handling arrangements for Smith's campaign visit. He will arrive at the Des Plaines station shortly before 8 a.m.

The senator, who was appointed by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie to replace the late Sen. Everett Dirksen, will then tour local industrial plants where he will greet more than 2,500 employees and business officials, Wright said.

At 11:15, Smith is scheduled to address a mass rally at the parking lot of the Jewel store at the Oak Leaf Shopping Center. He will be introduced by Des Plaines Mayor Herbert H. Behrel.

AT THE NOON, luncheon, Smith will be honored by local business and

Sen. Ralph Smith

civic leaders at the Des Plaines Elks Club, 485 Lee St.

Smith, who is opposing State Treasurer Adlai Stevenson, III, is running behind other Republican candidates and has a lower than expected lead over Stevenson in Republican Maine, Wheeling, Elk Grove and Palatine townships, according to the Chicago Sun-Times Straw Poll.

The poll, which has accurately predicted election results in the past, shows Smith with 52.1 per cent of the vote in Maine Township, compared to 47.9 for Stevenson.

In contrast, Republican Sheriff Joseph I. Woods leads incumbent George W. Dunne in the race for county board president 62.2 per cent to 37.8 per cent in Maine Township, according to the Sun-Times poll.

Also in Maine, Republican Edmund Kucharski is beating Democrat Alan Dixon for the state treasurer's office by a margin of 62.8 per cent to 37.2 per cent.

Stevenson's strong showing this fall in Maine Township compares to 33.4 per cent of the vote he received there when he ran for state treasurer in 1966.

IN THE SUN-TIMES poll, Kucharski got 71.3 per cent in Palatine, 71.6 per cent in Wheeling, and 66 per cent in Elk Grove, and Smith trailed his fellow Republican's lead by 10 or more percentage points in each case.

Smith, who is behind Stevenson in Schaumburg, New Trier, Niles and Evanston townships, will get a boost in this area when President Nixon visits Prospect High School in Mount Prospect next Tuesday to campaign for him.

In Oct. 1966, Nixon made a campaign stop at a rally at Prospect High that drew more than 10,000 Northwest suburban residents.

Reservations for the $3 per person luncheon Monday can be made by calling 824-4200 or 824-2625.

In addition to Mr. and Mrs. Wright, those named by Maine Twp. Republican Committeeman Floyd T. Fulle to help with arrangements for Smith's visit include State Sen. John W. Carroll (R-4th), Genter Dahl of Des Plaines, John Henning of Des Plaines, John Calef of Park Ridge, Chris Danby of Glenview and Q. A. Otinger of Park Ridge.

Teens To 'Rake' In Funds

Des Plaines teenagers will be raking leaves and doing chores this weekend to raise money for the Place for People Youth Drop-In Center.

Teens who attend the informal after-school center will work for $1 an hour to bring in funds for the center at the Rand Park Fieldhouse, Dempster near Parkview, according to the center's director, the Rev. Richard Smith.

About $1,000 a month is needed to keep the center operating, Rev. Smith said. Funds are needed to pay Rev. Smith's salary, about $500 a month and to begin a salary for his assistant, Dean Niles, an assistant pastor at the First Congregational church, Graceland and Marion.

The teens are able to raise about $500 a month from their Friday night coffee house at the center and from the food machines, Smith said.

SMITH SAID THAT the center is a community service and he hopes for community support. He feels that city funds should be made available to the center.

Smith and members of the Des Plaines Kiwanis are readying an appeal to community service groups for funds for the center.

Teens are preparing a movie to show what is being done at the center and what their hopes are for the future, Rev. Smith said.

Before the center opened in July, more than 100 students staged a three-day marathon volleyball game to raise funds for the center. More than $1,000 was raised, according to the Rev. Dave Russell, who is president of the Place for People (PFP) committee which sponsors the center.

During the next few weeks, the teens will try to raise money collecting door to door at Halloween. The Des Plaines Jaycees will sponsor a dance for the center Nov. 6, Rev. Smith said.

SMITH, WHO IS A student at the Garrett Theological Seminary at Northwestern University, told the Herald/Day that the youth center could provide a place for teenagers to receive competent, professional guidance, tutoring, and help in developing artistic and dramatic skills.

The center grew out of programs at the First Congregational Church. The program there closed early this year because of the graduation of participating seminarians, and because of a city decision not to give it funds.

Oktoberfest This Weekend

One of the main events in Des Plaines this weekend will be the first annual Des Plaines Oktoberfest, to be held downtown on Friday and Saturday nights.

Games, refreshments and entertainment will be featured under two tents in the parking lot of Spiegler's Department Store, 1467 Ellinwood St.

Co-sponsored by the downtown Des Plaines merchants and the Des Plaines Jaycees, the fun festival will be held from 4:30 to 10 p.m. Friday night and from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Saturday night.

SEVERAL ROCK GROUPS, a halloween costume contest, organ music, a band playing German music, dancing and, of course, Bratwurst and beer, will be the featured attractions. Prizes will be awarded under the two 40 foot by 130 foot tents.

John Taylor, an employe of the Standard station at River and Rand Roads, rescued a damsel in distress Tuesday night.

"There I was with no gas and a dead battery," the lady said. "I walked through the rain and asked for help at the station. He was so nice about everything."

"He drove me back to my car with some gas. Then we discovered the battery was dead and he charged it for me."

"He really deserves a great big thank you — if for nothing else than for not laughing at me for having an empty gas tank."

We shall leave the damsel nameless to protect her reputation.

THE PUBLIC Works Department has the leaf pick-up trucks on the road. Residents are reminded to rake leaves to the curbs so the trucks can pick them up.

When we first moved to Des Plaines we didn't know about this service. A neighbor boy rang my bell like a junior Paul Revere one day and yelled, "The leaf trucks are coming, the leaf trucks are coming."

One by one the neighbors flocked to the lawns, rake in hand to get all the leaves to the streets before the truck reached their house. It still happens — except I'm gladly not among their ranks.

THE GREAT CRAB Tree Debate was ended last Monday night at the City Council meeting with the decision to go and beautifully. Thirty-six trees will be purchased by the city at a cost of $810 from the Matt Tures Nursery in Huntley, Ill. They will be installed along the boulevard parkways on State Street, Broadway and Wolf Road.

The seventh ward will really be a beauty this spring when the flowering crab trees bloom. Washington D. C. is famed for the cherry trees that bloom in the spring. Maybe Des Plaines will become the crab apple mecca of the middle west.

Ald. Ed Shillington, 8th Ward, is asking that sidewalks be installed on the south side of Algonquin in front of St. Zachary's and South Park in his ward.

The Des Plaines Historical Society will be presenting a slide program at Rand Park this Sunday on the restoration of the State Capitol Building in Springfield. The program begins at 2 p.m.

Emergency Plan Set At Oakton

A plan for handling emergencies, disasters and civil disorders will be developed for Oakton Community College.

Raymond Hartstein, chairman of the Oakton Board of Trustees, directed the college administration Tuesday night to develop a "full-time emergency plan." Board members LeRoy Wauck and Paul Gilson, were appointed to work with the administration on the development of guidelines.

Hartstein told the Herald/Day that such a plan would include agreements with police and fire departments near the Morton Grove campus, a file of telephone numbers to call during emergencies, and procedures for the school to follow during natural or man-made disasters.

Disasters could include anything from a boiler exploding to a possible plane crash, he said. He does not anticipate student disorders, but he does not want to be in the position of some colleges who did not prepare for possible disorder. Their lack of preparation caused greater disorder, he said.

Disaster plans are common in industry, he said and a plan is especially needed to insure the protection of a publicly supported institution like Oakton.

Hartstein, who is personnel manager for the Brunswick corporation, showed the administration a copy of a disaster planning report developed for his company.

This report states that an emergency plan is justified by statistics of fires, explosions, floods and social disorders "which produce riots, civil disorders, and other hostile and destructive acts."

$1,430 Is Stolen From Auto Dealer

Burglars took an estimated $1,430 in cash and checks late Tuesday night from Sonntag Chevrolet, 1729 Busse Road, Des Plaines, according to Des Plaines police.

The theft was reported to police by a Meyer Patrol Co. guard. Burglars broke into the car dealership office through a rear door, police said.

City Committee Will Meet About Transit

The Des Plaines City Council judiciary and finance committees will meet tonight to discuss a proposed mass transit district ordinance that would allow the city to subsidize United Motor Coach Co. of Des Plaines through grants of motor fuel tax funds.

The judiciary committee will also consider a proposed ordinance that would make use of trespass laws to put tighter controls on door-to-door solicitors and salesmen.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the municipal building, 1412 Miner St.

The report recommends listing available medical aid and protection in the community.

It recommends emergency warning systems, and protection of records from damage. Employees should be trained to take appropriate action during emergencies, the report states.

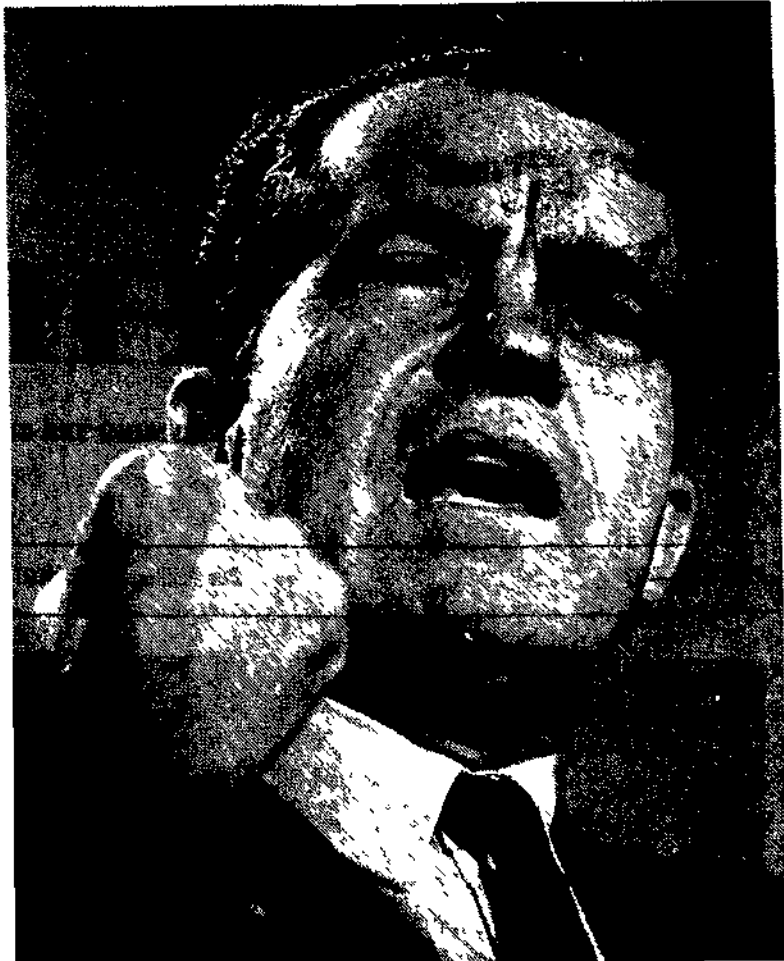

THE BOARD VOTED in early October to allow the administration to act quickly to protect property, in such cases as a boiler explosion, according to board member, Paul Gilson.

The college administration may spend up to $1,000 to protect property, at the advice of the college business manager, Arthur Kent.

When more than $1,000 is needed, the administration must get the spoken approval of Hartstein. If he is not available, the administration must receive approval of Griffith MacDonald, vice-chairman.

Decisions by the Oakton Community College board of trustees on hiring of student aides by the college are scheduled for tonight at a 7:30 p.m. meeting in building three of the Morton Grove campus, 7900 Nagle, Morton Grove.

Also scheduled are reports on the Nov. 8 school open house, and on the occupation course program, according to the tentative agenda.

PRESIDENT NIXON will make his second visit to the Northwest suburbs this year and his second visit to Mount Prospect in two years when he attends a rally for Sen. Ralph Smith next Thursday at Prospect High School.

Nixon Visit Excitement Building

The excitement is beginning to build in Mount Prospect. It's not often the President of the United States comes to town.

"This is bound to be an exciting experience for everyone, especially when you know that few people ever have the privilege or the opportunity to see the President of the United States face to face. That's an honor," Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert said after hearing news of the presidential visit from State Rep. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect.

Regner called Teichert at 11 a.m., and by 2 p.m., the village hall was buzzing with excitement.

"I imagine we'll all be very busy between now and next Thursday because the President's visit will require a lot of work, planning and preparation. I imagine the President's advance team will be contacting us soon so we can begin coordinating with them on security and all the arrangements for his visit," Teichert said.

"BUT UNTIL THEN, I don't know any of the specific details, although I'm sure Nixon will be on a very tight schedule. This is a campaign trip for him, and I'm sure the GOP candidates will want to have as much of his time as possible."

Teichert said village officials will wait until they've heard from the presidential staff before beginning with any of the plans for the rally next Thursday.

"The last time Richard Nixon visited Mount Prospect, he was a candidate for President. Now, he's the President and that's a different story when it comes to planning police protection. We had elaborate protection for him in 1968, but I'm sure the security measures for Thursday will be about three times as elaborate. So, I'm not making any plans until I've heard from the Secret Service," Police Chief Newell Esmond said.

Esmond said the next 10 days will be demanding on his department because of the strict security network which will have to be arranged.

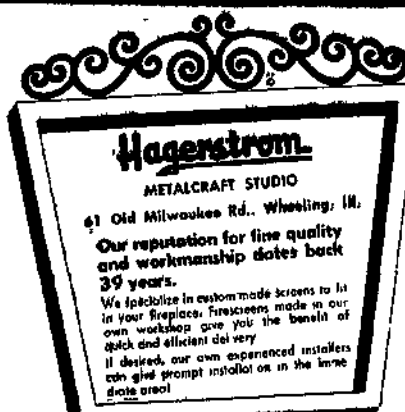

THE PRESIDENT is scheduled to speak in the auditorium at Prospect High School.

Alvin Kubeke, principal of Prospect High School, said he was informed of the President's visit by superintendent of schools Edward Gilbert yesterday afternoon. "I don't know any of the details, but I know this will be quite a distinction for us. I don't know of anyone who wouldn't feel pleased," Kubeke said.

Although the plans for Nixon's trip have not been confirmed, there's no doubt that the excitement is beginning to build in the community. As Teichert said, "Wherever the President goes, it's bound to be an exciting experience whether you agree with his policy or not. He has such an impact on all of us in this country as well as throughout the

by LEON SHURE

A group of teachers discuss the questions their students ask about drugs. Then they listen to a recorded lecture by two former drug addicts.

Teachers sit in a circle at Mark Twain School, 9401 Hamlin, Des Plaines. They are discussing the mental and emotional strains on their students.

A state official explains what to do if disaster strikes. School principals and maintenance men listen intently, and take notes.

These are typical scenes from a special program of Tuesday afternoon courses for the more than 400 teachers of East Maine Elementary School Dist. 63.

About 21 courses will be presented this school semester at eight East Maine schools including schools in Des Plaines — the Mark Twain and the Shelley Nathanson, Potter and Church — and at the two East Maine junior high schools which serve Des Plaines youngsters, according to A. Dale Lilyfors, program director.

THE COURSES, which also are open to anyone in the community, are meant to help teachers to keep up with new developments in education, according to Lilyfors, who was assistant principal at Gemini Junior High, in Niles, before becoming the district's director of instructional services and communications.

The courses allow new teachers to learn about the district's teaching standards and policies and it also allows teachers to share their experiences, Lilyfors said.

The largest of the courses is a five week program on "Drug Abuse and Use." This program, like many of the others, was developed because of teacher requests for more information, Lilyfors said.

The program was developed with the cooperation of the Niles Police Department youth officers. The five sections of the program include a survey of the problem, identification of drugs, the school role and the community health service role, and the work of the police officers in the community.

IN THE SESSION attended by the Herald/Day, Gemini guidance counselor, Mrs. Shirley Funder, explained the district's drug education curriculum, and told them what district children had said about drugs.

Mrs. Funder burned some chemicals which simulate the smell of marijuana. "If you smell this in the washrooms at school, you know what it means," She reported complaints by parents after students saw films on what alcohol and cigarettes can do to the body.

"Obviously, the students were going home and asking questions about why their parents smoked and drank," she said.

The group also watched a recorded lecture by former drug addicts who spoke to Gemini students last year.

Other courses include a five week program on "Mental Health in the Classroom," which centers on prevention of emotional problems, Lilyfors said.

A new method for preventing reading problems is explained in another course, by developers of the program. They are Frank McGowan, principal of Apollo Junior High, in unincorporated Des Plaines; and other school officials, Mrs. Lenore Page, Mary Lang and Don Huebner.

A COURSE on self-protection and protection of students during manmade and natural disasters is taught by Norman Austin, representative from the State Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, Department of Safety.

There are other courses which help new teachers understand the course materials and classroom organization being used in the schools.

Teachers also learn how to improve their teaching of art, music and math. There is a course on "finding the lost kids," helping students to work up to their potential for learning. Another course is about helping students to be more creative, Lilyfors said.

Many of the courses are taught by district teachers, administrators and principals, he said.

The classes are attended by teachers, who are required to attend at least one course, and by principals, maintenance men at the school, members of the PTA and interested residents, he said.

The district, tries to use all the resources of the community, he said. For the drug course, area policemen, social workers, school advisers, and experts in drugs will speak.

THE DISTRICT uses television recordings during the courses, and they may record a session for use at a later date, Lilyfors said. Each school has its own television recording cameras and taping devices, he said.

One source for television tape recordings is the district's file of more than 60 films developed since 1967, according to Donald Stetina, assistant superintendent.

These hour-long films on teaching methods were produced by the district with money from federal grants totaling about $750,000, he said. These films have been broadcast over television channel 32.

They are available for the price of postage to other school districts. The films are part of the district's efforts to encourage in-the-school courses for teachers, as a way to sharpen and improve teaching skills, Stetina said.

The courses now offered grew out of the film production program, when federal funds ended last year, Stetina said.

Lilyfors said that the district is working to offer courses that "are relevant, provocative and can be used immediately by teachers."

Randhurst Named In Cullerton Tax Probe

by GERRY DEZONNA

The tax records of the Randhurst Corp., owner of Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect, will be investigated by a state senate subcommittee in connection with alleged tax assessment reductions granted by County Assessor P.J. Cullerton.

State Sen. Arthur R. Swanson, R-Chicago, chairman of the state senate subcommittee for assessment practices, said yesterday Randhurst Shopping Center is one of several shopping centers in the area which will be included in the committee's investigation of tax assessment reductions.

"We're currently investigating parcels of property in which there have been glaring discrepancies in the tax assessments. At the moment, we're zeroing in on twelve buildings in the city, and once we've finished these investigations, we'll proceed with our review of shopping centers in the county," Swanson said.

ROBERT HANRAHAN, Cook County superintendent of schools, has also charged that Randhurst Shopping Center as well as six other shopping centers in the county are "grossly underassessed."

Hanrahan said Tuesday the assessed valuation of Randhurst "should be almost quadrupled." The 1969 assessed valuation of a shopping center is $6,091,105," he said.

In addition to Randhurst, the subcommittee in the newspaper or we've seen on television will also investigate alleged tax-assessment reductions for Old Orchard, Skokie; Hillside Shopping Center, Wolf Road at the Eisenhower Expressway; Evergreen Plaza, 95th and Western streets; Lawrencewood Shopping Center, Oakton and Waukegan roads; and Dixie Square Shopping Plaza, 151st Street and Dixie Highway.

Richard McCarthy, public relations director of the Randhurst Corp., said yesterday the corporation has not been notified of an investigation by Swanson's committee.

"WE'VE HEARD NOTHING about the investigation other than what we've read in the news. To the best of my knowledge, Randhurst has not received any cuts in its assessed valuation," McCarthy explained.

Randhurst Corp. is equally owned by Carson Pirie Scott and Co., Montgomery Ward and Wieboldt's, McCarthy said.

Swanson's committee is currently reviewing the files on 12 buildings in Chicago, including the Brunswick Building, Merchandise Mart and Prudential Building.

"It's taken us 10 days to review 10 files, and at this point, it's evident that favoritism plays a very big part in the granting of tax-assessment cuts for the owners of downtown properties. There is an obvious need for regulatory legislation, and this committee intends to prove this need as well as the passage of regulatory legislation," Swanson said.

Swanson said the investigation of tax-assessment reductions is the result of "information secured by the news media following a review of the county tax rolls."

"IT HAS BEEN brought to our attention that property owners who are friends of the Mayor (Richard Daley) or the assessor (Cullerton) have been granted substantial cuts in the assessed valuation of their properties," Swanson said.

"My subcommittee will investigate the tax cuts granted to shopping centers, but at this time, I can't tell you when those investigations will be scheduled. This will all depend on when our investigations of the major buildings in the city have been concluded," he said.

Tax-assessment reductions reportedly were granted to these businesses on the grounds that they needed tax relief to show a fair profit.

Swanson said a search of the assessor's records has provided "no such economic hardships as grounds for tax cuts" on the 12 Chicago buildings now under investigation.

Juckett Tells Of Upcoming Legislation

State Rep. Robert S. Juckett (R-Park Ridge) this week announced the legislation he plans to introduce during the next session of the General Assembly.

The 14 proposals are now being drafted by the assembly's Legislative Reference Bureau, Juckett said at a press conference Monday. The two-term legislator, who is running for re-election, said he welcomes responses from 4th District constituents on the proposals.

The bills, Juckett said in a statement, are as follows:

"CHICAGO AREA MUNICIPAL AIRPORTS. My bill would establish a northwestern Illinois northwestern Indiana airport authority to operate all existing municipal airports in the Chicago area, including O'Hare, Midway and Meigs, and to acquire land and construct future major airports.

The authority would be modeled after the St. Louis Metropolitan Area Airport Authority, established in May, 1970. The authority would be an agency of the state and would therefore be responsible to the people of the suburban area, as well as to Chicagoans.

Our interests in terms of expansion, noise and pollution from O'Hare would at last be protected, and planning for a third airport could begin immediately, without concern as to where the Mayor (Daley) wants it.

"CAMPUS VIOLENCE. My proposal will be aimed at encouraging those responsible for the operation of our state universities to keep order and maintain discipline on their campuses.

The method: declaring that university presidents and members of boards of trustees shall be held personally liable for any and all damages and/or injuries incurred on their campuses as a result of student disorders.

"ELECTION CONSOLIDATION. I propose that all non-general elections be confined to the third Tuesday in March. Elections for park commissioners, junior college trustees, high school and grammar school boards of education, township officials and municipal officials, primaries and any other elections would, in their appropriate years, be held on the one day in the same polling places, and all registrations would be subject to verification in a precinct binder.

Referenda on questions of public policy would also be so confined, but tax rate or bond issue referenda could still be held as special elections.

"ELECTION ADMINISTRATION. I will reintroduce a bill to remove election supervision and administration from the office of the county clerk and make conduct of elections a duty solely of the township clerk. The bill would continue to permit voter registration and absentee voting at the county clerk's office, but the chief election officer would be the local town clerk.

"MUNICIPAL CLERK'S ELECTION POWERS. The village and city clerks would be designated deputy township clerks for voter registration purposes. Registration periods at municipal clerks' offices would be identical to those of township and county clerks.

"TOWNSHIP COLLECTOR. The elected township collectors would be responsible for the collection of all taxes within their respective jurisdictions and for the immediate disbursement of receipts to all taxing bodies making the levies. The town collectors would keep no commissions from the taxes, nor would the county collector retain any commission from taxes he collects from Chicago taxpayers.

"TOWNSHIP ASSESSOR. The elected township assessors would be responsible for assessment of all property and improvements to be taxed. The county assessor would be supervisor of assessments to assure equal assessment rates among townships, as in downstate counties.

"SCHOOL AID. The present formula would be replaced by a grant matching 50 per cent of the education fund for each district. Thus districts which indicate their concern for education by taxing themselves to provide good schooling would be rewarded. The plan is modeled after the Public Junior College Act, which established the aid plan in order to encourage local, quality junior colleges.

"TRANSPORTATION. I propose an Illinois Department of Transportation to deal with planning, development and operation of facilities and programs dealing with air, water, road and rail transportation. The present Department of Aeronautics would be abolished as such, to become a division of the new department. The highway and waterways divisions of the Department of Public Works and Buildings would be transferred to the new department. A division for mass rail and bus transit would be established.

"AID TO TRANSPORTATION. One of the reasons bus companies such as United Motor Coach are having financial difficulties is their generosity in providing transportation to students at reduced fares. I propose a grant to these companies to match the amounts lost in student fare reductions, limited to 50 per cent of the normal fare.

"RECORDING OF PUBLIC MEETINGS. I will reintroduce my 1969 bill, in its original form, to require public bodies to permit recording of their meetings by any person by means of tape, film or other devices. The only restriction would be that the public body could refuse to permit the recording if it would be disruptive of the conduct of business. Such a ruling could of course be appealed in court. This bill was requested by members of the press and I consider it a worthy extension and part of the public's right to know.

"MEDICAL LIABILITY. I will reintroduce my 1969 bill to define transfusion or transplantation of blood, tissue and other body parts as a service and not a product, thereby relieving hospitals and doctors of liability except in cases of negligence. At this time, it is impossible to detect infectious hepatitis in blood, yet doctors are now held liable for its transmission through transfusion.

"DEPARTMENT OF PERSONAL SERVICES. In order to promote coordination and cooperation between related government service agencies, I propose to merge the Departments of Public Aid, Mental Health, Public Health and Children and Family Services into a new Department of Personal Services. Divisions would include Children's Service, Senior Citizens' Service, Health Service, Welfare Service, Mental Illness Service and Mental Retardation Service.

"LEGISLATIVE STAFFING. In order to give our legislators the tools to do their jobs both as lawmakers and as ombudsmen, I propose a yearly allowance of $14,400 for district office rental, legislative aide, secretary and telephone service. The appropriation for temporary office assistance in Springfield during sessions, inadequate anyway, would cease."

Park Signup Change Told

Beginning in December, residents of the Mount Prospect Park District wishing to register for park programs will have to do so in person instead of by telephone.

Park district officials will cease accepting telephone registrations in favor of a card catalogue system according to Paul Caldwell, assistant director of parks and recreation.

The decision to revert to the card catalogue system was made after inquiries into the registration procedures of six area park districts in Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Palatine, Wheeling, Prospect Heights and Glenview.

The park district currently requires residents to call in their registrations between the hours of 9:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. on one particular day.

CALDWELL SAID THIS system has created some problems in that the park district always had to call back those persons registering for confirmation. He also said that on days when registration for a popular program was taking place, the telephone lines would be tied up and an early caller would not necessarily be the first one registered.

Caldwell said most of the park districts he visited used a card catalogue system similar to that used for registration at colleges and universities.

Caldwell said registration for all programs sponsored by the park district would be handled in one day at the park district offices, 600 S. See-Gwen Ave.

Cards listing a particular program and the necessary information would be handed out to persons at the office. There will be as many cards as there are openings in each program.

Registrations will be handled on a first-come, first-serve basis. Names of persons arriving at the park district offices before it opens at 9 a.m. will be given first priority.

REGISTRANTS CAN register for one other family, no matter how large, besides themselves. Persons must pay necessary fees at the time they register.

Caldwell said mailing registrations was "cumbersome" in that "some of the registrations would be lost or mishandled in the mailing process."

He said a combination of both telephone and "in-person" registration would not be adequate because persons calling the office would have a better opportunity than those registering in person.

Open House Slated

Lutheran General and Deaconess Hospitals School of Nursing in Park Ridge will hold an open house and tour Nov. 7 for students interested in a nursing career.

Students will have an opportunity to get information on nursing careers and prospective students will be able to talk to students presently enrolled in the school.

The program, which starts at 9 a.m., will include counseling by faculty members and a tour of Lutheran General Hospital and the school of nursing.

Name Arnold To Committee

A Maine Township High School Dist. 207 official has been appointed to serve on an advisory committee at Oakton Community College, Morton Grove.

Robert Arnold, coordinator of data processing for the high school district which serves Des Plaines area students was appointed by the Oakton Board of Trustees Tuesday night to serve on the data processing advisory committee.

This committee advises and helps plan the program which provides training in computer operation, according to Oakton officials. The committee is required by the state before the college can receive state fund reimbursement for the program.

OTHER MEMBERS of the committee, appointed in July, are Thomas Moore, Jr., manager of the Scientific and Industry Development Center of IBM, 380 Northwest Hwy., Des Plaines; Donald Young, advertising manager, Data Processing Management Association, Park Ridge, and Marilyn Rue, director of services information, Baxter Laboratories, Morton Grove.

Arnold, 33, a resident of Glenview, has worked for Dist. 207 for six years. He is director of the district's computer at the Frost Administrative Center in Park Ridge. He coordinates the business education, math and science, and evening school division use of computers, he said.

Win at Bridge

by OSWALD AND JAMES JACOBY

Old man Z, who used to play all the dummies in auction bridge columns, has started playing duplicate every Thursday. His one requirement is that he sit South, since he always played in that position in the old days.

North wanted to play JACOBY MODERN. Z complained that in his day conventions were something for political parties and large organizations, but he had looked over JACOBY MODERN and it seemed to be the simplest system currently available, so he would try it.

His two-heart response showed 4-6 high-card points. His partner bid three hearts. Z didn't want to raise with three trumps until he realized that he was going to play the heart contract. He was delighted to hear his partner's six bid but wasn't at all pleased with the opening lead.

Without a trump lead, it would have been a simple matter to ruff three of dummy's spades with his three trumps. Now he had a choice of ways to go after his contract.

The simple way would be to let the lead come around to his 10 and take a spade finesse.

Z never tried simple plays. His experience as the star of the auction bridge columns had taught him that simple plays didn't work for him.

Therefore, Z won the trick in dummy and led dummy's singleton club. East ducked without a quiver and Z, who never misguessed in his youth, wasn't going to start misguessing in his old age. He went up with the king of clubs, tried the spade finesse in an effort to make seven and settled for ruffing out the 10 and six of spades.

He made his contract after the finesse lost.

Psychiatry Under Socialized Medicine

This is a weekly column presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines, a fully-accredited 136-bed psychiatric hospital, known for its intensive programs in psychiatric treatment, research, education, and community service.

How does psychiatric care work under socialized medicine?

Part-time psychiatric hospitalization and other forms of psychiatric care under National Health Insurance in Great Britain are described by Dr. John Buckman of Virginia, assistant professor of psychiatry at the University of Virginia Medical School. Buckman was trained in London, graduated from London University, and served in several British hospitals prior to coming to the United States.

While at Marlboro Hospital in London, Buckman found that the vast majority of patients did not need full-time in-patient care, and discovered that a number of them, no matter how sick they were, could survive in the community if they could receive treatment either during the day, so they could return home at night, or if they received some supportive treatment in the evening which allowed them to stay for the night. They could, in fact, continue work. A different group of patients, who could not under any circumstances take any time off from work, were brought in just for weekend treatment specifically. This would include people who were in full-time employment, or self-employed, and people who lived some distance from town and could only come in for weekends.

BUCKMAN NOTES that because their treatment was entirely part of British National Medical Care, these people were not paying for their hospitalization and their own psychiatric care.

Although treatment in so-called "national" hospitals is excellent, Buckman states that in psychiatry and in all specialties in England more and more patients every year do insist on private treatment, even though they are already paying for the treatment through income tax. In private treatment they feel that they are getting something separate, or different and most of them believe that patients should have to pay for their psychotherapy. "They want some way to contribute, not just have the experience of being fed."

Describing the "shift hospital" as a hospital which provides day-care, night-care, and weekend care, on the same premises, Buckman tells of Marlboro Hospital where on very small premises the staff was able to treat an enormous number of out-patients and a very small number of in-patients, with many beds used three times in every 24 hours. There were patients who came in for treatment in the morning, some came in the evening and would stay for group therapy and then just sleep there.

SOME PATIENTS would come and have physical treatment or they might come for electro-shock and afterwards they would spend a day in bed or the night in bed and then go to work the following morning. This, they found, was the most economical way of using the premises and the facilities.

In total, Marlboro had 45 patients for 15 beds, plus many more people who were treated as out-patients.

This small hospital which had a medical staff of 13 part-time psychiatrists, had a yearly new intake of about 600 patients per year and about 40,000 patient attendances per year.

Joint Tenancy Not Always Best

Joint tenancy is a popular, although not always desirable, way for married couples to own property, according to the Illinois State Bar Association (ISBA), which has published a free pamphlet on the subject.

As defined in the pamphlet, which is available on request to the ISBA Springfield, Illinois (62701), joint tenancy "creates joint ownership in real or personal property so that upon the death of one joint tenant the decedent's interest in the property terminates and this interest passes to the surviving joint tenant or joint tenants."

This means that if husband and wife hold ownership of a house, automobile, bank account, or other assets in joint tenancy with full right of survivorship, the property will pass automatically to the survivor upon the death of one spouse, and is not subject to probate as part of the deceased's estate. Because of its common usage by husband and wife, the ISBA observes, the legal effects of joint tenancy should be fully understood.

The pamphlet lists these advantages of joint tenancy.

A surviving joint tenant takes over ownership of the property without the necessity of legal proceedings or estate administration. If a bank account is held in joint tenancy, a widow does not have to worry about being short of cash since ordinarily she can continue to draw on the account after only a short delay.

JOINT TENANCY, in the case of real estate, is easily created, involving only the small cost of having an attorney draw up the necessary deeds. Also, real estate held in joint tenancy does not become subject to liens or claims by a deceased joint tenant's creditors.

Finally, if husband and wife own property in joint tenancy, this tends to cement the marital bond and gives the wife a sense of security and a feeling that she is a partner in financial as well as domestic matters.

At the same time, the ISBA pamphlet cites the following disadvantages:

There is no provision in a joint tenancy for other beneficiaries after both husband and wife are dead. For this reason joint tenants also should have wills which take into account all property, including that held in joint tenancy.

NEITHER JOINT tenant is sole owner of the property while both are alive. While dual ownership of a home and car is not likely to create discord, husbands and wives may disagree over how to use bank accounts, stocks, bonds and similar assets.

The survivor may not be able to manage the estate properly. A widow left with stocks she has held jointly with her husband may be headed for financial disaster if she knows nothing about the stock market.

Also, in the case of larger estates, a joint tenancy can cause tax problems and in the final analysis prove to be more expensive than other methods for distributing property upon death.

West Unbeaten In CSL Duals

Jack St John set a new course record to lead Maine West to wins over Maine South and Maine North and to enable the Warriors to close out their 1970 Central Suburban League dual meet season undefeated.

The Warriors downed both Maine South and Maine North by 15-50 scores. Maine South downed Maine North 15-50 in the double dual. Both Maine West and Maine South went into the meet undefeated in CSL competition.

St John shattered the course record at Maine West by covering the 2.75 mile course in 13:26.

closed out the dual meet season unbeaten in CSL competition while for Maine West, it was its first loss on the sophomore level in the league.

For Maine West, Tony Winder was second, Chip Barbour third, Brad Frost seventh, Scott Sedlack ninth and Greg Klebe 10th.

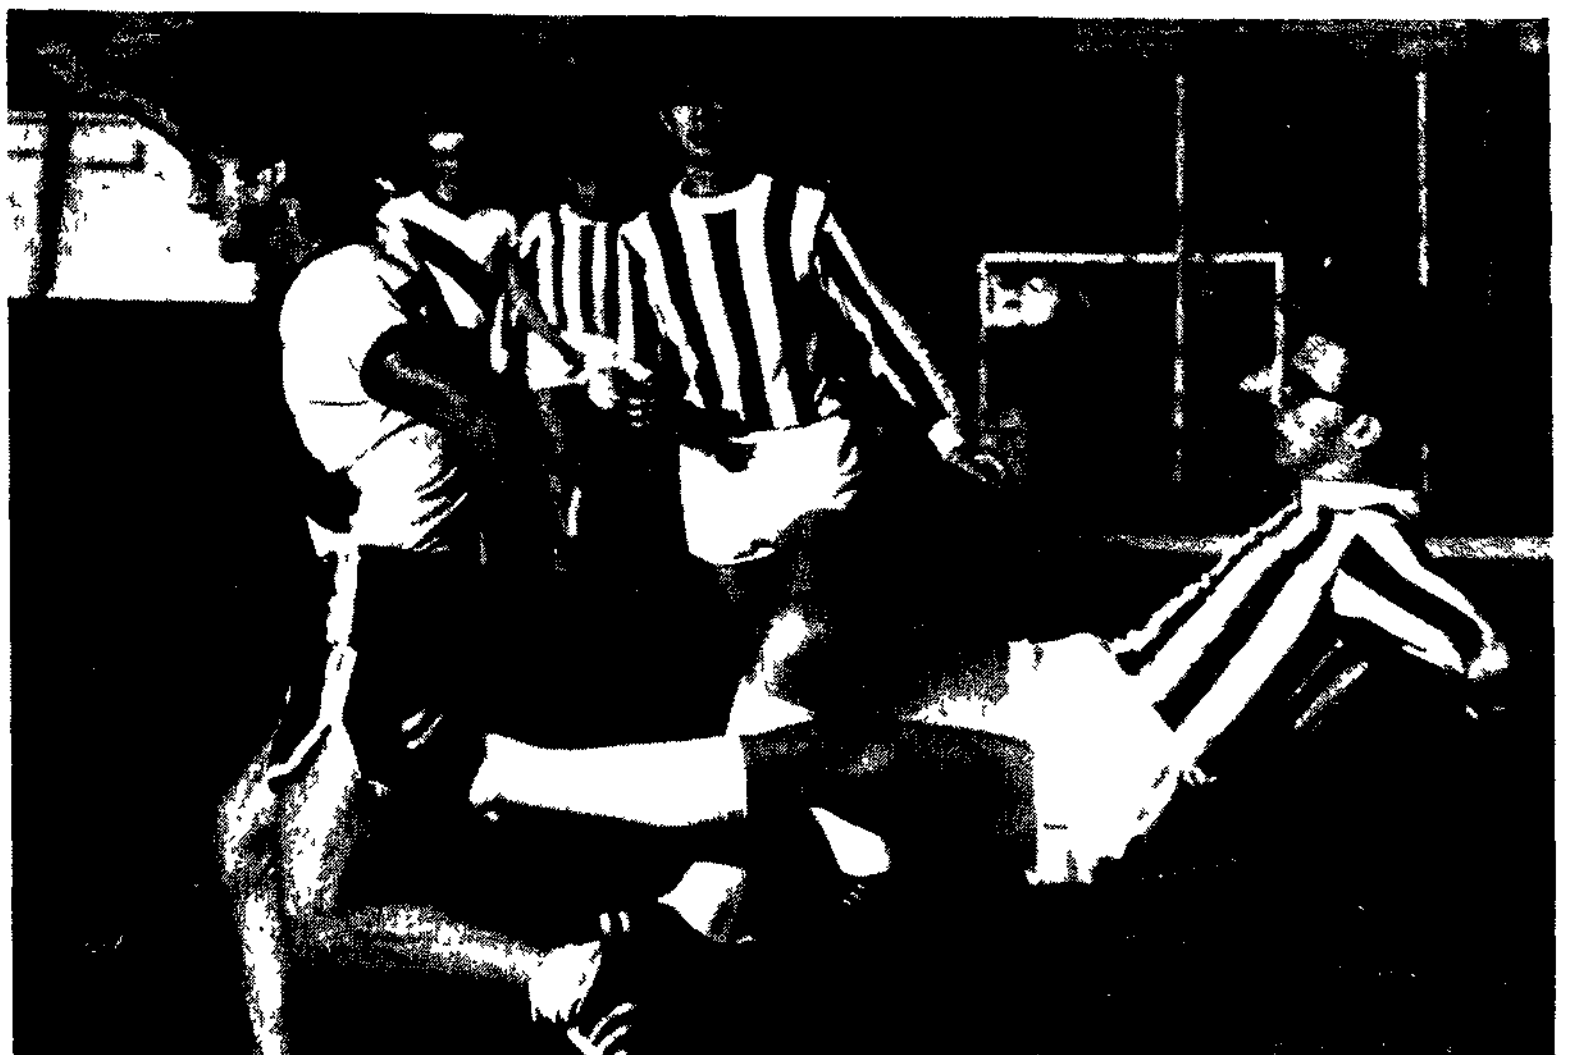

The Warriors closed out their freshman season undefeated in the league by beating Maine South 19-42. Maine North also defeated Maine South 27-28. Maine West was a 18-45 winner of Maine North.

On the freshman level, Paul Frost of Maine West was first, Brian Dunavant of Maine West was second, Glenn Oland of Maine West was third, Jim Balmes of Maine North was fifth, Mike Sharpe of Maine North was sixth, Pete Farmer of Maine West was seventh and Scott Johnson of Maine West was eighth.

Other Maine North finishers were Bill Fancher in 16th, Brian Clarke in 22nd and Tom Cassato in 26th.

Maine West's freshman team closed out the league duals with a 7-0 record, Maine North was 4-4 and Maine South 4-4.

All three teams will be in action Saturday at 10 a.m. in the Central Suburban League meet at Lucas Park in Wilmette.

THE MAINE EAST soccer player at right is actually not trying to kick the New Trier West player in the backside. In fact, the Demon soccer player missed his New Trier West opponent. Action came during the first period of a high school soccer game in which New Trier West won 3-0. Maine East will go against LaGrange on Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. Next Friday the Demons will take on Oak Park at 7 p.m. on the Maine East High School field.

Demons Blank Hinsdale

Maine East sent 17 runners into the chute before Hinsdale Central could get one runner to finish as the Demons closed out their dual meet season undefeated by blanking Hinsdale 15-50 in a West Suburban League meet on the Demon course Tuesday.

Two course records were set as Maine East won on three levels. The Demon varsity closed out the West Suburban League season with a 7-0 record and had a 9-0 mark in all dual meets.

Len Harelson broke his own course record at Maine East, covering the 2.5 mile course in 12:21 while taking first place. Harelson's old record (one week old) was 12:24.

Rick Randall, who finished sixth in the state last year, ran his fastest race ever at the Maine East course, covering the route in 12:30 for second place.

Bill Gumm nabbed third place in 12:35 and Rick Phaylen was one second behind Gumm. John Keane, who has been slowed by illness, was fifth in 12:42.

Mike Seifert was sixth in 12:42, Bruce Anderson seventh in 12:43, John Lovasz eighth in 12:51, George Flayn ninth in 12:53 and Chris Bednarowicz 10th in 13:21.

The Demons won the sophomore meet 17-46 as Gary Marshak set a sophomore course record. Marshak covered the 1.85 mile course in 8:55.

Pat Moyer was second for the Demon sophomores in 9:00. Mike Bell was third in 9:17. Fred Weismueller was fifth in 9:38 and Roy Stoltzner was sixth in 9:47.

Brian Miku finished in first place to pace Maine East to a 15-50 win over Hinsdale in the freshman meet.

The Demons will be in action on Saturday in the West Suburban League which will be held at Eastview Park in LaGrange at 10 a.m.

Final West Suburban League dual meet standings:

1. Maine East 7-0
2. Proviso West 6-1

3. York 5-2

Elk Grove Nips Prospect, 28-29

Elk Grove's varsity cross country team should have thrown in the towel two weeks ago when soph sensation Damian Archbold broke his toe.

The Grenadiers survived two meets without Archbold and when he assured coach Gerry Woollard that he was ready, after only a week's layoff, the Grove capped a very successful season by edging highly touted Prospect, 28-29.

Archbold was a surprising fifth place finisher in the meet that boiled down to each team's fifth man. The Knights tumbled early going with steady Ron Hankel (14:11) and Mark Tamsen (14:30) breaking the tape ahead of the Grenadier hares.

Brian Powell, another of Woollard's super-sophs, put the first points on the board for the Grove with a third in 14:35. Senior teammate Pat Dunning followed in 14:40 before Archbold entered in 14:42.

The pendulum swung back and forth when Knight Dan Young came through in sixth in 14:56 with Grove's Mike Bachus shadowing in 15:02. Prospect's Tony Brocato became their fourth man in at 15:05, but it was all Green after that.

Grenadier Larry Cyrer produced the winning points in 15:09 for a 10th place finish, but teammates Jim Ottinger (15:11), Tom Ziffra (15:12) and Greg Dzem (15:20) added frosting to the cake.

George Busse, the Knights' fifth man into the chute, was 14th overall in 15:28. The victory pushed Elk Grove's conference season dual meet mark to a respectable 6-2 for third place in the final MSL standings. It was quite a reversal from the squad that finished 4-5 last season.

The Knights were shoved down to fourth place with a record of 6-3 behind the Grove, Arlington and Fremd.

Prospect dominated the lower level races with a 22-23 win behind the pace-setting standard of 10:42 by Mike Tyre. Knight Richard Reiffel led the freshmen across in 11:43 in Prospect's 12-36 triumph.

Claim Lost Articles At Train Station

Commuters who ride the Chicago and North Western Ry. each day to and from their jobs in the city have left many items behind when they stepped off the train.

The items are now waiting to be picked up at the railway's lost and found department at the Madison Street station.

A sampling of the items left during the summer runs from cameras to crutches.

"It stumps us," said Leonard Walavich, who works in the lost and found.

"Where are the people who left the crutches? How did they get off the train?"

"WHEN THE WEATHER changes from cold and rainy, to warm and sunny in one day, people forget raincoats, topcoats and umbrellas. We found 23 such items on one of the commuter lines on a day like that recently," he said.

"With winter weather coming on, gloves and mufflers will soon be big items. At Christmas, losses become more glamorous and include gifts and whiskey," said Walavich.

Most of the items left on North Western trains are eventually reclaimed. But after six months, unclaimed items are sold as salvage.

Des Plaines Boundary OK

Des Plaines parents who have children attending High School Dist. 214 don't have to worry about the district's proposed boundary changes.

A survey of four boundary maps under consideration by the district shows students from Des Plaines attending Forest View High School in Arlington Heights, as scheduled, next fall.

A majority of students from Des Plaines now attend Elk Grove High School. These students will be allowed to complete their high school careers at Elk Grove; new students from Des Plaines will enter Forest View High School.

The district's attendance boundaries are being redrawn to accommodate Rolling Meadows High School, which will open next September.

Evan Shull, a district instructional coordinator, has submitted two possible remap plans to the board, and citizens from southwestern Arlington Heights, an area which could enter the Rolling Meadows area, have submitted two maps.

The district also is surveying students to determine interest in an open attendance plan.

In February, the board approved the plan to start new students at Forest View to ease crowded conditions at Elk Grove High School. Des Plaines citizens requested and gained the right to allow students to remain at Elk Grove.

Women Organize To Back Dunne

Mrs. Irene Barron, 9505 Park Lane, Des Plaines this week announced the formation of a Maine Township Women's Committee to Retain George W. Dunne, president of the Cook County Board of Commissioners.

She said that four other women on the committee are serving as neighborhood chairwomen. They include: Elizabeth Jeske, 7447 Palma Lane, Morton Grove; Diane Hansen, 8028 Wisner, Niles; Norine Murphy, 7025 Oleander, Park Ridge; and Priscilla Berg, 1255 Prospect Ave., Des Plaines.

"We hope to advance Mr. Dunne's candidacy by recruiting the assistance of housewives who are concerned with public affairs in Maine Township," said Mrs. Barron.

"George Dunne is an outstanding administrator with long experience in county government," Mrs. Barron continued. "As the Chicago Daily News pointed out in its Oct. 7, editorial endorsement, he is by far the better qualified candidate."

Nurse Returns From Hospitals Study

Miss Marilyn Joan Schneider, head nurse at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines, recently returned from a study tour of Italian hospitals and operating room methods.

Miss Schneider is one of a group of 250 members of the Association of Operating Room Nurses who participated in the professional association's first European study tour.

Miss Schneider, who visited Rome, Florence, Pisa and Perugia will report on the trip at the next meeting of the local Association meeting.

The Way We See It

Prefer Woods Over Dunne

Cook County voters face one of their most difficult election day decisions when they cast a ballot for president of the Cook County board of commissioners.

They can choose between Republican Joseph I. Woods, the outspoken sheriff of Cook County, or Democrat George W. Dunne, the incumbent who was named by the board to the presidency when Richard B. Ogilvie resigned to become governor of Illinois.

We are not fully pleased by the choice.

Woods' term as sheriff has been characterized by controversy and examples of bad judgment.

An example occurred several years ago when he dispatched sheriff's police to Gary, Ind., to help put down a disturbance. The sheriff's police have jurisdiction only in Cook County, and Woods' decision could have had far reaching legal consequences had any of his men been injured or had they injured someone.

An example of unprofessional behavior came this year when he spoke to the Elk Grove Township Republican Organization, displayed pictures of the Conspiracy Seven defendants and ridiculed them because their long hair had been shorn in Cook County Jail.

Woods also has attempted to create a volunteer posse to combat rioters and has distributed badges and guns to part-time deputies.

Dunne's candidacy also raises serious questions, although of a different nature.

He has been president of the board for two years after serving as chairman of the finance committee, most important committee on the board, and has gained valuable administrative experience.

However, Dunne is a very close political ally of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley and is an important man in the Cook County Democratic Organization. Dunne has shown party line tendencies, including a preoccupation with Chicago and a lack of understanding of the major impact of the suburbs on Cook County government.

The choice, then, is a difficult one.

Illinois' Constitution specifies the county board shall consist of 10 Chicago commissioners and five suburban commissioners. The political complexion of Cook County translates that into 10 city-oriented Democrats and five suburban Republicans.

The president's position is the only check against total one-party, Chicago domination. The president is administratively responsible for many county services. He also has a veto power on the board.

It takes a vote of 12 commissioners to override a veto. That means a suburban president would be able to exercise some influence over the direction of county government even with 10 city commissioners.

After a rough campaign start, Woods has shown some awareness of suburban problems and needs. He has indicated his highest priority on the board would be development and implementation of a county master plan. The county board created a plan commission last year, but no action has been taken since then and Dunne, who has been president since that time, must take the blame for that.

We have argued for years the need for a master plan that would serve as a guideline for development of Cook County. Nowhere is that development coming faster than in the Northwest suburbs.

For these reasons, and because we feel it essential to have effective suburban representation on the county board, we recommend Joseph I. Woods as the better choice on Nov. 3.

Respect Elderly

I have just read the article from Deborah Klingbeil, of Arlington Heights and I would like to say that I very much agree with her views.

I, too, am working as a nurse's aide. I

Thanks . . . I Think

I was reading your editorial endorsing Regner, Schickman, and Chapman when suddenly I came upon the sentence "Perhaps more taciturn than the other two, Regner is nonetheless an effective legislator. . . ." I stopped and asked myself — what did they say? An effective legislator, yes, but taciturn? Well, maybe I don't know what the word means, or maybe there's more than one meaning.

So, I got out my old trusty dictionary and low and behold it said what I thought the word meant — "in the habit of saying little; not fond of talking; inclined to silence."

WHOEVER WROTE this editorial must have some sense of humor, or they just moved here from the other side of the moon, or they don't know Dave Regner.

Great guy, good legislator, effective leader. . . I could go on and on praising Dave Regner but the one word that can never describe him is "taciturn."

Thanks anyway for the endorsement. It was fun.

am working at the Des Plaines Convalescent Home located on Lee Street, Des Plaines.

Des Plaines Home has only women occupants and when talking to my friends I have come to refer to the ladies, as "my old ladies" because that's what they are. I love each and every one of them very much.

I WONDER JUST how many people really understand what it's like to be old. Have they ever heard an elderly person cry, "I want to go home. My mother will be worried." or "Nobody loves me." Or have they ever seen ladies sit and cry waiting for their husbands to come and get them, when their husbands are dead? No, I imagine not many people have, or else they wouldn't laugh at some comedy featuring old, senile people.

One thing that really distresses me is the fact that some of the ladies never receive visitors. It hurts me to see them cry. One of the women there has three daughters, and when they come every day, they say hello to everyone, not just their own mother. If only more people could see how their faces light up.

Many of the nurses there always buy things for the ladies. A birthday is never missed. The nurses there all treat each lady with kindness and understanding. The elderly people need this understanding, sometimes even more than others.

So, I wish that more people would begin to see the tastelessness of laughing at the comedies of the old, the senile and even the ill.

Excellent Newsman

On behalf of the unit members of the Schaumburg Area Council of PTA's, I would like to express our deepest sympathy regarding the recent death of Don Brannan. Being the prime reporter for The Herald concerning coverage of School Dist. 54, many of us came to know him quite well. He proved time and again not only the ability of an excellent newsman, but also the interest and warmth of being a friend. Don was a true asset to your newspaper. He will be sorely missed at future school board meetings and PTA functions.

Palatine Today

Blocked Apartments Lost Chance

by MARTHA KOPER

It must be that time of year again. A part of Palatine is concerned about the Pebble Creek Golf Course property for at least the 47th time.

There's a new threat. Until now they didn't want towering skyscrapers (12-story buildings) and a lot of apartments and a few stores on the land.

Now, they don't want a sewage treatment plant brought to their neighborhood. That's understandable. Not many people like to live next door to that kind of thing.

Those who have opposed any kind of development of the land since apartment buildings first were mentioned deserve it.

THE VILLAGE board, which also is trying frantically to block the treatment plant, deserves it too. Village officials had their chance almost three years ago.

It would have been beautifully simple to annex the 66-acre tract when Elmer Gleich, a local developer, wanted to build less than 600 apartments. Not only that, he was content to keep the size of the buildings to six stories.

Instead they listened with as little foresight as the objectors. It's almost impossible to believe they all really thought all threats would end when the Gleich annexation was denied.

It's an old story that's been told over and over again. But with each new incident involving the land I expect someone to listen and learn. No one has accomplished anything yet.

The surrounding homeowners who continue to object to everything must realize the end is in sight. It can't be denied they've managed to block any ground-breaking on the land for the past three or four years, but that can't go on forever. They should know that just by seeing how far proposals for the land have come.

GLEICH SOLD the property to Sellergren Brothers, Inc., developers from Park Ridge. Right there, the local touch was lost.

It was so far gone anyone could predict the number of apartments would double. It did and more than that, the height of the buildings doubled.

But that didn't scare anyone. They still continued to loudly object and quietly tell village officials they better not annex the land.

Without annexation they must have been naive enough to believe the project wouldn't be built because of the lack of water and sewer facilities.

Without annexation, Palatine's tax base won't increase either and that won't

School Bus Plan 'Nothin' But Bad'

by ALAN AKERSON

Let's hope the proposal to bus high school students from Buffalo Grove and a small portion of Arlington Heights several miles to the new Rolling Meadows High School next year will die a quiet, quick death.

The plan is nothing but bad. The busing proposal was unveiled at a High School Dist. 214 meeting Oct. 12 by Evan Shull, a district instructional coordinator.

Specifically, it calls for the busing of high school students living in the Cooper Junior High School attendance area to the new Rolling Meadows High School when that facility opens next fall. Included in the Cooper area (Cooper is located in Buffalo Grove) is most of the Cook County portion of Buffalo Grove and a small part of northern Arlington Heights. The students in that area now attend overcrowded Wheeling High School.

THE BUSING, according to the plan, would end when an eighth high school is built. That high school, supposedly, will be erected on a 40-acre site now owned by Dist. 214 in Buffalo Grove. For the most part, the plan was the idea of a group of residents from western Arlington Heights. Not coincidentally, the proposal would keep the present Arlington High School boundaries for the most part intact.

Probably the plan is great if you happen to live in the Arlington High School attendance area. But, if you're one of the several hundred Buffalo Grove area high school students, the plan leaves a lot to be desired.

The plan does nothing more than keep

do anyone any good.

To no one's surprise except the objectors, word came of the sewage treatment plant. If Palatine didn't want to annex the land, Sellergren would show he has alternatives. Once again, the homeowners went up in smoke.

HAVING THEIR children bused to Rolling Meadows could certainly be an influence on Buffalo Grove parents to vote in favor of the referendum. Thus far the proposal is just that — a proposal. In Buffalo Grove, village officials and residents alike are discussing the plan, and most of the discussion is in the negative.

Already the village board has gone on record opposing the idea. And Supt. Ken

Pick Me, I'll Bore You To Tears

by BARRY SIGALE

Hi! I'm Barry Sigale. Support me and I'll do something about noise pollution.

The solution to noise pollution is to silence all the candidates running for office, a kind of moratorium, especially for Sheriff Joe Woods, head of the Cook County police department, and George W. Dunne, president of the Cook County Board of Commissioners.

Now, I'm sure that a lot of you, mainly those living in the fifth, sixth and eighth wards, are going out of your ears about this noise pollution thing involving O'Hare airport, and noisy motor bikes, etc.

BUT IF there isn't some relief from all this political gibberish soon, like if Woods and Dunne and Mr. Smith and Stevenson don't stop with this nonsensical speech making and talk sense, we may all have a fit, no matter who we're for.

Campaign rhetoric has a definite place in society today, especially during an election year. But why can't the candidates say something worth saying instead of: "Elect me president of the Cook County board and I'll do something about pollution," or "This job is about people."

Let's bring this thing closer to home. What if the candidates vying to represent Des Plaines and the district were to use the same "arguments" for election as have the more notable candidates like Smith and Stevenson.

Here's what they might say.

Alan Scheffres: "Elect me as your state senator and I'll do something about Northwest Highway."

Barry Sigale

John W. Carroll: "Return me as state senator and I'll do something about the Des Plaines River."

KENNETH LINDQUIST: "Elect me as your state representative and I'll do something about the elementary Dist. 62 school system."

Aaron Jaffe: "Elect me to the seat of state rep and I'll do something about a Des Plaines ice rink and sports complex."

Robert Juckett: "Re-elect me as your state representative and I'll do something about everything."

John W. Carroll: "Re-elect me as your state representative and I'll do everything about something."

R. G. Patrick Logan: "Elect me as your congressman and I'll do something."

Harold R. Collier: "Re-elect me as your congressman and I'll serve another term."

Ho hum.

The Lighter Side

Burning 'Blazed Smut'

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON UPI — Before you can write intelligently about any given issue, you must understand the people involved. The best way to do that is to put yourself in their place and look at the matter from their side.

Which is why I decided the other day to burn a book.

A book-burning controversy has arisen, symbolically at least, in connection with various proposals to suppress pornography. These moves have been denounced in some quarters as a form of book burning.

Feeling that the experience of actually burning a book might help me see this issue in better perspective, I began searching my bookshelves for a volume suitable for incineration. Right away I encountered problems.

IDEALLY, I FIGURED, the book should be of the type that appeals to prurient interests. But my library proved devoid of racy literature, give or take "Origin of Species" by Charles Darwin, who was the Jacqueline Susann of his day.

For sentimental reasons I couldn't bear to part with "The Five Little Peppers and How they Grew." And I certainly wouldn't burn my all-time favorite novel, "Girl of the Lumberlost."

After long deliberation I finally concluded that the most appropriate book to burn would be a cookbook.

One cookbook in particular seemed to recommend itself — "How to Gorge George without Fattening Fatiny." The anatomical double-entendre in the title made it sound rather wicked.

Furthermore, the author of the work, Nancy Gould, is a beautiful former model. And we all know about them!

ONCE THE DECISION was made, however, another problem arose. I discovered that burning a book is not as easy as it might sound. You can't simply put a match to the fly leaf and then stand back and watch the whole thing go up in smoke.

Miss Gould's book, which I assume is typical, would burn briefly and then go out. There seemed to be an excessive amount of smoke, particularly in the chapter on souffles. Even with the help of charcoal lighter I used up nearly an entire pack of matches.

At that rate, I concluded, it would take longer to burn a dirty book than it takes to read it. Or maybe write it.

Based on my experience, then, I would say that the anti-pornography campaign is unlikely to lead to widespread book-burning. Unless someone publishes a cookbook that includes a recipe for blazed smut.

Classes Set For Parents-To-Be

Expectant parents are invited to enroll in a four-week series of free classes at Holy Family hospital, Des Plaines. The first class will be held Thursday, Oct. 29, at 7 p.m. The course will continue for three consecutive weeks on Thursday nights, Nov. 5, 12 and 19.

Classes will be conducted by nursing service members of the obstetrical department.

Both mothers and fathers-to-be are invited to attend the 2-hour sessions. The couples will take a tour through the hospital obstetrical department to become pre-acquainted with hospital procedure. They will also hear lectures and see films on prenatal care for the mother, hospital stay, diet for the pregnant and nursing mother, clothing needs for the newborn and care of the baby.

Parents who are anticipating adoption are invited to the Nov. 19 class to learn to care for their adopted infant.

Pre-registration is encouraged. Please call 299-2281, Ext. 324. Interested parents may come to the reception desk where they will be directed to the classroom.

Lahti Elected Council Head

Robert Lahti, president of William Rainey Harper College, has been elected president of the Council of North Central Junior Colleges.

Lahti, a Palatine resident, will serve as president of the group of community colleges until 1 October, 1971.

The junior college organization has 276 two-year colleges in its membership. Its geographic boundary lines coincide with the area covered by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, the group which accredits high schools and junior colleges in the area.

Lahti has been president of Harper Junior College since its founding in 1965. He is an accredited examiner for the North Central Association and a commissioner on the National Commission on Accreditation.

Lahti was elected president of the junior college association at the annual convention in Detroit, Michigan, this month. The Council of North Central Junior Colleges serves as a forum for community colleges to exchange ideas about philosophy and policy.

Besides Lahti, James J. Hamill, chairman of the Harper Board of Trustees, attended the Detroit convention.

Ex-Globetrotter Interrogated By Audience

An appearance by former Globetrotter basketball player Bob Milton last Thursday at Elk Grove High School turned into more of an interrogation than an interview.

"Are those teams you play against phonies?" asked an inquisitive boy. "Could you beat the Chicago Bulls?" "How about the New York Knicks?" Those were some of the questions fired in rapid succession when Milton stopped at the school for an interview prior to next Wednesday's game in Elk Grove Village. The B'nai B'rith is sponsoring the game.

"NO. THEY are not phonies. They're independently contracted teams," Milton responded to the first inquiry.

"Sure we can beat the Bulls," he said confidently.

"The Knicks? Ah, we'd have a time with them," said Milton of the National Basketball Association champions.

About 20 teens gathered around Milton, Morrey Saperstein, Globetrotter booking agent, and Joseph Anzivino, Globetrotter vice president, who answered questions on the famous team founded by Morrey's brother, the late Abe Saperstein, almost 45 years ago.

SAPERSTEIN FORMED the Globetrotters in 1927, after a team he booked for, the Savoy Big 5 from Chicago's South Side, broke up.

He called the the New York Harlem Globetrotters in the beginning, though they were based in Chicago, said Morrey, adding that their first out-of-town game was played in the small town of Hinkley, Ill.

"Abe called it the birthplace of the Globetrotters," said Morrey, a resident of Elk Grove Village.

The team played "serious" basketball at the time, refraining from any clowning.

There were only five players on the team in those days and it was pretty tough on the body to play so many games, said Anzivino.

THEN THE PLAYERS began to fool around a bit so the others could rest, he said.

"The crowd liked it and it gave Abe the idea to inject more fun into the game," recalled Anzivino, who lives in

Majority Students Fare Well In Test

The majority of students at Oakton Community College ranked in the lower third of their high school graduating classes, but most of the students scored average in statewide ACT tests.

These statistics were part of a report by John Gagin, Oakton Director of Admissions, Tuesday night to the board of trustees.

Of Oakton's 432 full-time and 400 part-time students, one is Black, one is an American Indian, one is a Spanish American, and two are Oriental Americans, Gagin reported.

Twenty-nine students are from outside of the Niles-Maine Township Community College Dist. 535, Gagin said.

Arlington Heights.

Since the team began it has played in 1,231 American cities and 87 foreign countries. Nearly 65 million fans have seen the Globetrotters play.

Of all the places visited by the team, Milton said many have been interesting and enjoyable, but none as good as the United States.

"No one appreciates the U.S. as much as the Globetrotters," said Milton, who played with them for 18 years. "A person doesn't realize how much he misses it until he leaves it."

THE TEAM has been welcomed in most countries, drawing laughter and applause no matter where it plays while being labeled by the press as ambassadors of good will.

"If there's a place that disappointed Abe because it wouldn't let him play there, it was Johannesburg in South Africa," said Anzivino. The country practices apartheid, a policy of segregation of blacks.

The team traditionally draws big crowds, the largest in 1951 when it played before 75,000 people in the Berlin Olympic stadium.

"The place looked empty when we played in the Maracani stadium in Rio de Janeiro," said Anzivino. The team drew 30,000 fans but the stadium, built for soccer, had a capacity of 245,000.

Many games are played outdoors in Europe and South America, however, the Globetrotters have been known to play just about anywhere.

ONE TIME in Nuremberg, Germany, the team used the desk tops leftover from the Nuremberg Trials to play on, Anzivino said. Another time, the gym burned down and the game had to be moved to another site in a matter of hours.

"The first time we went to Russia no one laughed," recalled Anzivino. They didn't know what went wrong until after the intermission when they applauded, he said.

"It's rude to applaud in the middle of a performance, we found out later." "But, in Italy, we get almost a complete standing ovation when the team comes out on the floor," Anzivino said. "It's really great."

Madame President

Flowers: A Joy For All Seasons

by ELEANOR RIVES

From the seascape in her bedroom to the butterfly gelatin molds decorating her kitchen soffit, the home of Mrs. Fred Dodge proclaims her love of nature. It also extols her talent as an artist and her skill in crafts.

Her crewel work is splashed with daisies; her Tole work is alive with wild-life. Yellow placemats in the shape of butterflies add a bright touch to the breakfast table. Her hand-decorated plaques, her shell pictures and home-made candles, her original paintings, including the turbulent seascape, in oils, all carry out the nature theme.

But her high regard for natural beauty is best expressed in her love for flowers.

How fitting that a woman such as Ruth Dodge should be president of the Des Plaines Garden Club.

How much time does she give to garden club work?

"MY HUSBAND would say all of it," she laughed.

Mrs. Dodge recently received the Ikenobo School certificate and Ikebana Art diploma for professional attainment in floral art, both documents written in Japanese and English and signed by the headmaster in Japan.

She is presently working towards being a nationally accredited flower show judge and has successfully completed two of the five courses required. She must now pass three more courses and an examination. To maintain her position, she must then judge a minimum of five shows a year and be awarded five blue ribbons, two in flower arranging, two in horticulture and one more in either category.

Fred Dodge shares his wife's enthusiasm for flowers and gardening, but after years of yardwork in their extensive gardens decided he deserved a rest. So they moved into their Park Ridge home on a much smaller lot.

NOW THEIR house is for sale. Fred wants to get back to gardening.

"He can't stand this postage stamp of ground. We need a larger, sunnier lot with plenty of room for flowers," said Ruth.

When the Dodges lived in Palatine from 1952 to 1959, their huge flower beds were the talk of the neighborhood. At Christmas time, spotlights illuminated their lean-to greenhouse where live poinsettias and other exotic flowers were blooming.

Subsequently the Dodges moved to a corner country home three miles out of McHenry, which they transformed into a three-quarter acre dream in living color. Flowers surrounded the house. A large triangular bed of perennials punctuated with stepping stones extended right to the corner. Not only did they grace their grounds with a formal garden, but between their man-made bog and an adjoining prairie they created a wildflower garden with more than 75 varieties represented.

IT WAS THEN that a friend of Ruth's made the obvious statement, "You ought to belong to a garden club."

So Mrs. Dodge became active in the McHenry Garden Club and held just about every position except president.

About eight years later, the Dodges moved into an apartment in Des Plaines before moving into their present home in Park Ridge in 1968.

"I made it a point to join the Des Plaines Garden Club while I was a resident. Once you are a member you may stay in the club even if you move away," Ruth explained.

As first vice president of the club in 1969, Ruth was in charge of the program and yearbook. Last April she took office as president. The club, with 82 members, meets the first Thursday of each month at West Park Fieldhouse.

THE THEME THIS year is "Nature's Zodiac." On the cover of the yearbook is an attractive flower zodiac which Ruth designed.

"We have an outstanding club," said Ruth. "So many members are judges, even state officers, such as the District II chairman and the state treasurer. We have a program at each meeting, in addition to horticulture and arrangement demonstrations. You know, horticulture is at least 50 per cent of garden clubbing.

"On Oct. 27 we will have a special Christmas program, one of the biggest events of the year. We were fortunate to get Bob Thomas from St. Petersburg, Fla., for his 'Holiday Happenings.' He will demonstrate Christmas arrangements of all types — wreaths, swags, holiday floral arrangements. As a ways and means project, many craft items made by our members will also be on sale."

TICKETS FOR "Holiday Happenings" are $2 in advance or $2.50 at the door and include a 12:30 p.m. snack of coffee and cookies. The program is open to the public. Tickets may be obtained by calling Mrs. Dodge at 698-2749.

At the regular meeting on Nov. 5, Mrs. Richard Simms will present a program dealing with ceramics and flower arranging. A Christmas workshop is planned for Dec. 3.

All garden club regular meetings are open to the public to this extent: non-members may attend two meetings in one year before joining. The purpose of the group as stated in its pledge is the beautification of our state kept void of litter, the protection of all wildlife and the conservation of its natural resources for present and future generations.

Its members earnestly believe with Oscar Wilde that "what is beautiful is a joy for all seasons and a possession for all eternity."

WHEN YOU STEP INTO Mrs. Fred Dodge's home, the walls whisper, "Someone who loves nature lives here." President of the Des Plaines Garden Club, Ruth is talented in such artistic achievements as this unusual corkboard plaque.

Suburban Living

ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

'Autumn 70' Proceeds To Scholarships

"Autumn 70" is the theme of the Delta Delta Delta Northwest Suburban Alumnae Chapter's annual fall benefit luncheon to be held Thursday, Oct. 29, at West Park Fieldhouse in Park Ridge. During the salad bar luncheon, which begins at 12:30 p.m., Tri Deltas and their guests will see an informal fashion show presented by ETC, a Chicago boutique.

Mrs. Bruce Glass, Des Plaines; Mrs. Lou Knudsen, Park Ridge; Mrs. Richard Bixler, Mount Prospect; Mrs. Edward Stein and Mrs. William Melton of Arlington Heights will model fashions from the new shop which specializes in "now" clothes for suburban women as well as their daughters.

Following the luncheon and fashion show, featured speaker will be Ann Elvart (Mrs. David), Park Ridge resident and proprietor of The Hallway, an antique shop located at 145 Vine St., Park Ridge.

Mrs. Elvart will discuss "The New Antique" and will show some of her wares as she speaks. Coming from a family in the antique business, Mrs. Elvart fell heir not only to her avid interest in this field, but also to a number of items which she found she could no longer use.

SEVEN YEARS AGO she set up shop in her basement where she operated until 1966. At that time she and Mrs. Dorothy Hinkley, also of Park Ridge, joined forces and moved into a small shop on South Vine near their present location where they have been for nearly two years. Mrs. Georgia Anderle of Glenview has recently joined their growing business.

All Tri Delta alumnae in the northwest suburban area are invited to attend the Oct. 29 benefit affair and urged to bring guests. For information on tickets, those in the Park Ridge and Des Plaines area may call Mrs. Robert Chapin, chairman of the benefit, 823-4218, or Mrs. Kenneth Lussenhop, 823-5060.

Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights area Delta Delta Deltas should call Mrs. Richard Bixler, 255-2851.

Proceeds from the benefit will go for a national scholarship fund.

MRS. WILLIAM Thomas Melton, Arlington Heights, left, and Mrs. Bruce Glass, Des Plaines, get a preview from Ann Elvart of The Hallway in Park Ridge, of some items

Mrs. Elvart will feature in her talk on "The New Antique" for members of Delta Delta Delta and their guests at a benefit luncheon Oct. 29.

Changing Fashions Aid Child Welfare

"Changing Faces of Fashion" is the theme of the annual benefit the Board of St. Frances Guild is sponsoring for St. Mary's Services for Children, an Episcopal foster home and child care agency.

The Crystal Ballroom of the Sheraton-Blackstone Hotel will be the setting for the luncheon, featuring special guest celebrities and exciting fall fashions, on Wednesday, Oct. 28. Quintero, Ltd. of Oak Park will supply the fashions for all ages and tastes; music will be by Jimmy Blade. Donation is $8. Tickets may be requested from Mrs. Robert L. Nemcik at 259-4577.

In addition to adoption, foster care and services to parents seeking placement of their children, St. Mary's Services for Children aids community and church groups requesting help with children. Direct treatment of emotionally disturbed children and their families in the Lakeview-Uptown area is the most recent added service for the community and one which is unique in the child welfare field.

Licensed by the state of Illinois as a child welfare facility, St. Mary's Services for Children has served the Chicago area for more than 76 years. Guild board members residing in this area include Mrs. R. D. Peterson of Des Plaines; Mrs. Roland Gerrard, Mount Prospect; and Mrs. Robert L. Nemcik, Arlington Heights.

Chapter HL Meets Monday

The next meeting of Chapter HL of the PEO Sisterhood will be held next Monday at 8 p.m., in the home of Norma Hendrickson. Mrs. Phyllis Giles will be co-hostess.

The program will consist of reports by Vera Spinner, Marie Coe and Vivian Jensen.

EXHIBITING DURING October at the Des Plaines National Bank is Ronald M. Rolfe. His unique appliques and stitchery have won him prizes throughout the state.

Society To Hold Buffet Tea

The annual membership buffet tea will be held Tuesday by the women of the St. John Greek Orthodox Philoptochos Society in the Church Hall, 2350 Dempster St., Des Plaines.

An invitation is extended to all members of the parish to attend at 8 p.m.

The society holds its meetings on the fourth Tuesday of every month at 8 p.m.

Applique Stitchery On Display

An exhibit of applique and stitchery by Chicago artist Ronald M. Rolfe is being featured during October in the Art Corner at Des Plaines National Bank.

Rolfe was educated at the Art Institute, University of Chicago, Illinois Institute of Technology and by private instruction. Over 60 pieces of work by Ron Rolfe have been privately commissioned and now hang in homes, offices and various business establishments in 18 states, Canada and Mexico.

His work has been featured in two recent publications by author Dona Z. Merlach — "Contemporary Rugs and Wall Hangings," and "Contemporary Stitchery." Jackets from these books and photos of the artist and his works are included on a poster which accompanies the Art Corner exhibit in the bank building at Lee and Ellinwood in Des Plaines.

In addition to his various indoor and outdoor exhibits, for the past two years he has organized the Open Studio Exhibit given by artists of the Webster-Racine area of Chicago where he lives. This show has received favorable comment in the press and on radio.

His display of wall hangings will remain on view in Des Plaines National Bank's Art Corner through the end of October, to be followed in November by an exhibit of works by Irene "Rae" Partridge, past president of Des Plaines Art Guild and chairman of its annual outdoor art fairs for the past few years. Mrs. Partridge is now a resident of Barrington.

Make It Then Take It

A "Make and Take" Auction or "Elegant Elephant" will highlight the Nov. 3 meeting of the Maine South Faculty Wives. The meeting will be held in the student cafeteria at Maine South at 8 p.m.

Members are asked to make their contribution, if time permits, or bring something "elegant."

Marian Davies presented the program "Our Town — Park Ridge" at the October meeting.

Hearings Set On Anti-Pollution Bond Act

Open hearings on Illinois' proposed Anti-Pollution Bond Act are scheduled for next week in Chicago, it was announced yesterday by Neil McKay, metropolitan area chairman of the Illinois Citizens for Clean Water.

"This will be our chance to hear and question the experts on how the bond issue would work to clean up our waterways and not bring on any new or increased property taxes," McKay said in a statement from his organization.

State Sen. Robert W. Mitchler of Oswego will conduct the public meetings starting at 9:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. next Wednesday in the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) offices at 100 E. Erie St., Chicago.

Chairman of the state water pollution and water resources commission and himself a sponsor of the water clean-up proposal, Mitchler also has asked local officials, district legislators and sanitary district engineers to join the discussions. He'll be winding up a statewide series of 17 hearings that began Oct. 5 in Harrisburg.

Most of Illinois' water pollution comes from municipal sewage — from homes and offices of people themselves. And Chicago and Cook County hold the state's largest concentration of people — more than half the total population of the state, Mitchler points out.

"Good work by Chicago's Metropolitan Sanitary District has made Chicago a model for lakeside communities around the world," Mitchler said. "Yet it remains the greatest potential source of pollution for Illinois lakes, rivers and streams."

McKay, who is also the senior vice president and cashier of Chicago's First National Bank, said more than half of the $750 million bond issue is earmarked for sewage treatment improvements in Cook County. "And of course, cleaner waters in this area of 5½ million people will benefit not only Chicago and suburbs, but also all of Illinois that lies downstream," McKay said.

The state funds would pay a fourth of the total cost of nearly $700 million in improvements the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency already has listed as necessary in the MSD and elsewhere in Cook County.

Passage of the bond act would open the way for the federal government to pay another 55 per cent of the cost, leaving only 20 per cent, about $160 million, to be paid locally, according to the act's sponsors.

"The act as written provides that the debt will be paid off entirely from the state's general revenues — income and sales taxes and other money not collected for a special purpose such as road building," said McKay.

Approval by a majority of the people who vote in the general election Nov. 3 is required to pass the bond act. "If you don't vote on it, you in effect will be voting against it," McKay said.

MSD projects the state lists as necessary — with today's estimated costs — are extensions and chlorination and more advanced sewage-treatment works for: Poplar Creek Basin (Poplar Grove), $14.2 million; Upper DuPage River Basin (Hanover), $5.2 million; Upper Salt Creek Basin, $37.7 million; Upper Des Plaines River Basin (O'Hare), $42 million; North Side Drainage Basin, $97.7 million; Central Drainage Basin (West-Southwest Side), $308.2 million; South Drainage Basin (Calumet), $106.4 million; and Leimont Drainage Basin, $5.6 million.

Other projects already listed in Cook County are: Rickett Park — chlorination facilities and sewer by-pass, $38,250; Homewood — chlorination and tertiary sewage-treatment, $416,000; and Lansing — sewer by-pass, $1.3 million.

McKay said the bond act proposal offers state voters these choices:

"Would you prefer to put up 20 cents now, or 70 cents later, of every dollar it takes to stop sewage from polluting waterways in your county?"

"And would you rather pay the 20 cents now — at today's prices — or the 70 cents of every dollar later on, after sewerage-treatment construction costs have gone on climbing at the present rate of 10 per cent or more a year and the total dollar amount has become much greater?"

"The act doesn't offer us the choice of whether we'd prefer clean water; it is already law that we shall clean up our waters. We either do it sooner, by the 20-cent route, or later at the 70-cent rate on a greater amount," he said.

By law, Illinois municipalities have until July 1, 1972 to complete projects the state finds are necessary for them to meet water-quality standards prescribed by the federal Water Quality Act of 1966.

The state Water Pollution Control Board already has acted against Springfield, Hinsdale and Glendale Heights to get these communities going on projects to enable them to meet the deadline. Another case is pending against Downers Grove. Through the courts the state can, if necessary, cause a municipality to sell non-referendum bonds to finance improvements.

"Most communities have been moving voluntarily. And some may have been holding back for passage of the bond act on Nov. 3," according to Douglas Morton, chief of the Board of Water Pollution Control.

Husband Charged With Battery

A Des Plaines man was charged with battery Monday night after he allegedly struck his wife during an argument in their home, according to Des Plaines police.

Herman F. Knuth, 432 Vassar Ln., Des Plaines, was taken into custody after he had to be restrained by a neighbor during the argument, police said. He will appear Dec. 4 in Des Plaines court on the charge.

MAKE PADDOCK PUBLICATIONS PART OF YOUR DAILY LIFE

Under law now, the federal government will pay 30 per cent of the cost of a municipal sewage-treatment improvement. When a state government will pay 25 per cent of the cost, as is provided by Illinois' proposal federal government will raise its share to 50 per cent and to 55 per cent for projects that fit in with a regional plan by a planning agency such as the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission.

More than nine out of 10 projects will qualify for the higher amount and this will reduce the burden on local communities from 70 per cent today to as low as 20 per cent, according to McKay.

"Illinois is one of the few industrial states not yet providing state aid to local governments for sewage-treatment costs," McKay said. "Our anti-pollution bond act would correct that. And it will never be easier or cheaper to clean up our water than right now."

Projects under construction before July 2, 1970, will be eligible for the 25 per cent in state aid on portions not completed by that date, he said. They will not be eligible for the federal two-to-one matching funds, although they already may have qualified for the 30 per cent federal aid now allowable, according to McKay.

Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie has stated publicly that the bond issue would be paid entirely from general state revenues.

"Don't be misled by the actual wording of the proposition, which provides for a special property tax if necessary to repay. That's merely a legal technicality. No such tax will be required. I repeat: all principal and interest will be repaid from the state's general revenues," the governor said recently.

Statewide, the Environmental Protection Agency has listed almost 500 projects, totaling about $2.2 billion, as needed in the 1970's, for municipalities to meet water-quality standards. The agency will be identifying other specific improvements in the more rural communities, which will bring costs higher in all counties, McKay said.

State chairman for Illinois Citizens for Clean Water is Charles L. Brown, president, Illinois Bell.

Drug Curriculum Guide Used

Cook County public schools will be among the first in the country to use a curriculum guide on drug education which approaches drugs from a positive point rather than emphasizing drug hazards.

At a day-long conference attended last week by 350 teachers, administrators and health personnel from Cook County school districts, the developers of the curriculum guide explained that drug abuse is growing despite an increase in drug abuse education.

The curriculum guide, "Teaching About Drugs," was developed by the American School Health Association and the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association. The conference for teachers was sponsored by Cook County Supt. Robert Hanrahan's office.

HANRAHAN, president of the Cook County Coordinating Council on Drug Education, Inc., told the teachers information about drugs has been available for some time, but the tools to put them into a curriculum like the one offered through "Teaching About Drugs" are new.

Crash educational programs, such as one-time showings of drug abuse films to senior high students, talks by ex-addicts and sensational accounts of drug abuse are not part of the new curriculum guide on drugs which will be available to teachers after a December workshop on how to use the guide.

Dr. Hester Bland, coordinator of the drug committee, gave an example of the positive approach used in the new guide: Drugs have reduced the number of deaths from tuberculosis from 48 per 100,000 in 1940 to 9 per 100,000 in 1968.

The guide, according to Bland, emphasizes the physical, intellectual and social aspects of drug use. It contains curriculum objectives, and content and learning activities for four educational levels from lower elementary grades to junior high students.

"The guide's flexibility allows teachers to select, delete or add to the material's curriculum to fit local needs," Bland said.

A Pasadena psychiatrist, Dr. Harriet Randall, explained the teacher's job in a drug education program is not only to supply information, but to give young people an understanding of the value of health and to show them the opportunities which are ahead of them in life. Individual interest on the part of the teacher can help erase the causes of drug abuse, she said.

Dr. Randall listed youth's lack of concern for themselves and their futures, a need to experiment, and the strong influence of peers to use drugs on weekends as causes of drug abuse in younger people.

Church Slates Study Sessions

The First United Methodist Church of Des Plaines will host a series of three study sessions beginning Friday evening at the church on Graceland and Prairie avenues.

Dr. Merrill Abbey, of Garrett Theological Seminary in Evanston, will conduct the series on the theme "Man, Media and the Message" which is the title of his latest book and deals with the communication of the Gospel.

Each of the three consecutive Friday evening sessions will start at 6:30 p.m. and will be held in Fellowship Hall.

Arlington Heights, Illinois

Gentlemen:

I want to take this opportunity to inform you of the excellent response we received from the two advertisements we placed in your publications on August 15 and 20.

As you know, we opened our Dawn Gate Community about a year ago during a rather depressed housing market. We used various media and other methods to promote the sale of these homes and lots with little success.

With four completed models and other vacant lots available, we decided to try your publications.

We immediately sold all four homes and several vacant homesites... more than a quarter million dollars in real estate.

Traffic was good on both weekends, and most were potential buyers. We are now convinced that if potential buyers are offered the right product through the right medium, that the home market is as good as ever.

After our success in August we immediately built another model, the Sherringham, which is open daily from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. The homes in Dawn Gate range from $54,000 to $100,000, and are situated in wooded, secluded homesites in the Plum Grove area of Rolling Meadows.

Be assured we will use your newspapers in further promoting this development.

Sincerely,
Bill Kennedy

Prospect Heights Incorporation?

by BETSY BROOKER

Prospect Heights may be able to incorporate as a city without the consent of surrounding municipalities, according to attorney Donald Kreger, a specialist in municipal law.

Kreger was invited to a meeting Monday to explain the procedure of incorporation to representatives of Prospect Heights civic organizations.

The Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA), which represents the "old town" area of the community, has decided to try to incorporate their area. They contacted Kreger to advise them on the project.

However, the "new town" area is considering not only incorporation, but also annexation to a neighboring municipality or strengthened township government.

Representatives from both areas of the community attended the meeting.

THE ADVANTAGES of incorporation versus annexation will be discussed at another meeting in November. The public is invited to attend the meeting which will be sponsored by the Northwest Suburban Council of Associations. The council represents all of the homeowner organizations in Prospect Heights.

Kreger told the residents Monday that it "will be easier to incorporate as a city rather than a village. A contradiction in the state statutes, relative to incorporation as a city, makes consent from neighboring municipalities questionable.

"The state legislature neglected to change one section of the statutes, while changing another. A section approved in 1967 states anyone owning property within one and a half miles from the area considered for incorporation may object

But the statute doesn't say what the result of that objection will be. And it isn't certain whether the term property owners includes villages.

"Another section of the statutes states that an area less than four square miles with a population over 7,500 does not have to secure the consent of municipalities within one and a half miles of the proposed boundaries. If the population is under 7,500, the consent must be obtained.

"In other words, one statute states who can object while another states consent is not required," said Kreger.

THE TOTAL AREA of Prospect Heights, in the new and old areas, is more than four square miles. If both areas are interested in incorporation, they should "take the best four square miles and annex the rest after incorporation is completed," said Kreger.

Once a specific area for incorporation is determined, a petition with at least 200 signatures must be submitted to the Cook County Circuit Court, according to Kreger. He advised that as many signatures as possible be obtained so that the people leading the incorporation movement will know how much support they have from the rest of the community.

If the petition is valid, the court will set a date for a public hearing. It is at this time objections can come forward. Depending upon the results of the hearing, a date for a referendum may be set.

"If the lower courts do not approve the incorporation plan, we can take it to the appellate court on the basis of the contradiction of the state statutes.

Mrs. Marie Caylor, secretary of the council, asked Kreger "If we succeed in incorporating, what happens to us afterwards? It is difficult to believe that a city of this size can operate on a volunteer-basis."

Kreger said the new city could not rely completely on volunteers. "You will have to have experts such as an attorney and an engineer. You will also need someone who can draw a zoning map."

Kreger did not know how much it would cost to operate Prospect Heights as a city. "It depends on what services you provide."

"The private utility company and public districts can continue to operate as they do now. You can also continue to rely on the Cook County Sheriff's Police until you have your own police department," Kreger said.

"You would lose the township road service, but you would receive motor fuel taxes," said Kreger. At the rate of $7 per resident this would total about $105,000.

The village tax could range from 27 to $50, said Kreger. At the rate of 30 cents per $100 assessed valuation this could bring in about $210,000, based on a city-wide assessed valuation of $70 million. Real estate taxes would not be available until a year after incorporation.

'Sneaky Fitch' Alive And Well Via 'Footlighters'

by CYNTHIA TIVERS

The tension is at its peak backstage and the Des Plaines Park District Footlighters are dressed in their costumes and are, in a last-minute self-reassuring manner muttering their memorized lines. The play is about to begin.

"At least 700 children have gone through the Des Plaines Park District drama program since it started 14 years ago," said footlighter founder Mary Kinser.

The Footlighters started in the summer of 1952 when Charles Pezoldt, then director of parks and recreation, became interested in having a drama program for the district.

"I was teaching creative dramatics for the park district at the time," Mrs. Kinser recalled, "and he came to me asking for advice. It was a dream for a while but we got the program going and the kids responded beautifully."

The park district has three Footlighter groups: Little Footlighters, for first, second and third grade boys and girls, Junior Footlighters, for fourth, fifth and sixth grade students and Young Footlighters for boys and girls in sixth, seventh and eighth grades. The young footlighters present plays for the community. Little and junior footlighters have drama workshops.

"Footlighter productions are always run by the kids," Mrs. Kinser said, who is herself a former professional stage and film actress. "Many of them find they like working behind the scenes better than on stage and some who started working in the background found they preferred acting so the kids do everything."

Mrs. Kinser thinks the Footlighters provides a feeling of comradeship among the participants. "A lot of kids aren't athletic or musical. Drama brings kids together from all schools and helps them make friends. They work together and become involved with one another."

Another by-product of the drama program, Mrs. Kinser said is that so many of the Footlighters say their participation in the group gave them self-confidence and the ability to relate to other kids.

She recalled that some years ago the mother and father of a very quiet withdrawn son sent him to Footlighters in the hope that the program would help him come out of his shell. "The little boy just loved Footlighters and before you knew it he became a star member."

Throughout the years that Footlighters has been performing there have been countless numbers of mothers who have helped in some way with the group. "Grace Coash has acted as musical director throughout the years and Juanita Battaglia has always designed and supervised costumes," Mrs. Kinser added. "Those are just two examples of helping mothers — there have been so many more. And of course, there's been Ed Sauer, who started directing the Footlighters from their inception. He's the Pied Piper. The kids adore him."

The Footlighters are now rehearsing for their December production of "The Death and Life of Sneaky Fitch." The play will be presented Dec. 5, 6 and 7 at the Footlighter theater in Rand Park.

ED SAUER, Footlighter director, is the kids' Pied Piper.

JOEL SPATER (foreground) happily takes cues from the director while Mike Lykberg keeps busy studying the script of "The Death and Life of Sneaky Fitch" their December production.

JANET PORTER (foreground) is anxious to start rehearsing her part in the play. Kim Ladendorf and Julie McCannon are captivated by the action on the Rand Park stage.

Jr. Miss Pageant To Get Underway

The first step of the local Junior Miss Pageant will get under way with private interviews at Prospect High School Sunday, Nov. 8. Twelve pageant judges, representing all geographic areas of the Paddock Publications circulation area, will interview each applicant.

Ten of the dozen have served previously in the local Junior Miss Pageant, two are new.

Veteran judges include Mrs. T. P. Alston, director of the Twinbrook YMCA and member of Hoffman Estates Woman's Club; Mrs. Richard Buchhuber of Mount Prospect, feature writer for Suburban Living section of Paddock Publications' community dailies; Mrs. Vivian Blithorn of Bensenville, private voice instructor; and Mrs. Kenneth Buck of Elk Grove Village, past president of Elk Grove Junior Woman's Club.

ALSO MARTHA GLASER, curriculum coordinator for School Dist. 211; Mrs. David Krause, of Mount Prospect, lawyer and member of Mount Prospect Business and Professional Women's Club; and Ralph Krueger, Director of Athletics at Lake Park High School.

William Simpson, general manager of Mykroy Inc., Wheeling; Mrs. Daniel Wallner of Arlington Heights, Opportunities for Women Chairman of the Junior Woman's Clubs of Illinois; and Wilfred Wolf Jr., cashier at Northwest Trust and Savings Bank of Arlington Heights; have also served as judges.

New this year are Robert Brickman, Youth Chairman of the Palatine Rotary Club; and Mrs. John Swanson, president of the Itasca Junior Woman's Club.

Eligible to enter Paddock's Junior Miss Pageant are all area high school senior girls who have maintained a "B" average or better to date.

SUNDAY, approximately 150 interested coeds attended the orientation meeting held to explain the various steps and qualifications of the local, state and national pageants.

Pam Weir of Arlington Heights, Illinois Junior Miss of 1969, appeared to answer questions. A movie depicting last year's national pageant in Mobile, Ala. was shown.

Deadline for entries is Monday, Oct. 26. Questions should be directed to Mrs. Ann Chalickis, pageant chairman, 394-2300, extension 336, during office hours.

Al Capp To Lead GOP Rally

Cartoonist Al Capp, creator of Li'l Abner and Daisy Mae will lead an Elk Grove Township rally today of almost the entire state of Republican candidates running for State and County offices in the Nov. 3 election.

Heading the list of candidates is U.S. Sen. Ralph Smith. He will be joined by Ray Page, who is seeking reelection as superintendent of public instruction and Edmund Kucharski, candidate for state treasurer.

THE RALLY WILL begin at 8 p.m. at Lincoln Junior High School, Mount Prospect, and candidates will answer questions during the refreshment hour after the program.

Almost all the important candidates for county offices and the candidates for county commissioner from the suburbs will also attend.

Rounding out the list will be Illinois Sen. John Graham and State Representatives David Regner and Eugene Schlickman.

Republican Committeeman Carl Hansen said he was pleased, "so many of the candidates have been able to fit the Elk Grove Township rally into their busy schedules. It's a tribute to our township's ability to deliver a large Republican plurality for them, which they need to offset the Democratic vote in the city."

by ED MURNANE

Various national organizations and special interests groups have issued their "report cards" on U.S. senators and congressmen during the past few weeks and Sen. Ralph T. Smith stands out in at least two as one of the senators with the worst attendance records.

The reports generally list a handful of key votes which the organization considers important and lists whether the office holders voted favorably or unfavorably in the eyes of the organization.

The National Associated Businessmen, for example, rates senators and congressmen on their anti-inflationary and economy votes and awards "watchdog of the treasury" trophies to those public officials who have high marks.

Twelve different votes were used to determine the record of the various elected officials.

Smith, who was appointed to the Senate a year ago, was in office for 10 of the 12 votes but he only voted on five of them.

His five absences gave him the third worst attendance record in the Senate. Only Sen. Thomas Dodd, D-Conn., and Sen. Karl Mundt, R-S.D., missed more than five votes and the two of them were in office for all 12 votes.

Four other senators, including Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois, also missed five votes but all four were in office for the full term, so they were present for seven of the 12 while Smith was present for only five of 10.

The combined records of Smith and Percy on votes listed by the National Associated Businessmen is the worst by any state's senators.

The two senators' records are in sharp contrast with the attendance records of the four congressmen who serve this area.

Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th, and Rep. Robert McClory, R-12th, were present for all the votes, although Crane missed four which were taken before he was elected last year.

Rep. John N. Erlenborn, R-14th, missed three votes and Rep. Harold R. Collier, R-10th, missed two.

Smith's attendance record is even worse on the report card put out this week by the National Education Association.

Six issues were listed by the NEA as crucial to education, four of them coming after Smith took office. He was present for only one of the four, giving him a 25 per cent attendance record, worst in the Senate.

Percy, on the other hand, was present for all six votes, giving him a 100 per cent record.

Crane, who apparently is doing what the people of the 13th District elected him to do — representing them in Congress and attending the sessions — had another perfect attendance record.

So did Erlenborn, while Collier and McClory each missed only one of the six votes.

Smith has defended his poor attendance by saying it takes campaigning to get elected and he has been campaigning.

However, there are 35 senators up for reelection this year and none have the poor record which Smith has achieved during the past 13 months.

And it makes you wonder how Vice President Agnew recognized Smith when he came to Chicago this week. Agnew serves as presiding officer of the Senate but Smith's attendance record indicates that the vice president hasn't seen the Illinois junior senator very often in the Senate chambers.

The contrast between Smith and Crane, both freshmen members of their respective legislative bodies and both up for reelection this year, is interesting.

Crane was elected to represent the people and he has wasted no time in doing his homework in Washington, attending the sessions of the Congress and learning the ropes in Washington.

But Smith, who was appointed to represent the people, has found it more important to campaign, rather than learn what his job entails.

I wonder if Smith has been collecting his paycheck?

An impressive group of independent Democrats, including Palatine Township Committeeman Richard Mugalian and 13th District state central Committeeman

Lynn Williams, has endorsed George W. Dunne for president of the Cook County board "because he is the only candidate of either party who has pledged to eliminate political patronage."

The group announced the endorsement at a press conference in Chicago yesterday. They said Dunne "is superior in every quality" to his opponent, Republican Joseph I. Woods. Woods is running a campaign based on "irrational fear," the statement said.

Among the others in the group are Victor deGrazia, chairman of the Committee on Illinois Government; Martin Gleason, chairman of the Independent Democratic Coalition; U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva, D-2nd; State Rep. Anthony Sciarano, D-9th; Chicago Ald. William Singer; and Con-Con Delegate Peter Tomei.

Illinois voters aren't the only ones who will have extra ballots facing them at polling places on Nov. 3. Forty-five other states have special referendum provisions and in some states, the voters might be advised to bring a lunch with them when they go to the polls.

In Georgia, for example, there are 64 separate ballots — most of them deal with amendments to the state constitution. Louisiana voters will have a long session in the booth too as 50 constitutional amendments will be submitted to the voters.

Gerry Marks, former Metropolitan Sanitary District trustee and one of the Republican candidates in last year's special 13th Congressional District race, has endorsed the Nov. 3 anti-pollution referendum. Marks testified recently before the MSD and pledged his support.

Michael Bakalis, Democratic candidate for state superintendent of public instruction, has issued a financial statement of his campaign costs. Bakalis said he has received $110,126.67 in contributions as of Sept. 30 and has spent slightly over that so far.

Women's committees for George Dunne have been formed in Wheeling and Elk Grove Townships. Heading the Wheeling group is Mrs. Lee Koeneman of Arlington Heights and heading the Elk Grove group is Mrs. Audrey Phillips, also of Arlington Heights.

Response to U.S. Rep. Philip Crane's survey has been overwhelmingly in favor of the congressman's position on 10 major issues. Crane's administrative assistant, Jerry Harkins, said 16,000 replies have been received and most of the issues showed better than 90 per cent agreement. Crane will print the results in a Paddock Publication advertisement soon.

Sen. Charles Percy will hold a "GOP VoteFest" in Springfield Saturday and more than 5,000 Illinois Republicans are expected to attend. Site is the state fairgrounds.

A "startling" announcement will be made at a press conference this morning by Ben Adamowski, Republican candidate for county assessor, his office reported yesterday.

Internship Program 'Not OK'

As part of the district internship program, a graduate student in education administration at Loyola University, who is certified by the state, works as an assistant principal at River Trails Junior High School.

The district compensates Loyola for the student's services. The university, in turn, grants a scholarship to the student in an amount approximating the total compensation paid by the school district. Money not paid to the student is used by the university for expenses of the student program.

Recently residents belonging to the Parkview Homeowners Association, in unincorporated Mount Prospect, questioned the legality of the district internship program. They said the arrangement is "in conflict with a certain section of the Illinois School Code which provides that no public school funds can be paid to any sectarian institutions."

ACCORDING TO HAGER the arrangement does not violate that section of the code. "The aid, if any, which goes to Loyola is incidental to the primary purpose for which this program is carried on. The purpose is the benefit of the school district in its administrative operations."

"This program, which provides graduate student assistants to school districts, is not limited to sectarian schools," added Hager, "Other public universities are participating."

Despite these facts Hager advised the district to "make all payments directly to the individuals who perform the services, if the internship program is to be conducted."

The problem according to Hager is that "there is no authorization in the school code for the employment of educational institutions to provide either educational or administrative services."

A school board's powers are limited to what is specifically listed in the school code, said Hager.

The school board agreed to follow Hager's advice.

Radio Appearance Set For Scheffres

Alann Scheffres, Democratic candidate for state senator for the 4th senatorial district, will appear on the Maine Township High School radio station WMTH-FM (88.5 on the FM dial), this Friday, from 12:15 p.m. to 1 p.m.

Scheffres will be interviewed by Bill Dickens, producer and news director of "Focus," a student interview program which is devoting this time to the issues of the 1970 elections according to a statement from Scheffres' campaign headquarters.

Low-Cost Housing Backed By AAUW

As the controversy over low and moderate income-housing continues, the local branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) recently jumped into the fray.

The Arlington Heights branch of AAUW, which includes members from throughout the Northwest suburban area, passed a resolution recently to encourage the development of low and moderate-income housing in the area.

The AAUW last week sent copies of the resolution to village boards throughout the area.

A letter was sent by a member of the group to state that the resolution "contains an element that can do more harm than good" soon after the resolutions were mailed.

THE TWO LETTERS were brought up during the meeting of the Wheeling Village Board Monday night. Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon said that the local board and plan commission were working through annexations and zoning changes to "do everything possible to consider moderate income housing" for the village.

The resolution was passed Oct. 8 and states:

Whereas, the Arlington Heights Branch, American Association of University Women, has a deep concern for the provision of adequate housing and is aware of the need, both local and national, for well-planned housing for people of all income levels; and

"WHEREAS, the Illinois State Division, American Association of University Women, adopted the following in April, 1970: 'We support measures to alleviate hunger, cultural, social and economic deprivation and to eliminate substandard dwellings'; therefore be it

Resolved; That the Arlington Heights Branch, AAUW calls upon the village governments of the Northwest Suburban areas within which members reside to encourage the development of low and moderate income housing while including provision for open space within all village limits so that people at all income levels will be able to live comfortably within our communities."

The copy of the resolution was sent Oct. 12 and the letter from Mrs. Joseph Braun, a member of AAUW, was dated three days later.

Mrs. Braun wrote, "As relatively harmless as this resolution appears, it contains an element that can do more harm than good. It carries with it the stigma of having been forced upon a group of supposedly intelligent women."

"TO THIS DAY, a great number of AAUW members are not aware that such a resolution exists since it did not appear in the organization newsletter or on the agenda of the meeting (general meeting at which the resolution was passed)."

Mrs. Braun, 1210 E. Campbell St., Arlington Heights, is a member of the legislative committee which originally approved the resolution.

During a meeting of the legislative committee in September, the matter of a resolution on low and moderate income housing was discussed, according to Mrs. Thomas Haack, chairman of the committee who lives at 908 Burning Tree Lane, Arlington Heights.

The discussion was published in the AAUW's newsletter so that other than committee members could attend. Mrs. Haack said that the state and national AAUW groups have endorsed the idea of local communities providing housing for low and moderate income families.

THE COMMITTEE discussed forming a study group but the consensus was that AAUW members had already been encouraged to attend meetings within the past year on the subject and the League of Women Voters was already working on a fact sheet on the subject, Mrs. Haack said.

The committee voted to have the chairman present a resolution at the October meeting of the committee. The presentation of the resolution to the committee was published in the organization's newsletter, Mrs. Haack said.

Shortly after the committee approved the resolution in October, it was presented to the general meeting and approved by a voice vote.

Mrs. Braun said in her letter that a "few members" arranged for the presentation of the resolution at the general meeting and that no advance notice of the topic coming up was given.

MRS. HAACK SAID that AAUW will be having no regular meeting next month and thus the approval of the resolution would have had to wait until December if it had not been presented at the October meeting.

The committee chairman said that unfortunately "there are a few people who are very unhappy."

In order for any association to state a position, "there are going to be some dissenting members" who do not agree with the position, Mrs. Haack said.

She pointed out that the committee had been discussing the issue of low and moderate income housing for about a year.
